SHERIFF BRENNAN.

How he Makes his Office Pay---Who Would Not be a Sheriff?

Thousands of Dollars Drawn Under Fraudulent Pretenses.

Entitled to 50 Cents for Each Commitment---He Charges $1 50 for Each Arrest.

Specimen of His Accounts---His Fees in 1871 Amounted to $150,612 51.

Will the Culprit be Brought to Justice—Who will Arrest the Sheriff?

We have already stated that abuses of a shameful kind exist in the Sheriff's Office, and that Mr. Brennan is the means of defrauding the public out of a considerable sum of money every year.

It is on the latter point that we submit proofs today. The figures below will be clear enough to any reader who will give them a few moments' attention. But a brief explanation may be of service.

It must be understood that Brennan is empowered by law to charge the County fifty cents for each commitment—NOT for each arrest. Yet he is in the habit of charging about $1 50 for each arrest, regardless of commitments. This is a double fraud—first, in that the charge is made at all; next, in the arbitrary and illegal character of the charge.

To show how this works, let the following statement—we have made it very short—be carefully considered: In the year 1871, 51,466 commitments were made. At fifty cents each, the Sheriff's fees would have amounted to $25,733. Brennan actually claimed, and was allowed $77,310 50. The following are the exact returns, copied from the Supervisors' books. Observe that in November, when all the Tammany leaders were scared by the Reform victory, Brennan suddenly reduced his bills:

|---|---|
| January | $6,744 00 |
| February | 6,673 50 |
| March | 6,863 50 |
| April | 6,802 00 |
| May | 6,842 00 |
| June | 6,615 00 |
| July | 6,677 50 |
| August | 6,679 50 |
| September | 6,702 00 |
| October | 6,298 00 |
| November | 5,077 50 |
| December | 5,305 50 |
| Total | $77,310 50 |

In addition to the above, Sheriff Brennan presented bills for fees and other expenses during 1871, quarterly, as follows:

|---|---|
| January to April | $16,823 51 |
| April to July | 19,765 50 |
| July to October | 16,431 95 |
| October to Dec. 31 | 20,280 95 |
| Total | $73,302 01 |
| Grand total Sheriff's fees for 1871 | $150,612 51 |

This is exclusive of all fees which are received from processes of executions or attachments, orders of arrest, or any other source.

The same reckless cheating has been carried on during this year. For instance, in the month of January last there were 2,236 commitments, entitling the Sheriff to $1,118. His actual charge was $5,547 50, which we prove by a certified copy of his own bill and affidavit:

New-York, Jan. 31, 1872.
The County of New-York,
To Matthew T. Brennan, Sheriff, Dr.
For commitments of prisoners:
Dec. 31, 1871, to Jan. 31, 1872, 336 General and Special Sessions and Oyer and Terminer, at fifty cents. $168 00
10,759 Police Courts at fifty cents.. 5,379 50
Total.....$5,547 50

City and County of New-York, ss.:—Matthew T. Brennan, of the City and County of New-York, being duly sworn, deposes and says that his foregoing bill for commitments is just and true; that the prices charged for the same are at the legal rates; and further, that no part of his foregoing bill has been paid or assigned.

Sworn to before me, this 3d day of February, 1872. (Signed,)
M. T. Brennan, Sheriff.
(Signed,) Chas. W. Welsh,
Notary Public, New-York County.

The commitments to the City Prison in February were 2,206. Brennan charged for all the arrests made, and instead of $1,103, to which he was entitled, he claimed and received $5,216.

The following is a copy of Brennan's bill for March—the number of commitments to the City Prison being 2,233—entitling him to $1,116 50:

New-York, March 30, 1872.
The County of New-York
To Matthew T. Brennan, Sheriff, Dr.
For Commitments of prisoners:
Feb. 29, 1872, to March 31, 1872, 365 General and Special Sessions and Oyer and Terminer, at 50 cents. $182 50
10,676 Police Courts, at 50 cents... 5,338 00
Total.....$5,520 50

City and County of New-York, ss.:—Matthew T. Brennan, Sheriff of the City and County of New-York, being duly sworn, deposes and says that his foregoing bill for commitments is just and true; that the prices charged for the same are at the legal rates; and further, that no part of his foregoing bill has been paid or assigned.

(Signed,) M. T. Brennan, Sheriff.
Sworn to before me this 5th day of April, 1872.
(Signed,) Chas. W. Welsh,
Notary Public New-York County.

In April the commitments were 2,394, and the Sheriff was entitled to $1,197. He actually charged $5,799 50, as may be seen below:

New-York, April 30, 1872.
The County of New-York,
To Matthew T. Brennan, Sheriff, Dr.
For Commitments of prisoners:
March 31, 1872, to April 30, 1872, 324 General and Special Sessions and Over and Terminer, at 50 cents. 162 00
11,275 Police Courts, at 50 cents. 5,637 50
Total.....$5,799 50

City and County of New-York:—Matthew T. Brennan, Sheriff of the City and County of New-York, being duly sworn, deposes and says that his foregoing bill for commitments is just and true; that the prices charged for the same are at the legal rates; and further that no part of his foregoing bill has been paid or assigned.

(Signed,) M. T. Brennan, Sheriff.
Sworn to before me this 4th day of May, 1872.
(Signed,) Charles W. Welsh,
Notary Public, New-York County.

The explanation of this gross system of fraud is that Brennan charges for arrests, whereas he is only entitled to fees upon each commitment. This year he has made the county pay nearly a dollar for each commitment, instead of 50 cents for each arrest, as may be seen from the following summary:

| 1872. NUMBER OF ARRESTS. | | 1872. BRENNAN'S BILLS. | |
|---|---|---|---|
| January | 6,256 | January | $5,547 50 |
| February | 5,742 | February | 5,216 00 |
| March | 6,139 | March | 5,520 00 |
| April | 6,468 | April | 5,799 50 |
| Total | 24,606 | Total | $22,083 00 |

We leave the above figures to tell their own story. We shall next present a pretty little quarterly bill of Brennan's, which may serve to throw further light on the ways and means by which Matt. Brennan is making a large fortune at the expense of the tax-payers, and especially of the working classes, who necessarily suffer most in the end.

FRANCE'S ARMY.

The Debate on the Reorganization—The Opening Speeches—Trochu, Duc d'Aumale, Changarnier and Bishop Dupanloup—The Question of Submissive Obedience—Incidents of the Discussion.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Paris, Friday, May 31, 1872.

The discussion in the Assembly upon the question of army recruitment has, as was anticipated, given rise to a number of "scenes" and "incidents." Contrary to expectation, however, not a word was said offensive to the Germans, and for the simple reason that the Deputies had quarrels enough among themselves to occupy their time, and to furnish the desired excitement. I have told you already that all important questions are settled in the bureaux, where a matter is discussed in secret until the Government and the Committee are agreed, or are agreed to disagree, and the public discussion very rarely makes even a verbal change in a bill. Every member is called upon to state his objections in Committee, and it is thus known beforehand just what every man will say upon the subject; but, of course, members must talk to their constituents as well as vote for them, and the open debate allows them to say in public what they have already said in the bureaux. Hence it will be seen that the public debate could be left out altogether without damage to the country, and from this short explanation of the way things are managed, it will be understood why members talk in public about anything else but the subject in hand. The Army bill has been long under discussion, it has been changed and rechanged and passed from bureau to bureau, until there was a general unanimity upon the spirit of it, and until the Committee had hit upon terms to which the President could agree. It was then presented by Gen. Chanzy, who stated that there was a perfect accord upon the subject, and who reminded the Chamber that it was better for the country to have as little talk about it as possible, since all Europe (euphemism for the Germans) was watching closely every step taken upon this question. The General's speech occupied about twenty lines of the report, and was about the only politic speech made in the debate.

THE SPEECHES.

But, as usual, the subject of the bill makes no difference whatever when the members have something to say to the country. During the five days this question has been up, a number of speeches have been made upon almost every topic—personal, political, civil and religious—upon everything, in fine, except army recruitment. Only one single member has had a useful word to say upon the real question, and all the rest was mere rhetorical vaporing. Gen. Trochu begun with a polished, carefully studied and interesting essay, not to show what steps ought to be taken to promote the reorganization of the French army, but to say that in his opinion "military legends and a fondness for decorations" had been the ruin of European armies. The General's speech would have made an elegant article for a review, but was useless here, and I will show at another time how the practice of M. Trochu accords with his fine theories. The successor of Gen. Trochu took just the opposite ground. The Duc d'Aumale tried to say something flattering for everybody, and delivered an address upon the "Glories of the Tri-colored Flag," which united the red flag and the white flag and was covered with victorious legends. It will be observed that the Duke soars aloft upon the question of "glorious legends" just denounced by Trochu as the cause of the decadence of France; but this seeming inconsistency must not be taken literally. No one means to condemn "legends" entirely, but only the legends of every party except your own. Even Trochu, while condeming the legends of Louis XIV., of Frederick and Napoleon, grew eloquent upon the glorious legends of Hoche, who, instead of a decoration, received a horse and a pair of pistols from the Republic in recognition of his valor. It will thus be seen that every man has an ax to grind. The Duc d'Aumale's eulogy of the tri-color was not so much to praise that flag as to condemn the white flag of Henri V. To continue the list: Next came Col. Denfert, who denounced "submissive obedience" in the soldier, and who wanted an army of "thinking bayonets," which was solely intended to win the applause of the Left and the good opinion of the Radical Party. Changarnier protested, and because he had a personal quarrel with the defender of Belfort. The old General wanted to explain also the part he took in the war and his attitude at the time of the coup d'etat. Next came the eloquent Bishop of Orleans, who made a beautiful speech, a sermon rather, upon the beauties of religion in a soldier, upon elevation of soul, the necessity of religious instruction and the glories of Christianity. To make an army, he said, one should neither destroy the intelligence of the soldier, nor kill the soul of the man, or of France. Fine words! but who ever did or ever thought of doing so? Monseigneur's object was to tell the country that it could never have an army until it returned to the good old days when the priests went into the wars and absolved an army en masse just as the battle opened. Gen. Billot thought that France was lost if she tried to make an army after the model of that "nation of corporals" across the Rhine. Gen. du Temple had a revenge to take out of Gambetta—and so I might go on through the entire list of speakers did I not desire to give you an illustration of these debates.

OBEDIENCE AMONG SOLDIERS.

The most astounding thing of all, was to hear Col. Denfert, the defender—I was about to say our heroic defender, but I remembered Ulrich and Strasbourg—of Belfort, denounce "submissive obedience" in a soldier, and that strict spirit of discipline which is supposed to be the best quality of an army. In the mouths of the tribe of Rabagas, the orators of the clubs, such talk is familiar to us, for under the Empire the opposition never ceased to cry out against discipline—submission to one man, and the cramping of the spirit of the man when a soldier, by exacting blind obedience. From such men we expect to hear stupidities of this kind; but never before did I hear a trained military man give utterance to similar words. If I had space for quotations, I could give extracts from the Colonel's book, published barely two months ago, showing a contrary opinion. But such language from an officer, roused the Assembly; there were shouts and cries and applause, and finally words of passion. Changarnier rushed to the tribune to protest, and lost his temper, as usual. Although he was in the right here, he went too far, and if his great age be an excuse for passion now, I must yet say that he has always been a vain, imperious, quarrelsome, dog-in-the-manger sort of man. The Changarnier-Denfert incident gave rise to some outrageous language, and it was continued the following day. The first day, Laurence Pichat, a poet, a man of business, a millionaire, and, propter hoc, perhaps, a fancy author, whose works are published with a wealth of luxury, but are little known to fame—the poet, Pichat, interrupted Changarnier with the following verse:

> "Vous, vous, appelez Metz;
> Nous, nous, somnes Belfort."

Col. Denfert repeated the words as his own when angrily replying, and Changarnier retorted with a fiercer taunt. I give the report of the next day:

Col. Denfert—"In replying to me yesterday, Gen. Changarnier began with these words: 'Although I was not shut up in a casemate of Belfort during the siege'—— I am content to reply in my turn and to recall the interruption of M. Laurence Pichat, who said you are called Metz, we are Belfort.'" [Applause on the Left. Cries of Oh! Oh! on the Right.]

Gen. Changarnier (sharply)—"I demand the floor."

[While the General made his way to the tribune the members rose, crying at each other, a group of the extreme Left shouting Metz! Metz! as an insult to the General. Among these latter were two men who capitulated on the 18th of March; not one who was in the army. The tumult was intense. The speaker's voice could not be heard. It was some time ere silence was restored.]

Gen. Changarnier—[Cries of Metz!]—"Modestly speaking, I call myself Changarnier. [Très bien! bravo! bravo!] I was in the army of the Rhine without command and without pay. [Agitation.] I am in no way responsible for the events of the war." [Violent interruptions on the Left—cries in every sense.]

The General turned toward the Left, whence came these loud cries. "Is it M. Laurence Pichat again? I do not suspect that interrupter of having been nearer than I to the bayonets of the Prussians. [Laughter and great applause on the Right.] I confess that yesterday I was pained and even irritated"—[interruptions on the Left.]

Several voices on the Right—"And we, too! so were we."

Gen. Changarnier—"Yes, irritated to hear words destructive to any army. [Bravo.] I was—[Cries on the Left; approval on the right; prolonged applause.] I uttered a few words yesterday from which I have nothing to take. [Lively movements—agitation.] I maintain them here and everywhere." [Agitation; noise on the Left.]

The General turned to descend, but after the first step came back to the desk, and, turning toward the Left, repeated with great emphasis:

"Here and everywhere else—do you understand?" or understand it well. [Applause and acclamations on the Right—the Left in a tumult. Great agitation on all sides—cries from side to side—insults and sharp questions exchanged across the aisle.]

Col. Denfert was about to speak, when a new incident came. M. Duvergier de Hauranne, who for three months has been a member of the Left, suddenly gathered up all his papers and moved over to the Right, taking his seat beside Changarnier. The defection of this young Deputy calmed the Left for a moment, and they looked from one to another in surprise. Col. Denfert was upon the steps of the tribune, held back by his friends, who would not let him speak, and nearly the entire body had risen. The agitation of the moment was so great that the session was suspended.

RESUMPTION OF PROCEEDINGS.

When the session was resumed, Gen. Grulleminot concluded his speech, begun the day before, upon obligatory service and discipline, and it was this speech to which I referred when I said that only one had any bearing upon the question. As this was the most sensible and pertinent of all, it passed almost without remark, and very little attention was paid to it. Monseigneur Dupanloup then preached his sermon, which was, like everything coming from him, eloquent and beautiful, but for all it had to do with the bill, it might have been a lecture upon religious decadence in France. Gen. Billot was in favor of "religious liberty, and of the liberty of the Christian religion. He did not want the French army an army of swashbucklers; it should be the essence of all that is exquisite in the French people." Much laughter followed this remark. Gen du Temple then spoke, and when checked, in a violent speech, by the President, the Left profited by the occasion to rise and to drown the General's voice by cries and hootings. Nevertheless, Gen. du Temple expressed the hope that at a time when brave officers were about to appear before a Court-martial, (Bazaine,) compromised by the faults of others, and condemned by those who always fled from danger, a Court would be formed to try the revolutionists, the sophists, the braggards, the advocates, the orators of the clubs, and the assassins who made the revolution of the 4th September. That was the best means of reorganizing the army and of raising its spirit. [The rest drowned in the tumult.]

M. Gambetta said, "The only response to such a speech is silence."

The confusion was great at this time, and all the members were upon their feet. One saw Gambetta being held by his friends, but only the above words could be distinguished, and presently the President put on his hat. M. Thiers had been sitting quietly on his bench without a word, and now rose and went out looking very gay, with his thumbs in his vest pockets. So long as the parties are after each other in this way he has nothing to fear, and he and Gen. Chanzy, in the best possible humor, went off together to concoct new measures to further the policy of the Government.

AN INCIDENT.

There is a curious incident connected with the last words of Gambetta. Immediately after the session he sent a slip of paper to the stenographers to give them what he said, but "which was drowned by the noise." That night he went to the office of the Official to see if it was in, and sent copies to all of the Radical journals. What M. Gambetta wished the country to believe he said was, "that one did not reply to such violence as that except by sending to the speaker a doctor from the nearest insane lunatic asylum." This was a better reply, if an after-thought even, for after telling how Gambetta had come to his camp, and, being afraid to go out where there was firing, left in half an hour, as the shots grew louder, by a special train ordered by himself as Minister for War. The General cried, "Now, you can understand why M. Thiers called him a fou furieux," or a dangerous lunatic. ASHBY.

Fierce Fight Between Two Chinamen.

A fight at Virginia, Montana, between two Chinamen named Mun Gee and Ching Ho, is thus described by the Montanian:

"Throwing aside their outer garments, and each armed with a huge knife and an ugly looking hatchet, they faced each other for the fray—the woman meantime viewing the preparations with unconcern. For a moment they stared at each other like wild beasts over disputed prey, and then sprang forward with uplifted weapons. In the first onslaught Ho's nimbleness of foot saved his worthless carcass, for, stepping quickly to one side, the hatchet of Mun Gee cleft nothing but air, and Ho buried the blade of his tomahawk in the cheek of his unwieldy adversary. Withdrawing it he stepped back into position. Howling vengeance, and with a torrent of blood gushing from his frightful wound, Gee rushed upon his man, and with a dexterous blow, which would have been fatal had it reached its mark, laid a three-cornered piece of Ho's ear on the floor, and received in return an ugly gash in the right shoulder from Ho's knife. Gee was now bleeding freely, and with the ebbing of the crimson tide oozed his strength and discretion. He fought wildly, while his wily antagonist rained his hatchet-blows fast and sure, cutting Gee in a terrible manner about the face, hands and neck. At last, as Gee endeavour to grapple his opponent, he received a deadener under the right ear from Ho's hatchet. Ho, fearing arrest, fled. About this time the police arrived upon the scene. At the request of Mary, Gee was put in his bed for repairs and a physician summoned. Although horribly mutilated Gee may possibly recover. The wound in the neck is not so deep as was hoped, and the jugular vein was missed, but his facial attractions will always lack their usual amount of cheek, and his genial voice will be marred by the absence of nearly all his front teeth. The section of his left ear is the only relic the authorities have of Ho, and even that will be relinquished to the medical faculty on application."

Current Gossip in the British Capital.

The Derby Day—Monsignor Capel and Ritualism—Baptists and Methodists in England—The "Claimant"—An Invasion of Refugees.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Mid-England, Saturday, June 1, 1872.

The Derby this year was like all other Derbys. London took its annual betting and racing holiday. Parliament adjourned for it as usual; thus sanctioning, with the approval of the most sanctimonious of Prime Ministers, what Mr. Thomas Hughes declared to be "a system of gambling the most corrupting, the most insidious, and, therefore, the most mischievous and abominable that had ever cursed any country." Mr. Hughes opposed the adjournment, and got 57 members to vote with him against it; but 212 wanted to go to the Derby; so the nation, by the voice and vote of its great Assembly, once more upheld its great institution, and Englishmen can save their reprobation and horror for Spanish bull-fights and German gaming-houses.

RITUALISM.

Monsignor Capel keeps up his fire on the Ritualists. His eight lectures at the Pro-Cathedral are to be published; meantime the church is crowded every Sunday night, and hundreds try in vain to get admission. The Church Times, chief organ of the Ritualists, makes a pretty good reply to one charge of Monsignor Capel—that of imitating the Church of Rome with spurious sacraments and mock ceremonies:

"The sacraments of the Church of England," it says, "are not imitations of the Roman, but the very same. The definitions of the Prayer Book may be a little different in language, but they come to the same thing."

A Baptist organ, The Freeman, quotes this admission, and says:

"The Church Times is truer to the standards than the Rock or the Record. The State Church is a nursery for Popery; a mere chapel to the Church of Rome. Its 'offices' especially are essentially Papistical, and no honest subscriber to the Prayer Book and all its contents can remain a Protestant. Earl Shaftesbury and the Evangelicals, in contending for the Establishment, are maintaining the career of Rome's missionaries."

"No week goes by," says Monsignor Capel, "without my receiving three, four, or five persons of the Ritualist party into the Church."

Why, then, it is asked, is he trying to wring the neck of this goose that lays such golden eggs? I am not in his counsels. If the Ritualist churches were really the nurseries of Rome, why should Rome denounce them? Having all along gathered the windfalls, the Monsignor may think the fruit is now ripe, and it is time to shake the tree.

BAPTISTS AND METHODISTS.

In the Baptist paper from which I have quoted I find some remarks on the statistics of the Baptist and Methodist denominations, brought out at the recent anniversaries. The gain of the Baptists in England the past year has been barely one per cent., which is a considerable loss, being much below the rate of natural increase. The Methodist accounts show an actual loss of three hundred members. There are of both fashionable churches and rich congregations, but no revivals, and when middle-class people get to a certain social status there is a strong temptation to have chapel for church, and conform to the Establishment. A great many Quakers have done so, and it is a heavy drain on all dissenters, which is one reasan why the more earnest nonconformists go so strongly for disestablishment. I gather from hasty glances at English religious papers that all dissenting denominations are dwindling away—that they are nurseries of the Establishment, and that, they tell us, is a nursery of Rome. The consequence is that England is going over to Rome; but there may be a stronger current tending in quite an opposite direction—to secularism, materialism, Darwinism, and so on that way.

THE "CLAIMANT."

There is a dreadful rumor respecting the claimant. It is said that Mr. Lowe, in his economic zeal, refuses to advance the $70,000 demanded by the Attorney-General to send lawyers to South America and Australia, and hunt up witnesses for the trial, which, consequently, may never take place. Meantime Sir Roger has resolutely taken the stump with his Parliamentary backer, Mr. Onslow; has held two successful, and almost to enthusiastic meetings at Bristol, where they threatened to lynch the Attorney General, and is going in a few days to hold similar meetings at Birmingham and Sheffield. And the enormous personage really makes pretty telling speeches, and carries himself, people say, as no imposter ever could do. "They have indicted me for perjury," said he, "simply for telling the truth, in which I was supported by scores of unimpeachable witnesses, and for forgery, in signing my own name, which I shall continue to do as long as I live." [Enthusiastic cheering.]

AN INVASION OF REFUGEES.

The executions at Versailles of Communists so long after the offenses committed make a very bad impression here. They seem like cold-blooded ferocity. The English, as you know, can hang and shoot on occasions, but they like to be quick about it. The long imprisonments of thousands of Communists at Versailles have also been attended, it is said, with great suffering. England has also had to complain that thousands of prisoners, banished from France, have landed on her shores, suffering and helpless. They tramp up to London, begging their way, sleeping under the hedges, and when they arrive they must be fed and sheltered. "What can we do?" the French Government asks; "we must send them somewhere, or keep them in prison. They wish to go to England; other countries will not receive them." It is a hard case every way. Now, each deported prisoner is to receive money enough to feed him for a week; but that will not help much. Still, I do not see how England is to deny these men the right of asylum. Most of them are good workmen, and they ought to be an advantage and source of wealth to any community. A few days ago a party of thirty or forty Communists, who had come to London, suddenly disappeared. All that could be heard of them was that they had been visited by a Protestant minister who said a rich and benevolent lady wished to take care of them. The secretary of a committee who had them in charge accepted the offer, and they went off with the pastor—no one knows where. It is supposed by the French in London that the rich lady and her clerical friend wish to do a little proselytizing—and these Communists may turn out good subjects. One would like to know how they get on together. And what materials for a library full of romances if one could get hold of them!

METROPOLITAN SIGHTS.

American visitors to Europe, if they arrive during the season, will find a few days in London pay. Paris will keep, and the Alps will not run away. They may spend a day pleasantly at the International Exhibition and the Museum at South Kensington. A week would be better, but I do not wish to be extravagant. Rotten-row and the drive are close by, and worth looking at. A few days may very well be given to the picture galleries, English and foreign. The concerts just now, at the Winter Garden, Albert Hall and the Crystal Palace, are magnificent; and the two opera-houses present casts that cannot, for the time, be equaled anywhere. One may also find something worth seeing at some of the theatres. London itself, also, is so very unlike any city in the whole world that one may well take at least a passing glance at it. And there's the boat-race. MONADNOCK.

THE INDIAN GENERAL COUNCIL.

The Situation Discussed—Treaties With "The Five Great Nations"—Their Occupation of the Territory an Experiment—The Council Postponed One Week.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Fort Gibson, I. T., Wednesday, June 5, 1872.

The annual session of the General Council of the Indian Territory is held at Okmulgee on the first Monday in June. I started from Lawrence, Kansas, in company with Superintendent Hoag, on Saturday, the 1st inst., to be present at the deliberations. The issues to be discussed and determined upon by the delegates sent to this Council are of vital importance to the Indian race, hence its assembling has been looked forward to with interest by all who take an intelligent concern in the vexed Indian question. The Indian tribes occupying this fine and fertile Territory are here on the faith of treaties made with the United States Government, in which the land is ceded to them in perpetuity, and security against the intrusion of white men guaranteed them. Five principal tribes, or "Great Nations," as they are called, the Cherokees, the Creeks, (or Muskogees,) the Choctaws, the Chickasaws and the Seminoles, numbering in the aggregate about 54,000 persons; the Osages, (recently removed from Southern Kansas,) 3,500 in population; and a number of weaker tribes, such as the Peorias, Ottawas, Sacs and Foxes, Quapaws, Senecas, Shawnees, and some others, swell the total population of the Indian tribes permanently resident within the Territory to some 65,000 souls.

RAILROADS TO TRAVERSE THE TERRITORY.

This Territory lies between Kansas, which bounds it on the north, and Texas, on the south. Under the treaty made in Washington in 1866 between the United States and the five "Great Nations" above enumerated, a sort of wooden-horse was introduced into the future of the Territory, in the shape of a provision for the right of way of two railroads through its limits, one running north and south, and the other east and west. It was expressly provided that no Indian land should be given as an endowment to these roads, their right of way being limited to a strip three hundred feet wide, which was deemed sufficient for the construction of all passenger stations, freight-houses, repair-shops, and other necessary buildings. Any one acquainted with the grasping character of our railroad corporations, and the hostile and aggressive spirit of our border population, must have foreseen that this railroad privilege was fraught with danger to the undisturbed occupation of the Territory by the Indian race. But although foreseen by the framers of the treaties, the menacing innovation could not be avoided. The great State of Texas, with its illimitable capacity for the growth of cattle, corn and cotton, would not consent to be shut out from intercourse with the sister States by hermetically closing up her northern border. Justice and fair dealing to the Indian race she was willing to concede, but not to the practical exclusion of her products from an eastern market. Civilization, it was declared, must not be pent in. A paradisiacal home has been provided for the Indian, and he is welcome to it. But he must not think to bar the advance of the white race. The latter have superior claims upon the care of the Government, and if the interests of the two people are socially and ethnologically antagonistic, common sense proclaims the truth that a few thousand barbarous red men must not be allowed to cabin, crib and confine the growing destinies of advancing civilization.

GRANTS OF LANDS DEMANDED.

This problem is now in rapid process of solution. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad, built from Junction City, a station on the Kansas Pacific Railroad, is now traversing the Territory from north and south, and has already reached the main branch of the Canadian River; the South-west Pacific Road from St. Louis has crossed the track of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Road at Cabin Creek, and during the present season will be far on its winding way up the broad, rich but unpeopled valley of the Arkansas. As was foreseen, the two companies building these roads are making a combined effort by appeals through the newspaper Press, and by a strong lobby influence in Washington, to obtain the cession of a large slice of this Territory by Congress, and this demand is supported by the entire border element of Kansas, with whom migration is a hereditary disease, and who can see no value in lands equally good for farming purposes in States open to homestead settlement.

WHY SUCH SHOULD BE CEDED.

A few words in pursuance of this subject will enable me to give your readers both sides of this much-agitated question. The railroad advocates and their host of sympathizers argue that a blasted fig-tree must not be allowed to cumber the ground. If the Indian occupants of this fertile Territory will not devote themselves to useful industry, and they refuse to develop the wealth of their noble heritage, moral justice demands that they must submit to the introduction of the white man among them, the example of whose superior energy will stir them to exertion, and bring out what good remains latent in the race. Lines of railroad, they urge, running two or three hundred miles through an unpeopled country can never be profitable, and the opening of a belt twenty or thirty miles in width contiguous to these lines to white settlement will lead to the building of prosperous towns, to an active commercial intercourse, and to a remunerative business the whole length of their roads.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE ARGUMENT.

The arguments on the other side seem yet more conclusive. The Indians have been settled in this Territory upon the faith of treaties. They have given up their treasured homes on all parts of the continent, on the promise of the Government that here they shall not be disturbed. The five nations are making hopeful progress, and the influence of their improved condition is exercising a wholesome sway over the unreclaimed tribes. At the last General Council held in June, 1871, many Chiefs and head men of the Cheyennes, Arapahoes, Caddoes, Sawacanies and other warlike and savage tribes, were in attendance as delegates or invited guests, several of whom, in speeches addressed to the Council, declared themselves profoundly impressed with what they saw of the improved condition of their civilized red brothers, and greatly encouraged by the earnest solicitude shown by the Council to bring the savage tribes under the same influences. Many intelligent men see hopeful signs of the entire American Indian race being brought together, and induced to forego their predatory habits and enter upon some primitive way of earning their own sustenance. Is not this humane experiment worthy of a fair trial?

Another argument is now being widely advanced. Many newspaper writers in Southern Kansas, who heretofore have been turgidly eloquent in asserting the indisputable claims of the white settler to squat wherever he chooses, now perceive and announce the fact that opening the Indian Territory to white settlement would be fatally detrimental to their own local interests, as thousands of their own hardy population would hasten to pull up stakes and take up new homes in this land flowing with milk and honey. This threatened exodus, with all its ruinous consequences to land-owners, storekeepers, newspaper publishers and all the stable interests of the community, has so fixed itself upon the minds of the more thinking portion that they cease their hostility to "the bloodthirsty savage," and join their voices in raising a swelling chorus to leave him alone.

THE COUNCIL POSTPONED ONE WEEK.

This letter is mainly a digression, but will serve to give the reader a general idea of the present Indian situation, and thus awaken in his mind an interest in the important deliberations of the General Council about to convene. On arriving at this station, which is fifty miles from Okmulgee, the capital of the Creek nation, where the Council is held, we learn that the assembling of that august body of mongrel legislators is impossible at the stated time, in consequence of the swollen condition of the streams, resulting from the recent heavy rains. After a conference with several Cherokee delegates whom we encountered here, also barred from access to the Creek capital, Superintendent Hoag decided to delay convening the Council one week, and, having important business to attend to elsewhere in his superintendency, started for Lawrence last Monday. I remain here to look around a while, and if your readers are not entirely absorbed in the Philadelphia nominations, shall fill up some of my leisure hours by relating a portion of what comes under my notice that will be of most interest. ### The Splutter for Greeley and Brown—Sham Enthusiasm—Discordant Elements—A Ridiculous Attempt to Organize a Republican Greeley Club—Mosby, Lyons, Gilmer and Other Prominent Virginia Conservatives Against Greeley and in Favor of Grant.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Richmond, Saturday, June 8, 1872.

There is a great hurrah made here and throughout the State by the Conservatives over Greeley and Brown, but it is a dishonest and an ephemeral demonstration that is not a true exponent of the thoughts and feelings of the people, and must terminate long before the serious work of the Presidential campaign begins. The hurrahs are forced and the enthusiasm for the "white hat" is all mock. For instance, we have a number of "Greeley Clubs" here, (Mr. B. Gratz Brown being quietly ignored,) but there is a visible constraint oppressing everybody at all their meetings. The speakers, having such a motley gathering of Whigs, Democrats and Republicans to address, find it difficult to steer clear of remarks and allusions at which none can take offense, and with all the care taken, ever and anon something is said that makes everybody look at everybody else with that sheepish expression of countenance which people always have when they are mutually conscious that they are all acting under false pretenses.

A PITIABLE FAILURE.

An effort was made here last night to get up a Republican Greeley Club. The meeting is heralded forth this morning as a large, respectable and enthusiastic one by the Dispatch—but I happened to be present, and the truth is, that it was the most pitiable and ridiculous failure I ever witnessed. It was nearly 10 P. M. before anybody was at the place of meeting, and when Mr. L. N. Peterson (who went to Cincinnati as a volunteer delegate) called to order, there were about a dozen persons present, about equally divided between whites and blacks. All the negroes present were Conservatives, and you may judge of the sort of people the whites were when the crack-brained Martin Meredith Lipscomb was called to preside. R. L. Hobson, colored, was elected temporary Secretary, and everybody knows that he is a leading colored Conservative in this city. Solon Johnson, another colored Conservative leader, remarking the small number present, said that a mistake had been made in the call for a Republican meeting, and that it should have been for a Conservative meeting. Two of the very small number of whites present said that they agreed with him, and at once withdrew. A sort of permanent organization was then bungled up, but it is not likely that anybody will accept the office given him in the Club, except Peterson, who doubtless issued the call, and is the moving spirit in the matter.

LYONS AND GILMER.

Col. John S. Mosby is not the only prominent Conservative in Virginia who has declared that he will not support Greeley, but that he will rather advocate the re-election of Gen. Grant. Hon. James Lyons and J. Homer Gilmer, Esq., both of this city, say the same thing, and have publicly proclaimed it. Mr. Lyons, in a letter to Col. Mosby, published by the Richmond Enquirer, approving Mosby's course, says:

"I cannot vote for Horace Greeley under any circumstances which I can imagine as likely to occur. A few discontented Radicals, who united in the war upon the South and upon that principle of local government to which they profess to be now so much attached; who had no words of sympathy for us, while we of the South were the only victims of insolent and brutal power; quarreled with the President because he chose others for his advisers and managers, and because the measures framed to oppress us now bear upon them; who had not one touch of sympathy for Mr. Davis while he was in prison, or raised a finger to avert the fate of the murdered Surratt, put their sore heads together in a mass-meeting, as they called it, in Cincinnati, professing a purpose to be governed by principles and patriotism a one, and scouting, through their most brilliant organ, the idea that they meant to select a man simply because he could beat Grant; and after as shameless a bargain as ever was made by the men selected as their first and second officers, all their principles, and all their patriotism, and all their wisdom evaporated, leaving as the residuum Horace Greeley—the life-long enemy of all our principles; and they call upon us, the Democrats of the country, who were carefully excluded from the mysterious assemblage, to support him, and vote for him, and make him President of the United States. * * * I will not vote for Grant if I can avoid it; if I am not forced to choose between him and Greeley; but between them I will vote for him, although he went into the war and fought it out, and by the aid of foreign levies conquered the South and suppressed the Constitution; yet, he did not, like Greeley, labor for twenty years to get it up, and then stay at home to fan and urge the flame."

NO UNITY AMONG CONSERVATIVES.

Such are the expressions of one of our ablest and most prominent Conservatives, and they are but the bold exponents of a wide-spread and growing sentiment, that will fully develop itself when the present factitious furor for Greeley has died out. Many influential papers and men are in favor of a Democratic nomination at Baltimore, and there is really no unity of feeling nor of expression among the Virginia Conservatives. There is no heartiness in the uproar for Greeley. It is all fuss and nothing else, and if the Republicans of Virginia stand firm in November, they will have an easy victory over a divided and demoralized enemy. E.

THE VICE-PRESIDENCY.

Gen. John M. Harlan's Letter Withdrawing His Name.

The Louisville Commercial publishes the letter of Gen. John M. Harlan, of Kentucky, requesting the delegation from that State to the Philadelphia Convention to refrain from carrying out the instructions they had received from the Republican State Convention to present his name as a candidate for the Vice-Presidency. The letter is as follows:

Hon. W. C. Goodloe, Chairman of Kentucky Delegation:

Dear Sir: I learn that it is the purpose of the Kentucky delegation to present my name to the National Republican Convention in connection with the Vice-Presidency. While I am deeply grateful to the Republican Party of Kentucky for its expressed desire to have this high honor conferred upon me, I earnestly trust that the contemplated action of the Kentucky delegation will be reconsidered. I am sure that I have done nothing to deserve any such distinction as being the Republican candidate for the Vice-Presidency. And I am equally sure that the attention of the country and the party is directed, and properly so, to other gentlemen, whose extended experience in public affairs, and faithful services in the Republican cause, naturally suggest their names in connection with that position.

Please convey my wishes in this matter to your colleagues, and request that my name be withheld from the Convention.

Yours truly, JOHN M. HARLAN.

Twenty-Three States and 239 Electoral Votes Sure for Grant.

Six States Doubtful and Eight States for Greeley.

The Tammany Candidate 115 Votes Short of an Election.

An Interesting Summary of the Entire Situation.

From Our Special Correspondent.

Philadelphia, Thursday, June 13, 1872.

When the President and Vice-Presidents of the National Republican Convention appeared before Gen. Grant at the Executive Mansion to give him official notification of his nomination, Judge Settle remarked: "I am quite sure I should fail if I attempted anything like a description of the Convention. It cannot be described. The enthusiasm, the unanimity, the solid vote of every State cannot be adequately described, even in the public prints. The President himself should have been present to fully appreciate the Convention."

No one who had the good fortune to be within the walls of the Academy of Music, Philadelphia, on the 6th of June last, but has experienced the same impotence to convey to others an idea of the grandeur of the spectacle which he witnessed. It was not in the roaring of that great sea of human voices, nor yet was it in the soul-stirring strains of music, nor in the chaunting of those grand battle-hymns that served to nerve the Republic to greater efforts in her darkest days, that the fullest significance and great sublimity of that scene was found. These were but the surface indications of the terrible earnestness of the friends of liberty throughout the land, and as such, had an inestimable value as omens of good cheer for the future of mankind.

A GLANCE AT THE PAST.

Twelve years ago the Republican Party won its first national victory, and since that time it has been constantly responsible for the good government of the Republic. Brought into existence by the inroads of the slave oligarchy upon the area reserved by sacred compromises to freedom, it had gained dominance and been continued in power only because its opponents, the slave propagandists, could not be made to understand that they were living in the nineteenth and not in the fifteenth century. Taking up arms in defense of human bondage as the foundation-stone of free government, these opponents had forced the Republican Party into line of battle for the life of the nation rather than for liberty. But the party was as clay in the hands of the events it seemed to be controlling, and was molded anew with each of those tremendous epochs in which it was the central figure. Looking back now to 1861, it seems more than marvelous that not a single leader of the party dared utter the thought that was in almost every mind, that slavery must perish in that hot furnace blast of war, and the Republic emerge transfigured or never emerge at all. But gradually the virtue and courage of the people mounted to the leaders, and step by step the Republican Party became the great elevator of humanity. Beginning with abolishing slavery in the District of Columbia, it ended with procuring the adoption of the Thirteenth Amendment, which act of regeneration and justice was only attempted in Febuary, 1865, and fully accomplished on the 18th day of December then next ensuing. This is a suggestive fact. The party had absorbed its vital principle slowly, but surely, and freedom once established, the party went on to enfranchisement as its logical conclsion. I remember that on the day when the House of Representatives passed the bill conferring the suffrage upon the blacks in the District of Columbia, which was to be the forerunner of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, I came out of the Hall just after the vote was announced with Senator Wilson, of Massachusetts. That life-long apostle of liberty was overjoyed by the event of the day, and as we descended the grand western approach to the Capitol with the sun just sinking below the horizon, he said: "That sun goes down to-night on naked, bald-headed radicalism stronger in this land than it ever was before; the nation sees its duty at last and will do it." As a prophet no less than an apostle, he spoke that night. At last the nation had resolved that all men should be free and equal before the law, and the Republican Party was its chosen instrument in working out this beneficence.

A NEW DANGER CONFRONTED.

In this battle for human rights and enlightened progress the party was to encounter its old antagonists in new disguises. The spirit of slavery which had struggled so desperately on the battle-field was but the spirit of retrogression, and it reappeared in the Democratic Party to place every possible obstacle in the way of the onward march of mankind. As it had opposed emancipation, so was it bitterly hostile to enfranchisement. But the Republican Party pressed on and accomplished its mission despite the opposition of Democracy and the apostacy of the man it had lifted to high place, and who by the martyrdom of Lincoln had been made Chief Magistrate. As it freed the people from the vassalage to feudalism, it lifted from them the burdens of taxation, and that it might save all the results of the great struggle and administer the Government with the utmost economy, it made the frugal, silent soldier who had been the instrument in the hands of Providence for the regeneration of the nation, the President of the United States. With the inauguration of Gen. Grant, it seemed that the mission of the Republican Party was accomplished, and that an era of profound political quiet was about to come to a chastened and purified land. But the Republican Party had as a legacy of the great war vast Government patronage, and the hour of danger being passed, as it seemed, dissensions arose in its ranks over the spoils of office. Many who had been earnest in advocacy of its principles, became lukewarm because they were not rewarded in accordance with their ideas of their deserts. Selfish interests took the place of patriotic impulses and, were reinforced by disappointed ambition and wounded vanity. Administering the Government in accordance with his inauguration pledge, "for the good of the whole people," Gen. Grant had alienated some of the politicians, as it was inevitable that he should. The breach widened, until the sluiceways of slander were opened in the Senate, and the President of the United States was subjected to abuse more gross than had ever been poured upon a public officer. The Republican Party, as a mass, remaining true to him because he was true to it and himself, became, in the language of the malcontents, "an army of office-holders," "minions of power," and "dogs wearing the collars of their master." There is little need of more of this retrospection. The disaffection culminating in the nomination of Horace Greeley at Cincinnati, and the spectacle of Liberal Republicanism warming the Democratic serpent in its bosom, taken into account, and the scene at Philadelphia can be fully understood. It was an emphatic rebuke of the slanders upon the President, an earnest declaration that the future must be secured in order that the past may be saved. Moving slowly to the support of complete freedom, the Republican masses cling to it now steadfastly, and are determined that nothing which they have gained shall ever be put in jeopardy. Seeing in Cincinnati only the possibility of Democracy and retrogression, the great party of progress rushed in solid column to the defense of its hard-won positions, with only now and then a weak-kneed recruit dropping out of its ranks as it swept onward. Here in Philadelphia it stood steadfast in serried lines for freedom, as it had stood in this same city sixteen years before, as it had stood in Chicago in 1860, in Baltimore in 1864, and in Chicago again in 1868. With every promise in the name of liberty which it had ever made more than kept, it sent out its battle cry from those vibrating walls freighted with its unalterable determination to conquer, in order that it may preserve for mankind what it has already won.

PROSPECTS FOR THE FUTURE.

That is what the scene at Philadelphia meant. It declared that the Republican masses are yet united in defense of these principles, and not in slavish devotion to a man. And there was the utmost confidence among all the thousands of Republicans gathered here as delegates and spectators that the party is sure this Fall to win a victory unprecedented even in the long list of its splendid triumphs. In order that I might give the readers of the Times a trustworthy compendium of the prospects of the contest, I made it my duty during the time the delegates were together to gather the necessary information, and, having presented the spirit of a scene that has been carped at "as enthusiasm manufactured to order," I now append the facts which I have obtained.

ALABAMA,

at the last general election, was very evenly balanced between the two parties, but was carried after great effort for the Democrats by a majority of 1,771. The Republican Party is now far stronger and in better condition for effective work than it was at that time, and the ten electoral votes of the State can be counted with confidence for Grant and Wilson. When Mr. Greeley was upon his great Southern electioneering tour he was received with much favor by the late rebels of Alabama, and the colored voters are, as a consequence, against him almost to a man, as they are naturally suspicious of any one who has the support of their oppressors. All that was necessary to make the State absolutely sure for the Republicans was a law to insure an honest election, and that having been provided, the result in the State is beyond doubt.

ARKANSAS

gave a Republican majority of 2,742 at her last general election, and can be trusted to increase it in November, when a full State ticket is to be voted for, as well as Presidential electors and one Congressman at large. Notwithstanding the bickerings in the Republican Party in the State, it is really in better condition than ever before, as the Commonwealth has prospered under its rule, and has thus gained the confidence of the people. The Legislature to be chosen in November elects a United States Senator in place of Hon. B. F. Rice, the present head of the Greeley party in the State, and he has little chance of a return, as by that time the Democrats will not care to repeat their little failure in Connecticut. The Greeley party in Arkansas, however, outside of the Democracy, is an unknown quantity in politics, as nothing of it has yet been discovered. The colored men are unanimous against it, and for Grant and Wilson. In no one of the late slave States is the outlook, both industrial and political, more encouraging than in Arkansas, to which emigration is rapidly tending, and which is being greatly developed by the construction of the Cairo and Fulton and the Pine Bluff and New-Orleans Railroads. These great public works are due to Republican policy, and the people being disposed to let well enough alone, six more votes for Grant and Wilson can be counted here.

CALIFORNIA

was Republican last year by 5,474, and, although one of the changeful States, no one acquainted with the present political aspect doubts that Grant and Wilson will carry it by a majority greatly in excess of these figures. Notwithstanding the partial failure of the crops last year, the State is now in a better industrial condition than ever before; the Republican Party is united and confident, as every effort heretofore made to draw off any portion of it to the support of Greeley has proved a total failure. The Goat Island question has been permitted to drop out of the campaign, and Grant is good for 3,000 majority in San Francisco, which insures him the State. The Democracy, as a rule, are opposed to picking up a Republican crumb in the shape of Mr. Greeley, so that in the event of his nomination at Baltimore, it will be difficult to discover from the California returns who was Grant's opponent.

CONNECTICUT

is one of those close States which afford an exciting field for those speculative persons who delight to wager money on elections, but this Fall it is, in the opinion of those best acquainted with its condition, perfectly safe for Grant and Wilson. In the event of a race between Grant and Greeley alone there is no doubt whatever in any reasonable mind that Grant will carry it by at least 5,000 majority. No State has a more hide-bound Democracy than Connecticut, except Delaware and Kentucky, and in the event mentioned a large per cent. of these will either stay away from the polls or vote for Grant, but most likely the former. But if there should be an independent Democratic nomination it is difficult to say what will happen. At the State election last Spring Gov. Jewell had less than 100 majority, owing to the Labor Reform and Temperance tickets, although the Republican vote exceeded the Democratic 1,991. There is great encouragement in these figures, but, to keep entirely on the safe side, Connecticut must be classed as a doubtful State.

DELAWARE

clings with the close embrace of political torpor to her twin idols, the whipping-post and Democracy. At her last general election she gave the Democracy 12,458 of her 22,440 votes, and in her Democratic State Convention, just held, she naturally declared the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments to be frauds upon the American people, and of course appointed the Bayards and Saulsburys to represent her at Baltimore. She also declared in favor of a straight Democratic ticket, but Delaware can always be counted upon to vote anything labeled Democratic, and in case Mr. Greeley receives a united nomination at Baltimore, his managers may safely count on his getting the three electoral votes of the State which has been so often berated in the Tribune because of its whipping-post and its Democracy. But in case the Greeley wedge splits the Democratic Party in twain at Baltimore, the 9,982 Republicans of 1870 may find themselves the instruments for the redemption of this dark corner of the earth, and be able to give the State to Grant and Wilson. But it is not good policy to count upon it, as such a thing as the regeneration of Delaware is so altogether unlikely, now that the age of miracles is past.

FLORIDA

is another of those States which are bandied between the parties, as at the last general election the Democrats had 13,436, and the Republicans 13,208, thus giving the former 228 majority. It is safe, however, to accord the State to Greeley if nominated at Baltimore, as the Democrats are generally in his favor, and the Republican Party of the State has been partially wrecked by gross mismanagement. Some of the Republicans think Grant's chances to carry the State good, and believe that the developments of the next few weeks may materially alter the aspect of affairs, but I cannot see the facts to warrant such prognostications. Florida, with her four electoral votes, I consider good for anybody but the Philadelphia nominees.

GEORGIA.

is a State about which it is unnecessary to guess. Giving a Democratic majority of 26,863 at the last election, common sense demands that she be handed over with eleven electoral votes to Mr. Greeley, or whoever else may be stamped at Baltimore as the Simon pure Democratic article. The Republican Party of the State is united, as very few will be led off into the Greeley movement, but it is under the heels of the Kuklux, and cannot be expected to make a very vigorous or effective campaign. The chances are, now that the Republican Party of the South has been left defenseless by Congress, that in Georgia the Democratic majority will be largely increased, even if Mr. Greeley should be the nominee, as the Democrats generally, notwithstanding the opposition of Tombs, Stephens, and other rebel leaders, are in favor of his indorsement at Baltimore. The election in the State in November is one of great importance, as in addition to Presidential electors, there will be chosen an entire State ticket, both branches of the Legislature, and nine Congressmen, two of whom will be elected for the State at large, unless the Legislature should re-district the State in July.

ILLINOIS.

this year, as ever before, gives forth no uncertain sound, but from her horizon-bounded plains, her rural villages, her busy marts and her great metropolis, speaks in clarion tones for liberty. It did not need the promise of glorious old Dick Oglesby to the Philadelphia Convention to convince the most skeptical that the State is good by 30,000 majority for Grant and Wilson. From every portion of the State comes the same tidings that the Republican Party of the State was never more vigorous, never in better condition, never more sure of an overwhelming victory. It has certainly lost the aid of Horace White, which is regretted for his sake, not for that of the party, and a few disappointed men who received marks of confidence from the party in former years, have dropped away from it. But these defections are more than made up by the accessions to the party from the popularity of President Grant and Gen. Richard J. Oglesby, the candidate for Governor, who has with him upon the State ticket men scarcely inferior to himself in the confidence of the people. The State will also elect on the same day with the Presidential election her quota of nineteen Congressmen, and the present political complexion of the delegation will be at least maintained.

INDIANA

must at the present moment be classed as a doubtful State, although those sturdy Republicans who stood so nobly by Mr. Colfax at Philadelphia, and acquiesced so grandly in the choice of his successor, went from the Convention promising the State to Grant and Wilson. They will have hard work to keep their promise, and would have had an almost equally hard task if Mr. Colfax had been on the ticket. Indiana for several years has been gravitating slowly back to Democracy. In 1868 Gov. Baker, the present Republican Chief Magistrate of the State, had only 941 majority, and at the last general election, in 1870, the Democrats had a majority of 2,568. The cause of this decrease in Republican power was found chiefly in petty feuds in which no national questions were involved, and which Col. John W. Foster, the present efficient Chairman of the State Committee, announces he has succeeded in healing almost without exception. The Greeleyism among the Republicans of the State, although headed by the name of Geo. W. Julian, really amounts to nothing, and that gentleman is doomed to learn, as many have done before him, however powerful a public man may be within the Republican Party, he is powerless to take any considerable number of its disciples out of it with him. The election in Indiana is one of the most important of the year, as she elects a full State ticket and thirteen Congressmen on the second Tuesday in October, and thus, with Pennsylvania, which votes on the same day, and North Carolina and Maine, which vote in August, is the real battle-ground of the Presidential contest, as the result in all these States combined will clearly indicate that of November. Gen. Tom Browne, the Indiana Republican candidate for Governor, is one of the most popular men in the State, an effective stump speaker, and will be more than a match before the people for his Greeley-Democratic competitor, Hendricks. There is this encouragement, in the view of the situation, that the telling blows of Mr. Voorhees upon the Greeley candidacy have had a demoralizing effect upon the Democracy, and while it is extremely probable that the Republicans will carry the State, both in October and November, I prefer to still leave it in the doubtful list.

IOWA

comes up for review with a grand Republican majority of 41,254 last year, and with the declarations of her leading citizens that these figures shall be in nowise diminished in 1872. Greeleyism has taken no root among the Republican masses, and the Cincinnati candidate is especially spurned by the sturdy Germans of the State, both Republican and Democratic. The State is more prosperous than ever before, and on the same day that she gives her eleven electoral votes to Grant and Wilson will elect a full State ticket, none of which has yet been put in nomination.

KANSAS

had a Republican majority of 20,170 at her last election, and is certain for Grant and Wilson by about the same figure. There is some little Greeleyism among the Republicans, as about one in twenty of them, according to careful and impartial observers of the State, are afflicted with a leaning to the Chappaqua farmer, but about the same number of Democrats will go for Grant in case Greeley is nominated at Baltimore. The remainder of the Democrats are said to be in favor of Greeley, and the Kansas delegation to Baltimore will be in the Greeley interest. The State this year elects all her State officers, members of the Legislature and three members of Congress, two of whom are gained under the new apportionment and must be elected for the State at large. Hon. James W. Harvey will probably be the Republican candidate for Governor.

KENTUCKY,

which gave a Democratic majority of 36,976 last year, can be relied upon to remain true to her Bourbon instincts. There is no possible contingency under which Grant and Wilson can get the twelve electoral votes of the State. If Greeley should get the united nomination at Baltimore, he will have these votes beyond all dispute, and if there should be a split, the straight Democrat will as certainly have them. But in case of the Greeley Democratic candidacy the Republican vote of the State will rise to 100,000, and there is a good prospect that the party will carry the Eighth, Ninth and Tenth Congressional Districts, thus gaining three members, as they now have none. The State election on the first Monday in August will hardly be a fair indication of the November result, as there are no officers to be chosen this year but Sheriffs of counties, and there will be no canvass sufficient to call out the vote.

LOUISIANA

at a first glance has a rather doubtful appearance, but taken out of the dust kicked up by dissensions on local issues, she is plainly for Grant and Wilson if the vote is honestly counted. There was never a baser betrayal of a political trust than that by Gov. Henry C. Warmoth, and never were more desperate measures resorted to than he has adopted to prevent the indignant people he has used so falsely from wresting the sceptre of power from his hands. Elected to his responsible post as a Republican, he speedily developed into an officer of the Tammany order, and, it is charged, fell with ravenous ferocity to despoiling the helpless State which had been placed in his power. The Republican Party naturally rose against him, and then began his shameless intrigues for the retention of his grossly-abused power. This rebellion against fraud within the Republican Party Warmoth succeeded in having called the "Custom house party," and in no way was his talent for political roguery more strongly manifested than in fixing this name upon his opponents, as in consequence he has succeeded in attaching to them the odium that they are merely engaged in attempting to put the State under the control of a clique of Federal office-holders. Having met with this success, Warmoth was in the market with his power of appointing Registers of Election for sale to the best bidder, and it is charged that he nearly concluded a bargain with the Democracy for its use. A Democratic Lieutenant-Governor and Legislature were to be elected, and Warmoth being then sent to the United States Senate, the State would have been put entirely at the mercy of the late rebels who have been badly reconstructed, but in the end the bargain was not consummated, because each party to the negotiation was convinced that the other was a swindler, and would not carry out the terms in good faith. Forced by this failure to a new device, Warmoth convened his State office-holders in Convention, and compelled them to put him in nomination for Governor, with Pinchback for the second place, and then adjourned his family party to meet at Baton Rouge on June 19, where and when the regular Republican Convention will assemble, and probably nominate E. C. Billings for Governor, but where Warmoth hopes to make some sort of bargain which will at least postpone the hour of his political death. There is not, however, the least probability of his success, as the Republicans have had more than enough of him, and will defy him and his Registers to do their worst. An entire Republican ticket will be put in the field, and there will also be a Congressman at large nominated. The State now has eight members of Congress, and, notwithstanding these dissensions, the Republicans will lose none. Warmoth is counted for Mr. Greeley; but in the Presidential issues he has few followers, and the State is reasonably certain for Grant and Wilson. The colored voters are all for these candidates, and of themselves will determine the result on the Presidency. While the State ticket and the Legislature, which is to elect the successor of Mr. Kellogg, may be in doubt, there is also the chance that Warmoth may succeed in cheating the Republicans out of the electoral vote, and the State is therefore placed in the doubtful list.

MAINE

needs but few words, for this year, as always before, she will be true to freedom. In 1871 she gave a Republican majority of 10,025, which will be increased rather than diminished this year, and her seven electoral votes are sure for Grant and Wilson. The State election occurs on the second Monday of September, and will be of great interest as an indication of the drift of New-England sentiment. The State elects a Governor and Congressmen, and the Republicans are certain of holding their own.

MARYLAND

will most probably vote for the Baltimore nominee, no matter who it is, as last year she gave a Democratic majority of 15,135 in a total vote of 132,783. Some of the Republicans have hopes of carrying the State in case of Greeley's indorsement, but as it is generally admitted that the relative strength of the parties has not changed, and that Greeley seems to be generally acceptable to the Democracy as an instrument of suicide, I am forced to concede the State to the nondescript Democracy.

MASSACHUSETTS,

the foster-mother of Henry Wilson, needs very few words. Her grand Republican majority of 27,404 will not be diminished this year, as, notwithstanding Charles Sumner has spoken, the Republican Party within her borders is as lusty as ever. As the Philadelphia Convention intended the nomination of Henry Wilson as a rebuke of the slanderous Senator, so the Commonwealth of Massachusetts will cast for her junior Senator a vote for the Vice-Presidency that will astonish and confound the carping critic who dragged a Secretary from his grave and put sentiments into his mouth which he never entertained. The Democrats of the State have been too long in the minority to be caught with chaff, and are consequently opposed to the Greeley idea, but the great majority of them will vote for the philospher, if nominated at Baltimore, as it makes but little difference how they vote.

MICHIGAN

is another of the certain States, and a majority of 30,000 for Grant and Wilson being the least that is expected, it is scarcely worth while to give space to a State so entirely righteous. Yet it is some satisfaction to notice that it is the universal testimony that Greeley cannot muster a regiment of followers among the 100,000 Republican voters of the State, and that even these will desert him in case he is indorsed by the Democracy. Michigan will choose a Republican Governor and other State officers, with nine members of Congress, at the same time she elects the Grant Presidential ticket.

MINNESOTA,

like all the North-west, is Republican to the core, having rolled up a majority of 14,988 for that party in 1871, and nobody denies her five electoral votes to Grant and Wilson, and this majority will be greatly increased by the larger vote naturally called out by the Presidential struggle. The Democrats of the State are generally in favor of Greeley as a last chance to get at the public crib, and if he is nominated at Baltimore, probably seventy-five per cent. of the party will vote for him, and the remainder will stay from the polls. Greeley, however, has absolutely no strength among the Republicans, and his entire vote will be the Democratic. Minnesota votes this year only for Congressmen, and these being chosen on the same day with President, her State election will be without special significance.

MISSISSIPPI

is not denied to Grant by the most unreasonable of his opponents, since it has become certain that the colored vote of the South is not to be stampeded into following Mr. Greeley into the Kuklux camps. The Republican Party of the State at the last general election had a majority of 38,089, and is stronger now than then. On the other hand, the Democracy are divided in sentiment, many of them being in favor of taking up Greeley as a matter of policy, but the more ultra will refuse to vote for him even with the party stamp upon him, and no Presidential candidate was ever beaten so badly in any State as Mr. Greeley will be in Mississippi. The State election occurring in November has no national interest, nor has it much bearing upon State affairs, as only the six Congressmen are to be chosen.

MISSOURI

is this year an interesting political problem. It is the home of the Greeley candidate for Vice-President, who as Governor would naturally have some power over its sentiment; and it was the scene of that unparalleled defection in 1870 by which the Republican Party of the State was for the moment destroyed, and the State handed over virtually to Democratic control by a majority of 40,000 for Gratz Brown. Naturally enough the Greeleyites claim the State in November with great energy, and the claim is conceded to have some foundation, but they probably won't get it. Within a few months after Gratz Brown was elected Governor, the eyes of the Republicans were opened to the folly they had committed, and the party righted itself with amazing rapidity. The coalition which had been invincible, was left with only its Democratic adherents, and of itself became impotent for good or evil. I know that these are facts which are generally unknown and will be strenuously denied, but I have them from personal investigation within the State and from gentlemen long resident there, and thoroughly familiar with its politics. Yet I do not count the State for Grant because it has an unknown political quantity in the enfranchised rebels. Nobody knows exactly how many of these there are, but as the State will be close in any event, it is extremely probable that as all of these will vote for the Democratic nominee, they may be able to decide the State against Grant. Taking in this review only absolute certainties, I must reject Missouri as merely a probability. The State officers will be elected on the same day with the President.

NEBRASKA AND NEVADA

are both certain for Grant, although the latter gave a majority against the Republicans in 1870 of 1,052, while Nebraska gave the party a majority of 2,478. The ground for the assertion that Nevada is to be redeemed is the unqualified confidence of all the Republicans of the State, and the disintegration of that frontier Democracy by the agitation of Greeleyism, as they cannot be made to understand in these mountain fastnesses the sudden conversion of the life-long and bitter enemy of their creed, and consequently look upon it with such suspicion that they cannot and will not believe in it. Nevada is the only State giving a majority against the Republicans (with the exception of North Carolina) at the last election, which is claimed herein for Grant, but the evidence is so clear that it will be that it is set down as a certainty. About Nebraska nobody makes any question, and no explanation concerning it is needed.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE

is a State concerning which there might have been some doubt prior to the election last Spring, but there is none now. At that time the so-called Liberal Republicanism had been fully developed, and the canvass was fought out squarely on the Grant issue. The speeches of Schurz and Trumbull, depicting the President as a monster of hideous mein, were scattered broadcast over the State by the Democrats, and every effort was made to utilize whatever disaffection there might have been in the Republican Party, but it all resulted in utter failure, for the good reason that there was no such disaffection. As there was none then, so there is none now, and with Grant and Greeley only in the field the State is certain for Grant by 7,000 majority, owing to the apathy in the Democratic ranks which will be caused by the Greeley candidacy, but it is certain for Grant in any event.

NEW-JERSEY,

in the words of Cortlandt Parker, when addressing the Indiana delegation on the evening of the Philadelphia Convention, is "our always doubtful State," and I am willing the Republican Party there shall remain in the unenviable position in which it was placed by its chosen spokesman. There was the foundation for the phrase that the State is one of the changing ones, and at the last election it went Democratic by 6,007 majority. But the choice of the Republicans of a nominee for Governor was a singularly unfortunate one in the sense of expediency, and Joel Parker, the Democratic nominee, was one of the most popular men in the country. The result of the contest, therefore, was abnormal, and there is no reason why the earnest Republicans should not make good their boast that they will reclaim the State. As against Greeley alone they certainly should, for whoever expects the Monmouth County Democracy to vote for anybody who was ever a Republican has a very faint idea of the intensity of that Democracy. Yet New-Jersey, to be entirely on the safe side, must be and is classed among the doubtful.

NEW-YORK

is the pivotal point of the struggle, and the contest for its decisive thirty-five votes will be fierce almost beyond precedent. It is claimed for Mr. Greeley as a matter of course, and the readers of the Times are so well aware for what reasons, that it is hardly necessary to give them in detail here. Yet there is nothing which lies so plainly on the surface of politics as that Mr. Greeley, even with the unanimous Democratic nomination at Baltimore, has not the ghost of a chance of carrying the State. First, his chief backers are tainted with Tammany, and the evidence comes to us from every county that the people are more determined than ever to root out that organization and its corrupting influences utterly. Second, we are to have a fair election, and that had, New-York is always safe for the regular Republican nominee. This year the United States Election law is operative, and we have a new Registry and Election law for the City, which the Greeley managers have not studied with the care it deserves, or they would not so cheerfully count these thirty-five unhatched and impossible chickens. The Tribune has time and again accused the Democrats of stealing New-York from Grant in 1868, and it is some satisfaction to know that the larceny cannot be repeated in 1872. There was a time when New-York was a doubtful State, but it became a memory only within two weeks after the Cincinnati Convention. The response to that movement was the solidification of the Republican Party from the ocean to the lakes, and outside of the City it presents an almost entirely unbroken front. In the City the desertions will be more than made up by the accessions from the disgusted Democrats who have been convinced by the World that Mr. Greeley's candidacy is so awfully absurd, and who do not choose to lose their votes because their party chooses to be silly. But New-York has been and will be so dealt with in detail in this journal that it is sufficient here to state that it is the universal opinion among the best informed and most dispassionate Republicans, that these thirty-five votes are sure for Grant and Wilson.

NORTH CAROLINA

is the first object of interest in the contest, because her State election occurs on the 1st day of August, close upon the heels of the Baltimore Convention, and because at her last general election she gave the Democrats a majority of 1,221. A close State, and the first to vote after the party lines are drawn, she will engage the earnest attention of both parties, and will be hotly contested. Both claim to be able to win, and the eyes of the nation will be turned during the fervent heats of later July upon the old Tar State with very great interest. It would be nonsense to claim that the Republicans are not to have a hard fight, but it would be as silly to doubt, in view of all the late manifestations of the condition of public feeling, that they will triumph in the end. Even if the question of the Presidency were not involved, the election would command general attention, as a full set of State officers, eight members of Congress, and a Legislature to elect a United States Senator in place of Hon. John Poole, are to be chosen. The Republican nominations for nearly all these places have been made, and without exception are very strong. For Congress Hon. T. G. Cobb is nominated in the First District, Hon. C. R. Thomas in the Second, (both being present members,) Neil McKay in the Third, Wm. A. Smith, President of the North Carolina Railroad, in the Fourth, Hon. Thomas Settle, now well known in the country, in the Fifth, Mr. Dockery in the Sixth, Mr. Furchess in the Seventh, and W. S. Chandler in the Eighth. All the Republican nominees in the State are whites, and only about thirty per cent. of the whole vote of the State is colored. The Republican Party is compact, more powerful than ever, and so little tainted with Greeleyism that, as a Philadelphia delegate aptly stated the case, "Greeley will not get more Republican votes in the whole State than there are mile stones between here and Raleigh." If Greeley becomes the Democratic nominee, he will lose even these few, and so many of the Democrats prefer Grant to him that but little effort will be required to carry the State in November. There is a prospect of a good, lively, old-fashioned and intensely interesting canvass up to the day of the State election, but after that it will be very flat, as the Democrats will make hardly any effort to win in November. This view of the situation, coming to me from many independent and highly trustworthy sources, I have put down the ten votes of North Carolina as sure for Grant and Wilson.

OHIO,

steadfast for truth, needs but very few words. It is universally admitted that the Republican Party in the State in which the farcical Presidential nomination was made is more invincible than ever, and will give the twenty-two electoral votes to Grant and Wilson by a majority of 30,000. There were a few gentlemen like Judge Hoadley, Judge Mathews and Frederick Hassaurek, who might have made a serious inroad upon the integrity of the party had they not been so swindled in the Cincinnati Convention, both in the platform and the candidate. They were among the few sincere men in the movement, and finding it to be merely an indecent scramble for office, most of the men of this class have abandoned it in disgust. But it is useless to assert what nobody denies, and I leave Ohio to speak for herself in her proud position as a reliable Republican State. She votes on the second Tuesday in October for members of Congress and some minor State officers, and then will make plain where she stands.

OREGON

had the great privilege of being the first State to rebuke the unnatural coalition between Greeleyism and Democracy for the sake of spoils. Democratic in 1870 by 631 majority, she voted again on Monday last and sent glad greeting to the Philadelphia Convention in a decided Republican victory. As the first reliable indication of the drift of popular sentiment, the result was hailed as the harbinger of a greater victory in November. There could be no doubt as to the real significance of the election, for Greeley had been a month in nomination, and Grant had been known to be his only competitor. The issue was therefore fairly made up, and the result showed that Mr. Greeley spoke as one inspired when he said "Gen. Grant never has been defeated and never will be." Oregon will hardly be claimed now by the coalition, and her three votes are put down for Grant and Wilson.

PENNSYLVANIA

is and will be for weeks to come an object of intense political anxiety. Casting twenty-nine electoral votes and voting for Governor, Auditor-General, Supreme Judge, other State officers and members of Congress on the second Tuesday in October, the cry is already heard as it has been in every Presidential contest, "as Pennsylvania goes, so goes the Union." It had and has, however, no other meaning than that the vote of the Keystone State in October is always interesting as an index to the popular mind, yet it is entirely possible to elect a President with this Commonwealth voting against him in both October and November. But Pennsylvania will not vote against Grant on either occasion. For a time there were grave doubts what would happen, but those best acquainted with the affairs of the State now concede it certainly to the Republicans. If it were not Presidential year, Gen. Hartranft might possibly be defeated for Governor, but as it is, he is certain to be elected. I do not reach this conclusion from anything told me by Gen. Hartranft or any of the advocates of his nomination, but from sources entirely impartial between the various factions into which the Republicans are divided. And it must be explained that these factions divide wholly upon domestic matters, just as Col. Forney is bitterly hostile to Gen. Hartranft, but earnestly in favor of Gen. Grant. There are not Greeleyites enough among the Republicans of the State to furnish a first-class funeral with the necessary number of mourners, but there is a great deal of bickering about State matters that is, naturally enough, mistaken for disaffection reaching to national affairs, and hence has arisen the foolish notion that there is some doubt as to how Pennsylvania will vote. I would give more—and I think every one will—for the opinion of Hon. Glenni W. Schofield than that of any one man in the State upon this point, and he does not hesitate to say that the Republicans are absolutely certain to carry the State both in October and November. Some soreness concerning the State ticket is admitted, and considerable consequent disaffection in Lancaster and one or two of the western counties, but, as a whole, the people are satisfied, and before October everything will be arranged satisfactorily, and the full vote of the party polled for its nominees, which will give the State to the Republicans by 15,000 majority. Pennsylvania has not voted for a Democrat since 1856 in Presidential years, and her sturdy patriots do not intend that she shall do so now.

RHODE ISLAND AND VERMONT

are coupled together as two of the old invincibles, always reliable and needing no comment. Whenever anybody shall express the faintest doubt that their electoral votes will not be cast for Grant and Wilson, it will be time enough to give some facts concerning their political condition. Rhode Island voted on the first Wednesday in April, electing the Republican ticket, as usual, and Vermont will follow her example on the first Tuesday in September.

SOUTH CAROLINA

is conceded by every one to Grant and Wilson, but not for the true reason. Giving a Republican majority of 33,534 at the last election, it is claimed that the State is a rotten borough, founded upon the ignorance and barbarism of the late slaves, when in truth the Republican Party has within it much of the wealth, culture and intelligence of the white population, and is constantly gaining more. There is a very general desire to bury old issues out of sight, and there appears, consequently, among those who remain Democrats a favorable disposition toward Mr. Greeley, but there is great fear that there will soon be no Democrats left in South Carolina. The Republican Party, to the ambitious, seems the only means of political preferment, and many of the old Confederates are crowding into the ranks because of the generous treatment they received at the hands of Gen. Grant when they fell into his power by the fortunes of war. It is not to be denied that there has been too much of political corruption in the Republican Party of the State, but it is now being weeded out. The administration of Gov. Scott has been in some respects unfortunate, and Hon. James L. Orr is to be the Republican nominee for his place. He will have a powerful ally for the regeneration of his State in the New Democracy, an organization that has determined to stand by honest Republicans and to cast their votes for the first time for Gen. Grant. It may be added, but hardly as news, that Mr. Greeley has no followers among the blacks of South Carolina; he is not associated in their minds with any of those great events which resulted in their elevation, whereas Lincoln is enthroned in their hearts as their emancipator, and Grant as their armed deliverer.

TENNESSEE.

is a victim of Andrew Johnson's peculiar system of reconstruction, by which rebel sentiment was strengthened and Unionism crushed out. Giving a Democratic majority of 37,479 at the last election, she may be handed over without question to Mr. Greeley. Yet there are many among the more sanguine Republicans who declare that the contest between Grant and Greeley will be very close, which may prove to be the case, with even a chance in favor of Grant, which is not likely. Tennessee is almost certain to vote for the Baltimore nominee, whoever he may be, and is set down accordingly.

TEXAS AND VIRGINIA

must be classed in the same way, notwithstanding the hopes of the Republicans of the Old Dominion that they can tear her from her idols. All the power, patronage and drift of sentiment in both States is against Grant, and it would only lead to disappointment, as matters are at present, to expect an auspicious result in either, and both are, therefore, added to the scant column of the Baltimore nominee, even if he should prove to be Mr. Greeley.

WEST VIRGINIA

is a close State, having given a Democratic majority of 2,123 at the last election, and is claimed now for both parties. The chances for the Republicans to carry it are considered good by those who are best informed; but as it is only a chance, the State is placed among the doubtful.

WISCONSIN

is too reliable to need any extended remarks. Always true to the Republican cause, she is certain now to give her ten electoral votes to Grant and Wilson.

SUMMARY OF THE STATES.

This comprehensive survey of the nation I believe to be entirely fair, and I know it to be founded upon information carefully gathered and sifted. No statement has been made for which ample facts in verification cannot be furnished. Therefore it may be safely claimed that as affairs are at present, Grant and Wilson are sure to receive the votes of the following States: Alabama, 10; Arkansas, 6; California, 6; Illinois, 21; Iowa, 11; Kansas, 5; Maine, 7; Massachusetts, 13; Michigan, 11; Minnesota, 5; Mississippi, 8; Nebraska, 3; Nevada, 3; New-Hampshire, 5; New-York, 35; North Carolina, 10; Ohio, 22; Oregon, 3; Pennsylvania, 29; Rhode Island, 4; South Carolina, 7; Vermont, 5, and Wisconsin, 10—making a total of 24 States, with 230 electoral votes, or 55 more than a majority of the Electoral College. Mr. Greeley, as the Baltimore nominee, seems certain of Delaware, 3; Florida, 4; Georgia, 11; Maryland, 8; Kentucky, 12; Tennessee, 12; Texas, 8, and Virginia, 11—being 8 States, with 69 electoral votes, or 115 less than the number required for an election. The doubtful States are Connecticut, 6; Indiana, 15; Louisiana, 8; Missouri, 15; New-Jersey, 9, and West Virginia, 5—being 6 States, with 58 votes, of which Grant and Wilson have altogether the best chance to get all but the five votes of West Virginia.

WHY GRANT WILL TRIUMPH.

Reasons in abundance are given for the confidence among the Republicans which is shown by this calculation of the result of the pending contest, but the one of most weight is that the Administration of Gen. Grant has been in its effect upon the material interests of the nation an unprecedented success. I made it my business to make special inquiries of delegates from all the States as to the industrial condition of their respective localities, and from Maine to California, from the lakes to the Gulf, I met the same story of unparalleled prosperity. All the manufacturing, commercial and agricultural interests of the country are in far better condition now than when Gen. Grant took power, and the common sense of the people argues that if the Government had not maintained peace at home and abroad, and had not wisely and economically managed the national finances, these results could not have been attained. Month after month the public debt has been reduced, while at the same time tax after tax has been lifted from the shoulders of the people by a Republican Congress and President, and no amount of gossip about Grant's relations, no mistakes which have been made in appointments to office, can convince the people that the Administration which has accomplished such results does not deserve well of the country. Self-interest, the most powerful motive to human action, demands the continuance in office of the man under whom the nation has so prospered, and in this single consideration is the secret of the immense strength of Gen. Grant with the masses of the people. There is, of course, gratitude for his services during the war; but that dark epoch has now receded so far into the dim past, that were there nothing but gratitude for good deeds done so long ago, the hold of Grant on the popular heart would be comparatively feeble. It is to the good deeds present, and the certainty of their continuance in the future, that his popularity is due, and it is this which is to bear him a second time into the Presidential chair with such marks of popular confidence as no man has received since the "era of good feeling."

THE OSAGE INDIANS.

The Indians' Side of the Story—Agricultural Filibusters—A Magnificent Reserve Squatted Upon—The Troubles of Poor Lo—Justice Vindicated at Last.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Port Gibson, I. T., Thursday, June 6, 1862.

An interesting letter remains to be written about the Osage tribe of Indians, and if I fail to engage the attention of the reader in the performance of this task, it will be through no lack of suitable materials, but from a want of narrative power in the writer.

A RETROSPECT.

In my report of the last General Council held in Okmulgee, published in the Times last June, I made special mention of the Osage delegation which took part in the proceedings. It consisted of Pah-e-no-po-sha, Governor of the Great and Little Osages; Chitopa, Hard-rope, Sal-ba-tea, delegates; a Chief or head man, who attended as invited guest, (whose name I have forgotten,) and a half-breed interpreter, named James Bigheart. With the exception of the interpreter, who was a tall, gaunt man, with a beaming black eye, a weasel face and a contracted lower jaw, this delegation was composed of noble-looking chieftains, of splendid physical development. The tribe has a princely fund in the hands of the Government, derived from the sale of their lands; and these chiefs presented themselves in all the bravery of war paint, with massive nose and ear jewelry, immense necklaces of bear's claws, (a highly valued ornament,) elaborate embroidery, and scarlet blankets rivaling the Syrian dye. Their entrance into the Council Chamber always produced a profound impression; and the beholder in running his eye over the motley array of one hundred Indians, costumed in every variety of style, from the ignorant Keechie, with his faded breech cloth and tomahawk, to the educated Cherokee, having the dress and manners of a gentleman, would find his gaze most attracted by this magnificent group of Osage warriors. And when his mind had taken in the whole scene, these painted and bespangled braves would arrest his final glance, and the eye would dwell upon them as objects of commanding artistic interest. Their former homes were in Southern Kansas, and comprised an area of seven million acres. This reservation had been assigned them by Government, when population began to flock into Kansas, and the stereotyped promise was made them that they should be protected from intrusion by the whites. But what border settler was ever known to pay regard to Indian treaties? Millions of acres of fine land was open to the homesteader in other portions of the State, and land offices were accessible at every requisite point, where he could file his claim and acquire right to a farm under the sanction of laws made and provided. But stolen waters are sweet, and the rude frontiersman takes especial delight in staking out his quarter-section when he knows it has been stolen from an Indian.

AGRICULTURAL FILIBUSTERING.

This agricultural filibustering was allowed to go on until the Osage reservation swarmed with thousands of settlers. The Indians complained to the Superintendent that they were being stolen poor by their white neighbors. When the Osages went west on their annual buffalo hunt, the squatters captured their ponies, raided on their stores of provisions, cleaned out their lodges and destroyed what they they could not carry away. The matter was maturely considered by the Indian Department, and it was found that the evil had grown to such extensive proportions that it would now be difficult to deal with. To attempt to eject the settlers would require a small army, and would raise such a howl through the whole wesrern country that the eventual success of the "Quaker policy" would be seriously jeopardized. The old story was repeated. The weaker had to give way to the stronger. Superintendent Hoag called a council of the chief men of the tribe, and by skillful diplomacy, backed by his unbounded influence over the red race, induced them to part with their lands in trust to the Government, and take up a more confined home within the Territory, upon a tract of land ceded them by the Cherokee nation.

A CHIEF'S STORY.

When I made acquaintance with the delegation last June they had been living in the Territory some eight months. Joseph Pah-e-no-pa-sha, the Governor, I found to be an educated man, having a fair knowledge of the English tongue, and possessing a good share of natural astuteness. He retained the blanket, and spoke through an interpreter, as he was unwilling to lose influence with his tribe through adopting alien habits. I met him in Col. W. P. Ross' room (a Cherokee delegate) one day, and he departed from his unapproachable stolidity by extending his hand to me. I received the civility with intense gratification, and further placated the haughty chieftain by tendering him a cigar. An interesting conversation ensued. In answer to my inquiries, he said his people had not planted any corn that Summer, nor settled down to a permanent life. The western limit of their reservation was in dispute by the Cherokee nation. The preliminary survey of the ninety-sixth principal meridian, which formed the western boundary of their tract, gave them the Caney River, with a strip of five or six miles of rich bottom land. This the Cherokees claimed as belonging to them, and to settle the dispute an official survey had been ordered. If the resurvey should deprive the Osages of this strip, the reservation was not worth retaining, as it was rough, broken and uncultivable. They were again harassed with white intruders, he complained. Hundreds of settlers were swarming upon their land, and while Government showed such bad faith with its wards, he should make no effort to reclaim his people.

JUSTICE FOR THE RED MAN.

Every case has two sides. It is popular to paint the Indian race as thieving, treacherous and bloodthirsty, irreclaimable in their habits and an impediment to the advance of civilization. I have no desire to create any sympathy in their behalf, and in chosing a hero I should never imitate Fennimore Cooper. But I believe in simple justice. I approve the humane and wise policy of President Grant in seeking to solve the Indian problem by just dealings, and an effort at civilizing the aborigines instead of abandoning them to the tender mercy of the unscrupulous frontiersman, and then harrying them with fire and sword in their retributive attempts to gain wild justice.

THE BOUNDARY SETTLED.

The official survey has since been made, and the Caney River, with its strip of rich bottom land, is found to belong to the Cherokees. From Mr. Hoag I learn that the causes of dissatisfaction which rankled in the Osage Governor's mind at the time of his conversation with me, have been removed, and a more contented feeling is now manifested by the whole tribe. Last February a Commission, consisting of Messrs. Thomas Wistar, of Philadelphia, John B. Garrett, Philadelphia, and Geo. Howland, New-Bedford, Mass., all members of the Society of Friends, visited the Territory, under the appointment of Secretary Delano, to hold a council with the Osages and effect some equitable adjustment of their differences. In this they have happily succeeded. Their reservation has been extended from the ninety-sixth meridian to the Arkansas River east and west, and from the Kansas border to the Creek nation, north and south. Within this tract the Kaw Indians, a small tribe of about 700 persons, lately removed from Kansas, have been affiliated with the Osages.

THE SQUATTERS REMOVED.

The settlers upon the Osage lands have also been removed. A notice or manifesto was issued by the Superintendent after the convening of this council, in which he warned all persons illegally trespassing upon Indian lands to pull up stakes and depart. But hard words break no bones, and the settlers paid no attention to the summons. They are mainly ignorant and unscrupulous, and they listened to the counsels of persons (having a land speculation in view) who assured them that Government would not persist; that when the direct issue was between the white and the red races, the powers in Washington would never proceed against a community of hardy pioneers in the interest of a few thousand lazy, thieving Indian devils. But their predictions were falsified this time. An order issued from the War Department to Gen. Sheridan and through that officer to Gen. Pope, commanding the Department of the Missouri, at Fort Leavenworth, brought Major Upham upon the ground with a detachment of United States cavalry, who quietly notified the recalcitrant settlers that they must stand not upon the order of their going, but go at once. No violence was used in the ejection. The misguided squatters, seeing their case was a hopeless one, sullenly folded up their tents, loaded their wagons with their few calamities and took their solitary way to new homes.

NEEDLE-WOMEN OF BOSTON.

Liberal Bequest for their Benefit by the Late Samuel A. Way—Work to be Assured them, and Desirable Houses Furnished at Fair Rents.

From the Boston Journal, June 13.

The will of the late Samuel A. Way was entered for probate yesterday afternoon, but will not be acted upon until August. The original will was executed at Boston on the 21st of March, 1870, to which some seven codicils have since been added, the last bearing date of May 2, 1872. A large portion of his property is left in trust for the benefit of his wife, Sarah Ann Way, and his son, Chas. G. Way, the former also to receive an annuity of $12,0000 and the latter $4,000, with a request that of the income to which they are entitled, neither of them shall accumulate money, and thereby accumulate cares and perplexities, but shall devote what sums are not needed in living, to objects of charity. He gives his property on Bowdoin-street to Mr. James E. Sheldon; his property in Rochester, Vt., to his mother, Mrs. Lettice C. Whitton; to his partner, Asa B. Potter, $40,000; to Francis O. French, $25,000; to Edward M. Simonds, $15,000; to Charles Montague, $2,500; to his meritorious clerk, Charles J. Kellogg, $2,500; to John Dela, $2,500; to Ellis W. Morton, $5,000, to the children of Almira Dewey, $10,000 each; to the children of Addison M. Way and John M. Way $500 each per annum, and to the children of Jasper F. Ferdinand $2,000 on attaining their majority. After remembering his servants and others, Mr. Way directs that the residue of his property and all incomes accruing therefrom be held in trust by Wm. A. Richardson, Asa P. Potter, Charles G. Way and Ellis W. Morton, to be used for the benefit of the Needle Women of Boston. In carrying out this trust the following suggestions are made by Mr. Way:

"My design is to ameliorate to some extent the condition of the large class of industrious women of the City of Boston, who gain their living by sewing. As the chief embarrassment to which this class of persons are exposed result from a failure of employment at certain seasons, and a scarcity of suitable dwelling places, it is my wish that they may be relieved by a supply of work when ordinary sources fail, and by the provision of houses, containing convenient, healthful apartments, especially adapted to their accommodation. My principal object is to help workers to constant employment at fair prices, and to desirable houses at fair rents. When, however, the realization of this object is so far effected that the said trustees shall consider that in the furtherance of my design, direct charitable aid may be properly extended to those in need, who may be unable to work, I desire that such aid may be bestowed under suitable limitation. Except under extraordinary circumstances, it is my wish that such aid shall not be offered to any one person for a longer period than three successive months, preferring rather to extend temporary relief to the casually necessitous, than to provide for other cases which are better met by the liberal beneficence of our many charitable institutions. I suggest that the said trustees create from the property held in this trust two funds of such proportionate amounts as may seem expedient, one to be regarded as a labor fund and the other as a building fund; that these two funds be allowed to accumulate, if necessary, but as soon as practicable they be employed respectively in supplying work and building houses. The supply of work may be provided by investing capital in undertaking the manufacture and sale of the various descriptions of goods produced by sewing women. Stores and salesrooms may be opened, or goods may be manufactured upon contracts. They are, however, to be manufactured at times when sewing-women are in need of employment. The houses to be erected should be sufficiently large; to be built economically, they should be conveniently arranged, with ample provisions for light and air, and be pleasantly located. Apartments should be let to sewing-women at fair paying rents, and the proceeds applied in carrying out the intentions I have expressed. The foregoing suggestions will serve as an indication of my purpose. The development of my design and the details of the plan of operation I leave entirely to the trustees. To this end they may associate themselves in any lawful manner under act of incorporation, or otherwise, as they shall consider most advantageous."

Burning of the Turner Theatre in Rochester, by an Incendiary.

From the Rochester Democrat, June 13.

About 6 o'clock last evening a fire broke out in the rear part of the Turn Halle, on Clinton-street. The main building facing on Clinton-street connects with the old hall, which is of brick, and a story and a half in height. This structure was used as a hall and theatre; had a large stage at the further end, and expensive scenery. Back of this and connecting with it was a frame building used as a wardrobe and for dressing-rooms. The fire seems to have started in rear of the stage, and this, with the scenery and the wardrobe was soon enveloped in flames. Fortunately the fire was kept to the hall-building, but the main structure was considerably damaged by water. The frame part was soon burned to the ground, and of the hall only the walls were left standing. The buildings were owned by the Turn Verein, and were valued at $25,000. The hall part was valued at about $3,000, the stage cost $3,800, and the scenery $4,000, making the loss, exclusive of furniture, piano and properties, and damage to the main building, nearly $11,000. The Society are insured as follows:

|---|---|
| Westchester, New-York, theatre and decorations | $2,400 |
| North British, main building | 5,000 |
| National, New-York, old Turner Hall | 1,500 |
| National, Boston, theatre and decorations | 1,500 |
| Lancaster, Philadelphia, old Turner Hall | 1,500 |
| Gerard, Philadelphia, main building | 2,500 |
| Relief, New-York, main building | 2,500 |
| Adriatic, New-York, stock | 2,000 |
| Williamsburg City, stock | 1,250 |

It is impossible to account for the fire except on the supposition that it was of incendiary origin.

Sudden Rise in Lake Ontario at Oswego—Indications of a Submarine Earthquake.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

OSWEGO, N. Y., June 14.—A rare phenomenon was witnessed in this vicinity yesterday. At 3 P. M. the water in the lake and river rose two feet, remaining at that elevation sixty-four minutes. From that time until 7 o'clock the water alternately rose and fell, subsiding to the ordinary level at 7 o'clock, where it remained. Previous to the rise, a white squall on the lake gathered a high water-spout, which swept rapidly to the east, a rumbling sound was heard coming from the water, fish came to the surface of the water in great numbers, and bubbles of air rose rapidly and exploded. The symptoms seemed to indicate a submarine earthquake.

An Expedition to Land in Cuba from the Fannie—An Obvious Difficulty.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—A morning paper here gives a circumstantial account of an expedition of 12,000 men led by Gen. RYAN, which is to be landed on the coast of Cuba to aid the insurgents, and it gives a partial list of 100 picked men who go with him on the steamer Fannie, and an inventory of arms on board. The story obtains little credence here.

The Fannie was seen out of our waters by the revenue-cutter Northerner, and there was no reason to suspect that she was other than she purported to be, except that she had been recently sold to the owner of the Hornet and had its former crew on board. It is not deemed possible that she could, up to the present time, have received any such filibustering freight, as is stated to be on her, bound for the Cuban coast.

History of the Purchase and Movements of the Steamer Fanny—Log of the Northerner.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—The following information regarding the steam-ship Fanny, formerly the property of the Baltimore and Savannah Steam-ship Company, is reliable: She was purchased by J. MAYORGA, Jr., and a bill of sale lodged at the Baltimore Custom-house, where there was also information to throw suspicion around the transaction of the purchase and purpose of the parties, but without tangible evidence to base any action. The Fanny is of 800 tons burden, and is represented as not a fast vessel. Where the above information was derived it was stated that MAYORGA is the man who was concerned in the Hornet matter, and that the crew to be shipped was the old crew of the Hornet. The information was sent to the Government by the proper parties of all the facts in connection with the cargo, destination, &c., as far as was known. Capt. MOORE, of the revenue cutter Northerner, watched the steam-ship Fanny until 11 o'clock on the night of June 7. As she was passing out of the Capes about 2 P. M., seeing a tug-boat following her, he overhauled it, and found it to be the tug E. W. Gorgas, of New-York, and found on board of her a party apparently engaged by the Spanish Consul, of New-York, to watch the Fanny, as appeared in a letter of instructions to N. H. ESLING, who was in charge of the tug, from W. H. DAVIS, Superintendent of Pinkerton's National Detective Agency. Mr. ESLING had also two documents in Spanish purporting to have been issued by HEPOLITE DE MIRATE, Spanish Consul at New-York, and dated the 5th inst. Mr. ESLING informed Capt. MOORE that they were to protect the party in case they were over hauled by a Spanish man-of-war. The Captain of the Northerner, examined the vessel thoroughly, but found nothing on her but coal. She steamed after the Fanny, but about 6 P. M., the sea becoming rough and ahead, she made very bad weather of it, and at dark appeared to be running for the land. The Fannie, from the time of leaving the Capes, stood off about southeast, under sail and steam. After dark, thinking the Fannie would haul in toward Hatteras, the Northerner gave the chase up and hauled toward land, at right angles to the Fannie for about ten minutes, during which time Capt. MOORE took in all his lights, and then again kept down in sight of her light. At 10 P. M. the Fannie apparently stopped, as did also the Northerner for about twenty minutes, when her lights disappeared, and the Northerner steamed fast in the direction she was last seen. After running a sufficient time to get to her last position, could see nothing of her, or of a light. The night being dark, and thinking she might make her way to the southward, the revenue cutter stood in that direction until 4 o'clock in the morning, and then to the west until 5 A. M., when, after a careful survey of the horizon, and seeing nothing of a steamer, she returned to Fortress Monroe. The Fannie was about seventy-five miles south-east of Cape Henry, and thirty-five miles from the nearest land, when she was lost sight of.

Closing the Last Session of the Present Parliament—Farewell Speech of Lord Lisgar.

OTTAWA, Canada, June 14.—To-day the Governor-General, Lord LISGAR, closed the fifth and last session of the present Canadian Parliament with the usual formalities. In his speech he thanks the members for the time and attention they have devoted to public duties, and says that the interest and importance of various questions which have been discussed and decided will render the session memorable in the annals of the country. He adds:

Your adoption of the articles of the Treaty of Washington which affect Canadian interests has placed in a clear light your determination to share the fortunes of England. The generous disposition evinced under the trying circumstances of the time has added strength to the honorable position of Canada, both as regards the British Empire and the vast project of which you have so wisely matured the conditions, for carrying a railway to the shores of the Pacific, and which will open a pathway for England, as well in peace as in war, to the East, and will, I hope, be productive of most essential benefits to this country, by giving facilities to traffic of all descriptions, enhancing the value of public lands, promoting their settlement, and drawing closer the ties which bind the sister provinces together by easier access and multiplied intercourse. Few who have not considered the subject have any adequate conception how large an extent of economical advantage the possession of great navigable rivers like the St. Lawrence and its tributaries comprises. The outlay you have sanctioned on their improvement and on that of the auxiliary canals is a safe investment, and will be amply and speedily repaid by an augmented volume of trade flowing down all the channels opened to its course, for it will be swollen by the confluence of your own accumulating productions with those of your western neighbors. It is highly satisfactory that the condition of the revenue is so prosperous as to enable you to advance the interests of the country by commencing the construction of these works at once, without delay or misgiving. In Her Majesty's name I thank you for the supplies which you have so cheerfully granted. I heartily congratulate you on the prosperous condition of the revenue and on your having been enabled by repeal of the duties on tea and coffee to diminish the burdens of the people. The joint address with which you have honored me on the eve of my departure is most agreeable to my feelings. I shall, I assure you, hold in grateful recollection, all my life, the expression of your respect and esteem. I have watched with deep interest, in my official capacity, the proceedings of four sessions and made myself otherwise acquainted with the views and wishes of the Parliament and people of Canada, and I earnestly hope that the good intelligence which prevails between them and the people of England may last constant and unimpaired for generations to come. I now have the honor to bid you farewell, with those serious thoughts which the word "farewell" naturally awakens; with every acknowledgment of the many courtesies and effective assistance which I have received at your hands, and with the most cherished and ardent wishes for the welfare of the Dominion, with which, I rejoice to think, my humble name has been connected by an honorable tie for more than three years.

The "Right" Demand Recognition in the Administration—Emigration Congress—The Protestant Synod.

PARIS, June 14.—The "Right" in the Assembly have resolved to demand that President THIERS dismiss some of his Ministers and carry on the administration in accordance with the views of the majority. M. THIERS objects to a triumvirate, but favors the appointment of M. GREVY as Vice President.

The French Government has completed a draft of a postal convention with the United States.

Mr. WASHBURNE, the American Minister, has invited France to join the Emigration Congress to be held at Washington.

The Protestant Synod, now in session here, has just passed through an unusually animated discussion, which resulted in a schism of the Church. M. GUIZOT, the leader of the orthodox party, maintained the authority of the Scriptures, while Rev. M. COQUEREL, who is at the head of the Liberal Party, justified certain divergencies relative to the divinity and resurrection of Christ. The liberals, demurring at the action of the orthodox majority, withdrew from the synod.

ROWING.

Second Day of the Amateur Regatta at Philadelphia.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, June 14.—But little preparation was made prior to the beginning of the day's sport. About 2 o'clock a black cloud appeared in the north-east, and fitful gusts of cold wind carried clouds of dust from the shore over the now turbulent water, causing a general retreat. Every one sought shelter, and in the space of ten minutes the park appeared deserted.

A heavy shower fell, dampening the ardor of the spectators considerably; but about 4 the rain ceased, the wind lulled, and though the sun failed to break through the heavy leaden sky, the place again became animated.

The four-oared gig race was the first in order. Mr. EDWARD LUKINS, acting as starter today, called the race at 5 o'clock, the following crews responding: Quaker City, of Philadelphia—J. D. McBeath, stroke; E. Reyborn, C. R. Adams, Frank Wood, bow; G. D. Stinson, coxswain; position, east shore. Crescent, also of Philadelphia—W. C. Rehn, stroke; H. F. Whitmer, W. C. Brown, T. B. Harper, bow; W. A. Steel, coxswain; position near western shore. Couper crew, of Savannah, Ga.—Hal Schley, stroke; George G. Kimball, Geo. Schley, James McC. Schley, bow. This crew carried a little boy as a coxswain, and the Philadelphia clubs entered a protest, causing considerable argument, but finally peace was restored, and at 5¾ the starter gave them a neat send off. But few strokes were pulled when the Quaker City crew showed a little in front, with the other two close on the stern. A sharp contest ensued. At the first half mile the Couper and Crescent crews were abreast, the Quaker City boat having now obtained the lead of a length. The Couper gig fell a little astern here, and the Quaker City led to the turning stake, which it reached fifteen seconds ahead of the Crescent boat, which turned second, the latter being on the turn when the Couper boys arrived at the turning point. The Quaker City crew made a splendid turn and got well under way when the Crescents began to take the home course, the Coupers bringing up the rear. The race now became very exciting, the Couper boys rowing a lightning stroke of forty-six to the minute; but the positions of the boat were but little changed, despite the heroic efforts of the two crews rowing astern. The following was the time: The Quaker City reached the home stake-boat in 19:21; Crescent second, in 19:35, and the Couper last, in 19:52. The distance rowed was three miles.

The single scull race was looked upon as the most interesting feature of the day, and by quite a number as the main race of the regatta. The entries for this race were originally nine in number, but five having withdrawn, only four replied to the starter's call: WM. GANNON, of the Gulick Club, New-York; R. B. DEELEY, of the same Club. The former having won the choice of position took the eastern shore, and DEELEY, being last in luck, had to go to the extreme west. JNO. LAVENS, of the Philadelphia Club, next to him; GEO. ENGLEHARDT, of the Sewanhaka Club, of Greenpoint, Long Island, finding his place between LAVENS and GANNON. At 6:55 they got away without any advantage, but DEELY fairly lifted his boat out of the water, and in twenty strokes crossed LAVENS' bow and went ahead of ENGLEHARDT, who had also started off very handsomely. DEELY did his utmost to outgeneral ENGLEHARDT, giving him the wash, without success. LAVENS and GANNON about abreast of each other, straight on the original course. DEELEY now crossed and recrossed ENGLEHART, giving him a tremendous wash, and as the latter, in making a spurt, attempted to force himself from this annoyance, DEELEY crossed him. DEELEY was seen to raise his hand, but no foul or collision could be seen from the judges' boat. Mr. O. M. REMINGTON, whose valuable assistance had been secured as referee, ordered them on. At almost the same instant a shell appeared on the scene as if by magic, propelled by the stalwart arms of JOHN BIGLIN, who had been laying close under the eastern shore. He seemed to fly over the water, and brought DEELEY to terms, compelling him to give ENGELHARDT a fair chance to win the race. ENGLEHARDT slipped around BIGLIN'S boat and went to the front with a brilliant spurt, obtaining a lead which could not be wrested from him again. DEELEY now contented himself by holding LAVENS a while, the latter rowing handsomely, paying no attention to what was going on around, neither quickening or relaxing his speed from the start to the finish. GANNON, who had hardly rowed single a dozen times during the present season, gradually dropped astern. ENGELHART reached the turning-stake in 16:30; DEELEY, 16:50, and LAVENS in 17 minutes. On the homestretch ENGELHARDT led at his ease, rowing in splendid style, DEELEY rowing a game stern-race, about ten lengths behind the leader, and two in advance of LAVENS, GANNOV now being considered out of the race. When opposite Ormstead Landing ENGELHARDT slackened his speed, and DEELEY, thinking that the powers of the former were declining, made a beautiful dash to lessen the distance between himself and ENGELHARDT, but the latter allowed him to come just so far and no further. LAVENS being now left quite in the rear. When within a quarter of a mile of the score DEELEY gathered himself up for a final effort and reduced the distance between himself and his leader with a spurt which astonished all who witnessed it. But ENGLEHARDT was not to be beaten, and he crossed the line the winner in 34:20. DEELEY'S time was not taken, as he drew off before reaching the home-stake. LAVENS also brushed up at the end, crossing in but a few lengths behind, and a few minutes more brought in GANNON, (who had been left behind the tug,) with a good dash. This race was rowed over the five-mile course, from the Reading Railroad Bridge down to Connection Bridge and back. Mr. LAVENS was not in very good condition, having lost about three weeks practice. He wished to withdraw, but the Philadelphians insisted upon it that he should enter for competition, which he did simply at their earnest request. The prizes will be presented to-morrow. The crews from other cities, which were quartered with the Philadelphia clubs, are unanimous in their praise of the manner in which they have been treated by the Philadelphians.

THE TREASURY.

Foreign Negotiations of United States Bonds.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 14.—There is some misapprehension as to the action of the Treasury Department in its foreign negotiations of bonds, and the statements which have been made to the effect that the Secretary has decided to discontinue negotiations because of the uncertain condition of the treaty are calculated to give wrong impressions. The fact is, as denied from official sources, that the negotiations with foreign bankers, capitalists and others by our Government have not been ended. What decisions the Secretary of the Treasury may in future make are not at present known. It is plausible that he will be guided by circumstances, but up to the present time it is positively certain that no reasons have been presented to the Department for discontinuing its negotiations with European bankers and business men.

The following nominations were made: For Governor, S. B. CHASE, of Susquehanna County; Supreme Judge, Joseph Henderson, of Washington County; Auditor-General, BARR SPANGLER, of Lancaster County; Congressmen-at-large, Col. GEO. F. MCFARLAND, A. J. CLARK, and B. RUSH BRADFORD.

The Cave in the Little Emma Mine—Polygamy at Salt Lake.

SALT LAKE CITY, June 13.—It is reported that the cave in the Little Emma Mine has caused a temporary suspension in the excavation of ore, which, at the time of the disaster, was being taken out in large quantities, and that a shaft is now being sunk 300 feet outside the limits of the area covered by the patent to the mine, and on the ground of the San Francisco Emma Mine.

An examination of the records in the Endowment House discloses the fact that but three plural marriages were celebrated during the three months ending June 1.

THE TEMPEST.

The Effects of the Storm in The City and Vicinity.

Trees Uprooted in the Streets—Buildings Blown Down—Damage to the Shipping—Accidents in Various Parts of Long Island.

The mercury, which marked 74° in the thermometer, yesterday, at 6 A. M., reached 90° at noon. Here it rested for a time, while portentous clouds gathered and hung like a dark pall over the City, began about 1 o'clock to drip rain-drops the size of a silver quarter on the pavements, and the atmosphere became tolerable. At 3 P. M. the mercury had fallen to 87°. About this time the wind, which was blowing from the north-east, freshened into a gale, and drove the black clouds swiftly across the horizon. For a brief half hour the darkness of twilight brooded over the City, the rain fell in a drenching shower, and the blast swept through the streets at a furious rate. Umbrellas were but slight protection; the frailer kind were speedily demolished, and the heavy rain forced its way through the best silk and gingham coverings. Awnings were blown down, signs and shutters were forced from their fastenings, and in many quarters of the City trees were uprooted and prostrated in the streets. Quite a number were thus overthrown in the Ninth Ward. At the corner of Fourth and Macdougal streets a huge tree was thrown across the tracks of the Bleecker-street and Seventh-avenue Railroads, and entirely blockading the tracks for some hours.

A large tree in front of St. Mark's Church, at Stuyvesant-street and Second-avenue, was blown down, carrying a pole and section of the fire telegraph wires.

An unfortunate pedestrian, MICHAEL COLLINS, of No. 60 Clarkson-street, while passing through Grove-street, was struck by a falling plank and seriously injured.

Gramercy Park was much damaged. Huge trees were torn up by the roots and hurled against the iron railing of the Park. In fact, the wreck of timber in that entire neighborhood was general, and in some instances the cross streets were completely blockaded.

Two large trees in University-place, one of which stood on the corner of Thirteenth-street and the other near Ninth-street, were prostrated, as was also a tree in Union-square, which fell on a passing coach.

Trees were blown down at No. 220 Waverley-place, No. 234 West Fourth-street, No. 18 Bank-street, No. 4 Barrow-street, No. 148 West Eleventh-street, No. 321 Bleecker-street, No. 52 Grove-street, No. 106 Bedford-street and No. 296 West Eleventh-street.

The awning at No. 317 Bleecker-street was blown to shreds, and the tin roof of the house No. 306 Bleecker-street was ripped up and blown into fantastic shapes by the force of the gale.

A large plate-glass window, said to be valued at $200, was blown out of the front of INDEN'S bakery, No. 508 Hudson-street.

While a boy named JAMES LARKIN, of No. 132 East Houston-street, was passing FISHER & BIRD'S marble-yard, No. 97 East Houston-street, a marble slab was blown down on him, and his left ankle was badly crushed.

In the sparsely-settled sections of the island, between Fifty-eighth-street and Harlem, the gale caused great alarm. Boards were torn from the roofs of the shanties occupied by the poor squatters about that neighborhood, and the cowering inmates trembled for fear their frail tenements would be crushed about their heads. In the harbor, vessels scudded under bare poles to a safe anchorage, and tossed uneasily on the rough water until the storm abated. The damage to sailing craft, as far as could be ascertained, was confined to the snapping of the frailer masts, the tearing of sails incautiously spread, and was otherwise of an unimportant character. Terrific crashes of thunder and vivid flashes of lightning accompanied the storm.

There was a lull in the storm until about 5 o'clock, when a torrent of rain fell, lasting about fifteen minutes. After this the air became pleasant, and at 6 P. M. the mercury had fallen to 62°.

LONG ISLAND.

The storm burst upon Greenpoint with terrific violence. The water came down in sheets, mixed with hail, which made sad havoc. The list of accidents so far as could be ascertained last night were as follows:

A man, name unknown, was in a small boat just off the Greenpoint Ferry slip, when the gale struck the craft and capsized it. As the tide was at old flood, the man swam ashore at Pottery Point.

Another man, on board the yacht Wanderer, lying off the foot of Kent-avenue, was blown overboard and drowned. The violence of the storm prevented any one going to his rescue.

A new three-story frame house, on the corner of Broadway and Lynch-street, Williamsburg, was blown down in the gale. Several workmen were in the building at the time, and GEORGE BEERS, gas-fitter, of North Sixth-street, was instantly killed; WM. BAYER, of No. 239 Humboldt-street, had a leg broken; JOHN DIPLER, of No. 180 Meserole-street, was seriously injured in the back, and GREGORY GOETZ and ROBT. MCMULLEN were also seriously injured internally. The wounded men were all conveyed to their homes.

The following buildings were also dismantled about the same time: The New-York Dye Works, Messrs. HARWAY & Co., corner of Greene and West streets, had half the roof blown away; one of the falling timbers struck and instantly killed CHRISTOPHER ROSSER, of No. 46 Freeman-street, a boy six years of age, who was playing near the works at the time. One stick of timber from the building, 3½ inches by 6 inches, and 30 feet in length was carried 250 feet and driven through a shed in the yard of the premises occupied by Mr. FRANK SMITH, who was in the yard at the time, and who narrowly escaped. The damage done to the works is estimated at $3,000. The house No. 194 West-street, owned by JOHN GILLIG, lost its roof, as did also the buildings Nos. 172 and 174 West-street.

About 3½ o'clock the hurricane struck Long Island City; it was so violent that the ferry-boats were unable to get out of the slips. The tug Lenox, with six schooners in tow, was proceeding down the East River, and so violent was the gale that the fleet was driven with great violence on to the Hunter's Point Docks, and two of the vessels were driven into one of the ferry slips. It was some hours before they were extricated, and all of the vessels were more or less injured. The lighter Veto, which was opposite the mouth of Newtown Creek when the gale struck, had her sails torn into shreds and her masts sprung, and was in a sinking condition when a tug went to her assistance. The schooner A. C. Jewett, 360 tons burden, was moored on the Brooklyn side of Newtown Creek. The violence of the gale broke her from her mooring, and she was driven down with great violence toward the draw-bridge, which was open at the time. The keepers attempted to close the bridge, but before they could do so the vessel struck one end of it, which was driven on to her deck, staving it in, knocking the bridge off the pivot, and making a complete wreck of it. The damage to the bridge will probably not fall short of $20,000. The damage to the schooner is very heavy.

Four men were in a boat opposite the mouth of Newton Creek when the gale struck, and almost instantly the boat sank from under them. The wind was so strong that it seemed to blow on the surface of the water, and instead of sinking they were blown the entire width of the creek to the shore, where they clung to the piles until rescued.

The 3½ Flushing train was just opposite where the gale reached that place, and before a word of warning could be given, the tall bell-tower by the side of the track was struck by the wind and thrown across the track, crushing through the train, demolishing the locomotive and the forward end of the passenger-car. Fortunately there were few passengers on the train, and none on that portion of the car.

THE STORM AT STATEN ISLAND.

Yesterday afternoon ISAAC BERTINE, WM. MOORE, MICHAEL VAN KERTZ and THOS. MCGERRY manned the sloop-yacht Madhen, of Stapleton, and started out for a pleasure sail in the harbor. She was caught in the gale, capsized, and the occupants had a struggle for their lives. Fortunately, they managed to get hold of the bottom of the yacht, to which they clung until rescued by a boat from the shore. The yacht was also saved and brought to the Coast Wrecking Company's dock.

Effect of the Storm in Other Localities.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., June 14.—A terrible storm, accompanied with thunder and lightning, occurred at Dunnings this afternoon. Mrs. DINGS and Mr. WRIGHT were sitting at a table eating when their house was struck by lightning, the fluid passing down the chimney, striking the table at which they were sitting, and upsetting it and demolishing everything on it, but strange to say no one was injured. The house was badly damaged and also the furniture.

TOWNERS, Putnam County, N.Y., June 14.—The severest storm of rain and wind that has ever visited this section to the recollection of the oldest inhabitants, passed over this town to-day. Several buildings were damaged. PENNY'S slaughter-house and wagon-shed were badly damaged. Many large trees were blown down and blocked the roads. Considerable damage was done to the crops. The storm was of short duration.

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Failure of a Desirable Measure—The New-Hampshire Senatorship—Courtesy to the British Band Expected—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Among the bills which passed one House of Congress only during the session just closed, and which, therefore, failed to become laws, was one reappointing Ex-Gov. FREDERICK SMYTH, of New-Hampshire, Gen. B. F. BUTLER and Gen. THOMAS O. OSBORNE, of Illinois, managers of the National Asylum for Volunteers. When it was first introduced, Gen. FARNSWORTH, on account of his dislike for BUTLER, objected and caused delay, but on the last day of the session, Gen. COBURN called it up, and it was passed under suspension of the rule by more than a two-thirds vote. The bill changed the name asylum to home and gave each inmate a suit of soldier's clothes.

SENATOR PATTERSON.

Many expressions of regret are heard on all sides here at the defeat of Senator PATTERSON for re-election. He had gained a high place in the Senate, to which body he was an honor as he was to the State he represented, and without disparagement to any of the candidates for his place, there was a general desire that New-Hampshire might send him here for another term.

SENATOR WILSON'S SEAT.

The election of Mr. WILSON as Vice-President is regarded as so certain, and his Senatorial demise thus so sure, that his effects pertaining to that office are already sought to be administered on. Gen. AMES, of Mississippi, has made application to be assigned his seat when he leaves it, and a New-Hampshire officer of the Senate has applied for the seat that Gen. AMES will thus leave for Mr. WADLEIGH, Mr. PATTERSON'S prospective successor.

COURTESY TO THE GRENADIER GUARDS' BAND.

The Marine Band, thirty-three in number, HENRY FRIES, leader, left to-night for New-York, under orders to report to Col. F. E. HOWE, to aid in receiving the band of the British Grenadiers, to escort that band to Boston, and to remain in attendance on the Jubilee until the 4th of July. The band has made great progress during the few months Mr. FRIES has been its leader, but it was only last week that it received its new set of silver instruments, and its members feel they will meet the national bands of Europe at a disadvantage.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

THE SIGNAL SERVICE WEATHER REPORTS.

The Signal Service weather reports, which were only intended originally for the benefit of commerce, have proved so useful to the agricultural interests of the country also, that Congress has authorized the War Department to extend the working of the system so as to provide specially for these interests by the collection of reports from various points in the interior.

PENSIONS.

Pensioners, on account of the loss of any member or members of the body are, under the act of June 6, 1866, entitled to an increase by the act of Congress passed May 27, 1872. To secure such increase no intervention of an attorney and no formal application will be necessary. The Commissioner of Pensions will at an early day inform the public of the steps requisite to establish the claim.

THE CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Third Day's Session of the Convention at Lowell—The Bible in the Schools.

LOWELL, Mass., June 14.—This was the third day's session of the Young Men's Christian Association Convention. The preliminary devotional meetings were well attended, and instead of a general convention, the time, until 11 o'clock, was spent in separate meetings of the different classes of Association's representatives. The official delegates occupied the body of the church, with PETER B. SIMMONS, of Philadelphia, in the chair. A resolution was offered by Rev. T. A. FERNLY, of Pennsylvania, to the following effect:

"That this International Young Men's Christian Association Convention pledges itself to resist to the utmost all attempts that have been made or that may be made to exclude the Word of God from the public schools of this nation, and that where it is temporarily excluded we will use special efforts to put the Bible in every Roman Catholic family."

Considerable discussion was excited by the proposition, and among other speakers G. B. STROUT made an argument in opposition to the resolution, maintaining that the country is a free one, where no trammels of sect should be established, or attempts at undue religious pressure sustained. These expressions were greeted with hisses, mingled with faint applause, from every quarter of the house, and great excitement prevailed. The efforts of the presiding officer and the good judgment of some of the delegates quelled the excitement, and an apology was made for the acts of disapproval, and Mr. STROUT concluded his remarks. The resolution was passed.

The regular proceedings of the Convention commenced at 11 o'clock, when the topic—"Lectures and Lecturers"—was treated upon by Rev. Mr. MARTIN, of New-York.

The Convention re-assembled at 3 o'clock, and, after devotional exercises, the Standing Committee reported a series of resolutions:

First—Indorsing the Association Monthly as the official organ of the Association, and authorizing the Executive Committee to provide for its publication in its present form, and, if deemed expedient, to make a weekly issue, &c. The resolution called out a lively debate.

Mr. COWDRES, of Detroit, thought in its present form it was read by but few, containing, as it does, mainly reports of societies, and advertisements. It was not read by the masses, and not worth ten cents a ton.

Mr. WINDERSOLL desired a daily paper that would give current news, and interest visitants to reading-rooms.

Mr. FRINK wanted an organ to make a prominent feature of proper literature, for a news-stand selling the current morbid literature of the day was worse than four lager-beer saloons.

Mr. BRAINARD, of the Executive Committee, said if ample aid had been given to its support the publishers would not have been obliged to apply to bankers of New-York, Washington and Philadelphia for advertisements. If a tithe of the money expended in the erection of public edifices and elegant rooms throughout the country had been applied in this direction, a far different sheet could have been circulated.

A member thought that an active daily of 10,000 would be worth more to the Association than a million of the monthly as now conducted. He wanted a paper that would be sought after by adults, and that children would cry for. Mr. SEARS advocated the Daily Witness, of New-York, to supply the want.

The resolution was finally passed, and a resolution to appoint an Executive Committee for three years, introduced. Considerable difference of opinion arose, as the report embraced all the old members who had served six years, and all from New-York.

Mr. ANDERSON, from Boston, thought other places than New-York entitled to it. Cincinnati had money and brains, and so had other cities. He wanted an infusion of new blood.

Dr. CURRY followed, and desired new blood, and moved an addition of three, one each from Cincinnati, Philadelphia and Boston.

Mr. BRAINARD desired the report laid on the table, as he and his associates desired to be relieved from the arduous duties they had in the past been called upon to perform. Not accepted.

Mr. MARTIN, of Brooklyn, said that although contiguous to the City of New-York, the Brooklyn Association are unable to find out anything from the Executive Committee.

Mr. BRAINARD replied that, as far as combinations are concerned, he had never yet been able to get the man he wanted for President of the Association.

Mr. MILLER made a happy reply. The resolution as reported was passed.

The following are the names of the Committee: Chas. Brainard, W. F. Lee, Jos. Stokes, Jr., Timothy G. Lulloway, Jr., Thos. Cochrane, Jr., and Roswell Miller. Various other resolutions were acted on relative to general business, and to-morrow at 10½ o'clock fixed as the time for subscription to the organ of the Association. All the little unpleasantnesses were amicably adjusted after the adjournment. The showers of to-night will prevent any out-of-doors assembling.

INDIANA.

Mr. Voorhees and the Baltimore Convention—An Important Correction.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 14.—The Terre Haute Journal, to-morrow, will contain an article denying that VOORHEES was defeated as district delegate to the Baltimore Convention. The Journal says he refused to permit the use of his name, but the delegates from the Sixth District unanimously agreed to present him as a delegate from the State at large. This was without Mr. VOORHEES' knowledge or consent, and for the purpose of preventing the action of the district, on the evening before, from being misunderstood or misrepresented.

NEW-ORLEANS.

Death of a Confederate Officer—Gov. Warmoth Declines a Republican Nomination—The Baton Rouge Convention.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

NEW-ORLEANS, June 14.—Gen. DANIEL W. ADAMS, a distinguished Confederate officer in the late war, died suddenly yesterday. He was a native of Kentucky, and son of GEORGE ADAMS, United States District Judge of Mississippi. Deceased was one of the leading men in the Liberal movement in this State, being Chairman of one of the principal Committees of that party.

Gov. WARMOTH has published a letter declining the Republican nomination for Governor, and severing entirely his connection with the Republican Party. The letter is full of spleen, malice, envy and all uncharitableness against everybody, and President GRANT in particular. The Republicans, in fact all the honest people of this State, rejoice at this good riddance of a dangerous politician. This political hari-kari is now complete.

Delegates to the Convention at Baton Rouge, on the 19th, were chosen yesterday, with a majority favorable to BILLING for Governor.

WASHINGTON TREATY.

Strenuous Efforts to Force Debate in the House of Commons.

Mr. Gladstone Promises to Produce the Papers at Once.

Arrival of the Arbitrators and Counsel at Geneva.

Probability of Postponement or a Secret Session.

Action of the German Emperor on the San Juan Case.

IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS.

Questions Asked and to be Asked on the Effect of Postponement.

LONDON, June 14.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, Mr. GREGORY gave notice that he should question the Government as to the effect the postponement of arbitration will have on the settlement of the San Juan boundary and the Fishery questions, and on the Canadian loan.

Mr. GLADSTONE replied to an interrogatory from Mr. HORSMAN, that the papers concerning recent negotiations with the United States would include everything except Sir STAFFORD NORTHCOTE'S declaration as to the responsibility of the British Commissioners.

Mr. HORSMAN wanted to know whether the records of the Joint High Commissioners would contain any minutes with regard to the indirect claims, or show whether the question of these claims was raised at all; also, whether they would prove that the withdrawal of the said claims only rested on an understanding between the Commission.

Mr. GLADSTONE required notice of the question before giving it a full answer; but he would state that no communication had passed between the Commissioners and Her Majesty's Government showing that the exclusion of the indirect claims rested on an understanding.

Mr. CORRANCE asked if Her Majesty's Government intended to proceed with arbitration on matters which had no relation with the Alabama claims, the Fenian raids, the fisheries, or Canadian matters.

For the purpose of obtaining the floor, Mr. CORRANCE made a motion to adjourn. He criticised the Government, charging it with neglecting the Canadas, and exacting their assent to the Treaty of Washington under duress.

Mr. GLADSTONE protested against the assertion. He claimed that his answers were misunderstood. He had said that the postponement of the Board of Arbitration would not affect the treaty; but the defeat of one of its provisions might, as when one of the wheels of a carriage failed all failed.

In reply to Viscount BURY'S inquiry of last night, Mr. GLADSTONE promised that all the papers would be laid before the House to-night.

THE TRIBUNAL.

At the various stations coming down the English and American Commissioners on alighting from their carriages entered into conversation, and the members of their suites were introduced. The whole party arrived at Geneva at 11 o'clock, the Britishers going to the Hotel des Bergnes, and the Americans to the Grand Hotel. Several members of the family of Mr. BANCROFT DAVIS are here. The family of Mr. EVARTS will come shortly. Count SCLOPIS is at the Hotel de la Paix. Mr. ADAMS, who has been here some weeks, lives at the Boissiere. Baron ITAJUBA resides also in the country. Both have residences close to Geneva. M. STAEMPFLI has not yet arrived. He is expected on this evening's express-train. After breakfast Messrs. CUSHING, EVARTS, BANCROFT DAVIS and WAITE paid formal visits, first to Count SCLOPIS, President of the tribunal, then to the English Commissioners, who were absent, subsequently to Baron ITAJUBA and Mr. ADAMS. The arbitrators meet Saturday at 12 o'clock, noon, at the Hotel de Ville. It has been intimated that the result will be unsatisfactory to well-wishers of the treaty. The Queen's messenger has just arrived with dispatches.

Probable Action of the Board—Postponement or a Secret Session.

GENEVA, June 14.—Nearly all the gentlemen connected with the Board of Arbitration, under the Treaty of Washington, have arrived here. It is believed that the Board will adjourn immediately after meeting; but if an agreement to adjourn cannot be reached, and the meeting is prolonged, the sessions will undoubtedly be secret.

OUR STREETS.

Present Condition of the Down-Town Wards.

Dirt Everywhere—Bad Pavements and Dilapidated Culverts—Danger of Disease in the Streets.

The recent transfer of the street-cleaning business to the supervision of the Police might reasonably be supposed to work well according to the proverb that new brooms sweep clean. There is certainly an improvement, especially in those Wards which are traversed by business men. In some of the lower Wards, however, there is an amount of filth which is prejudicial to the public health, and must tend to intensify all maladies in its immediate neighborhood. The First Ward, espeially, is in just that condition which invites the cholera fiend. The stench that pervades all the lower streets is something so overpowering that those who are not used to it feel faint and giddy in traversing the hideous locality. It is true that the habits of the people who live there are not by any means what they should be, but the prime reason will be found in the faulty paving and guttering of the streets. Church-street, below Fulton, and also South Fifth-avenue, in the Eighth Ward, both important thoroughfares, have been left unpaved. The consequence is that they cannot be properly cleaned. In almost every locality which has been reported as filthy this appears to be either at the bottom of the trouble or connected with it. The selfishness that gives good pavements to the wealthy and lets the poor do as they best can with their streets is very short-sighted. Out of these streets come the malarious mists that slay by tens of thousands, and the poisonous vapors that make mild diseases malignant and take from very young children the power of struggling successfully through infantile complaints. We present below a survey of the down-town streets as observed by our reporters yesterday:

FIRST WARD.

This Ward is very extensive. It stretches from Liberty-street, west of Broadway, to Maiden-lane, east of Broadway, across the island, and contains all the streets included in that space. As a general statement, it may be said that the western part of this Ward is in the worst possible condition. There are parts of it where it is torture for a man with a keen sense of smell to walk, and yet human beings have to live here. The most filthy place is Church-street, or rather that part of it which is between the corner of Trinity Church-yard and Morris-street. The street has neither pavement nor guttering, and the great teams of Adams Express Company have worked up the garbage and the soil into a black morass of the most pestilential character. There are great heaps of decaying matter strung along the sides, contributed by the tenement-houses which have share of the filth, with the great companies whose Broadway stores have their rear buildings here. There is a smell here of the most excruciating intensity. The streets leading out of it are nearly as bad. Edgar-street has four great heaps of decaying matter which should have been removed a week ago, but which apparently have been forgotten. It is just to state that the street is too narrow for any wagon to pass down it. The gutter is in bad condition, and there is stagnant water on the north side. Rector-street, tolerably clean in other places, is in a filthy condition where it joins West-street. Morris-street has three blocks, from Broadway to Church, from Church to Washington and from Washington to West. The first is bearable, the second and third intolerably stinking and pestilential. The pavement is in ruins, the guttering in holes. There are heaps of rubbish and decaying matter in every direction, and in every hole there is a pool of stagnant water. Greenwich-street is swept daily, but the garbage is not removed daily, and the heaps both offend the eye and poison the air. Washington-street is as bad as Church. It is a great place for itinerant fish-venders, who go from door to door and leave the entrails reeking in the sun. The place is lively with huge flies, and there is a general stench which makes the visitor feel, when he gets into Broadway, as if he had escaped out of hades into paradise. On the eastern side of the island the First Ward is almost blameless, with the exception of a very disgusting garbage-box in Marketfield-street, which belongs to a tenement-house in Whitehall-street, and some stagnant water on the sidewalks, produced by the dripping of a rain-pipe, which has no gutter, there is little to find fault with.

SECOND WARD.

The whole of this Ward, with few exceptions, was clean, except the litter arising from constant traffic and business. This dirt was generally loose, and not at all offensive, except in the neighborhood of Fulton Market and the fruit dock at Burling-slip. Near the market could be seen barrels of decayed potatoes, garbage, &c., waiting for removal; but, even while waiting, the flies gathered about the refuse like bees about a hive. The offensive odor from the fish market was very great, although many of the marketmen use carbolic disinfecting powder to remove the effluvia, and destroy the decaying matter. One principal fault, however, appears to be that the market itself is not kept clean, the gutters being choked, and the floors very seldom scraped as they should be; consequently the decaying matter, trodden into the boards, becomes offensive, because the brooms cannot remove it. The stall-keepers are not all as careful as they might be, and thus add to the filth which gradually collects around a market. The fruit dock yesterday presented a feature of rotten and damaged fruit, which, being useless for market purpose, were thrown around for youthful hands to gather up, and thus engender disease by their eating gratuitously that which cannot be sold. Much, however, was left behind for the sun's rays to act upon, and the odor arising from the rotting fruit is borne over the City by the easterly winds, which also drive the flies, with these gathered poisons, into the houses of the vicinity.

THIRD WARD.

This is a little Ward. It runs from Duane and Reade streets to Liberty, and contains all the streets from Broadway to the river. The worst place here is Park-place, the last three blocks of which present a chaos of sundry disagreeable ingredients. They are building on the third block from the river, and also on the first; but the street is unpaved, and the second block has choice collections of rotten oranges, lemons, &c., scattered with a free hand over it. Washington Market is well looked after, but the guttering is in places very broken, and there are depressions where water collects. It cannot become stagnant, however, because they are always turning on the hydrant and driving off that which has collected. West-street is here, upon the whole, satisfactory, and there can be no doubt that a vigilant eye looks after the cleaners here. The majority of the streets, or rather the lower streets, are not swept until 2 in the afternoon. Some change should be made in this. It is true they cannot be swept in the morning on account of the market people, but 2 in the afternoon is rather too late.

FOURTH WARD.

Cherry-street has always been noted for its filth, and although there has been lately great improvement, it is yet far from clean. In fact, the inhabitants seem to revel in dirt, and wish pedestrians to enjoy a little of what pleases them. Consequently the roadways were yesterday ornamented with heaps of egg-shells, garbage, fish-heads and cleanings, remnants of animal food, &c., all of which festered in the sun's rays. In the various slips it was evident the sweepers had been to work, for the dirt heaps were apparent at intervals, waiting removal. Roosevelt-street was, speaking in general terms, clean, the ash-boxes being emptied and the dirt removed, but the imperfect gutters gathered filth and impure water to a very great extent, the only remedy for which seems to be a copious stream from a hydrant. James-street was also a specimen of the filthy habits of the residents, who never hesitate to empty their refuse into the street, providing an officer is not looking. Water-street was also very dirty in many places, the filth, however, appearing to be only of one morning's gathering, as the centre of the roadway was comparatively clean. Wherever throughout the Ward the filth had been collected, the surroundings manifested the fact that the inhabitants were to blame, and that it was the result of willful carelessness.

FIFTH WARD.

This Ward contains all the streets, from Canal to Duane streets, between Broadway and the river. With the exception of those in the neighborhood of Broadway, and the great thoroughfare, East Broadway, most of these streets are swept and cleaned in the afternoon. They are not regularly cared for, but there is a great improvement. On West-street the sidewalk is generally occupied by wagons, and the gutters are covered with wooden boards. Where this is the case, the gutters are invariably dammed, and filled either with stagnant water or putrid mud. There are many feed-stores here also, and the hay chokes up the gutters so that when it rains the street must inevitably be flooded; as there is quite a slope here to the docks on the other side. Desbrosses-street, the inhabitants declare, has not been cleaned for a week, and the garbage on the pavement, and the stagnant water in the gutters, seem to bear this out. The culverts seem stupidly arranged. They are on the high side, while the low sides are stinking with black mud and green water. At the crossing of Greenwich-street there are four great stones out, and in the place of them is filthy black mud. The gutters also are choked with decaying vegetables, which increase in quantity as one nears Washington Market. It must be remembered that the fruit and vegetable wagons from the country stand in this neighborhood in the morning, and there is invariably a great amount of vegetable garbage. This certainly should be removed before the sun breeds pestilence out of it, but it is not. These streets are swept in the afternoon, and very irregularly. Staple-street has certainly been neglected for some time, and there is a dead dog in Thomas-street, between Hudson and East Broadway, which could furnish garths for half the porgy fishers of the community.

SIXTH WARD.

This Ward is bounded by Canal-street on the north, by Chatham-street on the east, by Broadway on the west, and at the south it terminates with the Post-office building in course of erection. Centre-street traverses it exactly in the centre. The streets west of Centre-street, debouching on Broadway, are all fairly cleaned and swept. Those east of Centre-street are many of them in a horrible condition. That part of Pearl which stretches from Centre to Chatham-street is not well paved, and the guttering is detective. There is considerable garbage lying around loose and some stagnant water. Park-street is filthy. There are great holes in the middle of the street, filled with black oozy mud, that stinks like a pest-house, and with stagnant water turning green. The inhabitants throw their ashes and garbage promiscuously in the road, so that it would be difficult to collect it if the scavenger came round often. The inhabitants say that he does not, and that the street has not been touched since last week. Just above the Five Points House of Refuge, Park-street joins with Worth and Baxter, and here there are great pools of stagnant water. Beyond this, in the direction of the Bowery, Park-street is a trifle better, but not much. Baxter-street is being repaired in a way that is eminently unsatisfactory. The street and gutters are full of rich cholera mud, and the cobble-stones are dumped down on top of this. At the crossings the flat stones have been removed, or broken, and there are quagmires of stagnant filth. A man was raking at one of these cholera placers with a big hoe, and the stench rose enough to give spotted fever to the whole street. Mulberry-street is pretty much in the same condition. The gutters are in bad condition, and the pavement is in worse, and the water stagnates there until it is positively green. A scavenger had a cart filled with garbage, but there was much more to remove. Bayard-street is evidently looked after occasionally in the upper part, but where it runs into Baxter-street is very filthy. At the corners there are numerous fish-stands where the venders scrape their porgies, &c., and gut them, throwing the entrails and scales into the gutter. This would not matter if the gutter could be flushed, but it is badly constructed, and these fragments remain and rot. It is not the principles of the guttering that is bad or the cobble-stones, which were originally glaced properly, but there is no underneath packing, and parts sink in, leaving a depression which prevents drainage. Mott-street, which elsewhere is clean, though very seldom swept, has a bad stagnant pool where it joins Chatham-square.

SEVENTH WARD.

Notwithstanding the disreputable condition of the roadways in this Ward, the streets generally were very clean yesterday, except in a few instances. The lower end of the Ward, in the vicinity of East, Cherry, Madison, Water and Monroe streets, were far from clean, a quantity of garbage and ashes having been thrown into the streets by those who were too lazy to carry their refuse down to the ash-cart. It was evident from the piles of swept-up dirt, ready for removal, that this muck had been thrown out after the sweepers had gone over the ground. This seemed to be a characteristic of the whole of Cherry-street, more especially in the neighborhood of Rutgers and Hamilton streets. Here there were bad holes filled with stagnant water, and it had become necessary yesterday to throw lime along the gutters in this vicinity, to counteract the offensive odors. Water-street, from Rutgers to Catharine Market, was littered with ashes and garbage, although the ash-boxes were almost all empty. Hamilton-street was also in the same condition, and a very offensive smell came from Catharine Market. This doubtless arose from the condition of the market itself, which does not appear to be kept in as good order as it might be. It is supposed that men are specially employed to keep the market clean, but they appear to trust more to the sanitary inspection made by the rats than to the help to be gained through the use of brooms and scrapers. In Henry-street, near Pike, a very bad hole in the roadway forms a good basin for collecting impure water, which has no escape.

EIGHTH WARD.

This Ward contains all the streets from Houston to Canal, between Broadway and the North River. There is a great and visible improvement in the streets that run parallel with Broadway, especially those that are swept in the morning. Wooster-street, however, on its last block, has the débris of a fire that took place a considerable time ago. These fragments dam up the gutter; in consequence there is some stagnant water, though not much. South Fifth-avenue is in a most lamentable condition, especially near Canal-street. It is neither paved nor guttered, and along the sidewalks and in the centre of the street are pools of stagnant water, which emit a most offensive smell. Thompson-street is much cleaner than heretofore, but the gutters are in a bad condition, and they are not properly cleaned, but Varick-street is in much better condition. The Clinton Market is clean enough on the east side, though the gutters are defective, but on Canal-street, near West, there are offensive pools of water, and a mass of something in the gutter, which was originally lime or plaster, but is now a conglomerate of rubbish and oyster-shells, with a top-dressing of fish-guts and scales. Large flies in thousands hover over the pile. On the West-street side of the market the paving and guttering are in an infamous condition. There are great holes in the street, filled with stagnant water. There is one especially, at the Spring-street corner, which takes up a good share of the gutter, and being close to an oyster-booth, receives refuse of every kind. Three rotten fish-heads were distinctly visible. North of the market West-street was in a good condition. This Ward is not swept altogether in the morning, some of the streets being cleaned at 2 in the afternoon. The men were at work at 6 o'clock, and seemed to do their work faithfully.

TENTH WARD.

As a general thing, the Tenth Ward was yesterday moderately clean and the roadways well swept, but there are portions of the Ward that seem to defy the efforts of the cleaners. At the upper end of Chrystie and Forsyth streets, the bad condition of the pavements and gutters form receptacles for water and filth, and to keep them clean would require almost constant attention. A slight rain-storm forms a puddle, the only escape for which seems to be the evaporation caused by the sun, the sediment meanwhile becoming putrid. The same result can be found in the vicinity of Hester-street, from the Bowery to Division-street. The lower end of Ludlow-street, from Hester to Division-street, was yesterday full of filth, although, from its appearance, of but one day's collection. The heat, however, gathered around the garbage and animal remains a large quantity of flies, which were very offensive to pedestrians, and must have been more so to the occupants of houses. The same remarks would apply to the lower end of Essex-street. The extensive building operations going on in this Ward may, to some extent, prevent perfect street-cleaning; but more of the filth arises from the constant practice of the occupants of tenements throwing refuse into the streets. The ashes generally appeared to have been removed throughout the whole Ward.

THIRTEENTH WARD.

The Thirteenth Ward yesterday morning presented anything but an inviting appearance along East-street, the centre of the roadway between Grand and Broome being heaped up with oyster-shells, placed there by a neighboring oyster-dealer, as he said, to fill up the hole in the roadway. Ashes were also thrown in the centre of the street in many places, but more especially in the vicinity of Delancey-street. One bad feature of this Ward is the state of the gutters, especially at the corner of the streets. The street-cleaners were yesterday engaged in scraping the black and slimy filth from these places, and the odor was anything but agreeable. The raising of the centre of the streets has rendered many of the gutters useless, so far as carrying off the water is concerned, and a collection of slimy, green and stagnant, muddy, puddling is the result. This was especially the case yesterday along Tompkins, Mangin, Goerck and Lewis streets, where the natural filth caused by traffic is made worse by the criminal carelessness of the occupants of the houses. In Delancey-street, from Pitt to Ridge, the roadway is greatly out of repair, and the holes were filled with garbage, which emitted a bad effluvia under the action of the sun's rays. At the corner of Ridge and Clinton streets and Delancey the gutters collect and retain the water, which becomes putrid in spite of the efforts of the house-occupiers to keep the water-course clear. In some few cases a running stream is kept up by the waste water from drinking saloons, &c., being conveyed in pipes from the sink to the gutter; but this stream was yesterday too small to do more than keep the surface moving, and had no effect on the sediment.

RANDALL'S ISLAND HOMICIDE.

Address of Judge Bedford to the Jury—The Prisoner Convicted of Manslaughter—The Sentence.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, Judge Bedford resumed the case of Justus Dunn, who is charged with the killing of Samuel Calvert, one of the keepers of the House of Refuge. Mr. Wm. F. Howe summed up the case on the part of the prisoner, and Assistant District-Attorney Stewart replied in behalf of the people. He defended the character of Mr. Jones, Superintendent of the House of Refuge, against the charges of cruelty alleged against him, and stigmatized the line of defense as an effort on the part of one religious denomination to deprive the Protestant community of the management of the institution. Judge Bedford charged the jury as follows:

Gentlemen of the Jury—The prisoner at the bar has been indicted for the crime of manslaughter. This offense consists of four degrees, but considering the testimony in this case, I charge you, as a matter of law, that the first and second degrees must be laid aside, and should you find a verdict against the prisoner, it can only be in the third or fourth degree. The statutory definition of the third degree is the killing of another in the heat of passion, without a design to effect death by a dangerous weapon.

After referring to the statutes bearing upon the crime, his Honor said:

Judges have been but too often reprehended for excluding testimony and allowing new trials for error. To my mind it is best to err (if error it be) on the side of latitude, and this consideration induced me to rule so that all the testimony offered on both sides was permitted, and now that it is all in I well perceive that it was competent for the purpose of showing the system of life surrounding the prisoner, and from which surroundings provocation could be engendered, so that the jury might see whether or not the system had, as it were, generated provocation in the mind of the prisoner, and to what extent. Although the testimony was competent, yet some of it was not very relevant. Upon this head the District-Attorney has spoken fully. But remember the Judge decides whether the testimony is competent, and the jury give to it its proper weight. If the school was well conducted, then certainly the school had nothing to fear from the testimony, while on the other hand, if the school was improperly conducted, then the testimony bears on the effect produced toward provocation in the mind of the inmate and prisoner. The deceased was an exponent of the system, whatever it was. A great deal has been said pro and con in the summing up about this system, and it is unmistakably of great public importance.

The reformatory school in question is under private influence and government; local authorities have nothing to do with it. The same presumptions which attach to the acts of public officers do not attach to those of private governors. Yet the motive to be oppressive is to be looked at. Certainly the managers have no motive of gain or a sordid character. They no doubt serve freely and conscientiously. But their agents are all paid, and are subject to all the law relating to master and servant. A servant, while being unduly corrected by a master, is sometimes justified in defense. It is of great importance to the public that institutions of this character should be humanely conducted. What effect, under the beatings, the memory of illegal and harsh punishment may have produced in the mind of the inmate and servant, (who is the prisoner,) in inducing provocation to attack or defend himself against the official and master, is in every sense of the word a most proper subject for you to consider under this evidence. Because a prisoner in a correctional institution is a bad person, is no excuse for severe attacks upon him by those in authority. The law of self-defense certainly exists as a fact for a person whenever the authority is exceeded, just as much as it does for a private citizen not a criminal nor under restraint. The law relative to the testimony in this case is very brief, and I charge you that if the defendant at the time of the blow which he gave was violating prison rules (whether they were good rules or impolitic ones is no matter of inquiry) and deceased was properly using authority over the prisoner, then there was no excuse for the fatal blow, and the prisoner is to be convicted of either third or fourth degree of manslaughter, according as, in your judgments, the facts fall within the legal definition of those degrees which I have read to you.

While, on the other hand, if the deceased exceeded his authority as master and corrector, if he was using undue violence to the prisoner, and the latter struck the fatal blow, believing his life to be in danger or himself to be in imminent bodily harm, then the prisoner was to be excused and is to be acquitted. Unless, however, at this fatal moment the circumstances were, in your judgment, sufficient to justify this belief, you may lay them aside. But you may take into consideration as an element of this belief the knowledge by the accused of any system of undue severity which was usual for the deceased to pursue, and which he was likely to pursue.

And now, in conclusion, gentlemen, I tell you, if, on the one hand, the killing was unlawful, a conviction will set an example to prisoners. While on the other hand, if the killing was excusable, acquittal will set a very wholesome example to wardens, jailers and keepers, to be in future humane, and to protect the rights of even the unfortunate, the vicious, the depraved or hardened criminal.

The prisoner was convicted of manslaughter in the third degree, and sentenced to one year's imprisonment, the lowest penalty for such an offense.

ANOTHER PROBABLE MURDER.

A Man Said to Have Beaten His Wife to Death in the Twentieth Ward.

Mary Donogan, an Irish woman, fifty years of age, residing at No. 512 West Thirty-third-street, is said to have been beaten to death by her husband, Wm. Donogan, on Tuesday night. Whatever of the facts in the case tend to criminate Donogan are those divulged by the other residents in the house, which is a large tenement one. It appears that on Tuesday evening Mrs. Donogan came home and found her husband lying on the bed, apparently intoxicated. Some of the residents heard her say, "Well, ain't you a pretty man, to be lying there drunk when I come home?" In a few minutes after Mrs. Donogan left the house with a small can in her hand to procure milk, and returned in a short time. Donogan left the house, and was absent quite a time. During his absence Mrs. Donogan's sons, two boys named Richard and John, came in, and found their mother lying on the bed, insensible. Their father came home an hour after. Mrs. Donogan was not removed from her residence, but remained there in an unsensible condition until Wednesday morning, when she died, never having regained consciousness. Mr. Kellock, Commissioner of Charities and Correction, was notified to remove the body, which was done, and Coroner Herrman was notified. Dr. John Beach made a post-mortem examination yesterday, and found that Mrs. Donogan had received a severe contusion on the back of the head, and that her death resulted from effusion of blood in the substance of the brain. This, it is contended, points conclusively toward violence, for if Mrs. Donogan had been lying on the bed she could not have received the contusion on the back of the head, and were she to have accidentally received the contusion, and consequently experienced the hemorrhage in the substance of the brain while standing on the floor of the room, she would have fallen there insensible on the moment, and could not of her own accord have reached the bed on which she was found lying by her children. Donogan has not yet been arrested, but it is understood will be, for the authorities believe that he struck his wife, and finding her insensible, carried her to the bed, on which she was found.

Base-Ball Notes.

Today the Mutuals meet the Forest Citys at Cleveland, the game being the second of the championship series. At Philadelphia the Atlantics of Brooklyn play the Athletics.

The Forest Citys of Cleveland have again undergone reconstruction, Wolters having been sent to right field, Hastings to left, Simmons to first base, and Carlton to short-stop.

One of the first amateur contests of the season will take place on the Capitoline, Brooklyn, this afternoon, between the Stars and Knickerbockers.

Up to the present date, June 15, the six regular clubs have played 28 games with each other. The Bostons have won 9 and lost 1; the Athletics won 5, lost 2; Mutuals won 6, lost 6; Baltimores won 5, lost 7; Haymakers won 2, lost 7; Forest Citys won 1, lost 5. In all, the six clubs mentioned must play 75 championship games, of which 28 having already taken place, 45 remain for the rest of the season.

The Proceedings in Assessments.

In the case of Bassford, already reported in the Times, and which was to vacate an assessment for irregularity, the Supreme Court, General Term, holds that the law only requires one publication, at least two days before the passage of the ordinance; that the publication of the recommendation of the passage of the resolution by the Croton Board, satisfied the requirements of the act.

The Suit Against Gen. Butler.

In the United States Circuit Court, yesterday morning, Judge Shipman resumed the hearing of the suit brought by Henry A. Tilden against Gen. Benjamin F. Butler for the alleged fraudulent seizure of the steam-ship Nassau while military Governor of New-Orleans. George Hunnewell's bill of sale to Gen. Butler of the Nassau was read. Hunnewell owned the vessel when the seizure took place, and he states that this sale was made under duress and without passage of a title. He subsequently assigned his claim to Mr. Tilden.

Gen. Butler maintained that Warren A. Buell and not Hunnewell was the owner, and therefore the assignment to the present claimant was illegal. It was contended on the part of the plaintiff that a guarantee accompanied the sale, and as it had not been impeached, it was no time now for the defendant to set up a defective title as a bar to the present proceedings. It was also contended that the papers showed no legal title as having passed Hunnewell, and that the papers were not properly certified so as to make them admissable in a Court of justice. The Court regarded the papers adduced to prove Hunnewell's title defective, and excluded them. The register of the Nassau was read, and the Court adjourned to Monday next.

THE CASE OF ANDRE.

Coroner's Investigation of the Shooting—Verdict Against the Prisoner—Autopsy.

Coroner Herrman held an inquest at the First-avenue Police Station in the case of Mrs. Leonie Pierre Andre, who was killed by her husband on Thursday, at the corner of Fifteenth-street and First-avenue. Andre was present. The first witness called was James W. Kelly, of No. 39 Chrystie-street, who said that he heard some screaming on the opposite side of Fifteenth-street, and saw a woman running up toward First-avenue, followed by the prisoner, who attempted to catch her; she jumped into the street, and the prisoner caught her by the hair and fired a pistol into her neck; she fell as dead to the sidewalk; when taken prisoner did not attempt to escape; witness assisted in keeping the mob from laying violent hands upon him.

Emma Vacher, of No. 415 East Fifteenth-street, testified that she had known the Andres since January last; deceased came to her house at ten A. M. on Thursday; her two children were there on a visit; deceased lived in East Twenty-first-street; the prisoner came at twenty minutes past eleven A. M., and asked her to sign a paper; she said she would not; he requested her a second time, and she again refused; he turned to a friend of his, who accompanied him, and said, "Let us go to dinner;" witness said to the deceased, "I'll dress myself before they come back;" while going toward the back room for that purpose, heard a scream, and, looking back, saw a pistol in the prisoner's hand; screamed, and ran into the street; deceased did so too, and was followed by the prisoner, who shot her; did not see the shooting; prisoner was very cool when he entered the house; he only requested the victim to sign the paper; all the conversation did not last five minutes.

John Tucker, of No. 218 Avenue B, described the manner in which Andre had shot his wife, as already testified to by the witness Kelly, and added that the prisoner said to him that he had done it.

Several other witnesses corroborated the testimony of Mr. Kelly, and the case being submitted to the jury, they rendered a verdict against Andre. The latter was then formally examined, and stated that he was forty years of age, a native of France, resided in Jersey City, and was a charcoal-burner by occupation. In relation to the killing of his wife he said, "Through advice of counsel I prefer at present to make no statement, but will show a good defense on my part." He was thereupon committed to the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury. The post-mortem examination, which was made by Dr. John Beach, showed that the pistol was loaded with two bullets, one of which penetrated the mastoid process and passed through the cerebellum, and was found embedded between the hemispheres of the brain and the cerebellum. The other bullet was found in the canal, and there was behind it a quantity of wadding. The autopsy also revealed the fact that the woman was enceinte.

The New-York State Council of Political Reform.

In addition to the work of our City Reform Councils, the State Council, better known as the New-York State Council of Political Reform, is actively engaged in important duty in the interior. Even at this early day, the State Council is beginning its campaign for the election of Reform Assemblymen next Fall, and for that purpose is organizing a circle of gentlemen pledged to Reform in each of the towns of over thirty counties that were represented last Winter by corruptionists in the Lower House. These organizations will awaken a reform sentiment that will bring about the nomination of honest candidates for the next Assembly. The Council, like its auxiliaries in this City, is entirely non-partisan as regards national politics. It aims simply and exclusively to obtain purity in the government at Albany. Its success heretofore in keeping aloof from national politics, and in confining its action to the reform of the State Legislature, is most gratifying. Such a rule of action saves the Reformers from dissipating their strength in troublesome divisions upon national questions incident to a Presidential campaign. The great object of the State organization is warfare upon corruption at Albany.

The Council exerted a strong influence on the Legislature of 1872. But its work was impeded by the large number of "fishy" members who found seats even in the "Reform Legislature." What is wrong in the Senate in this respect must be endured another year; but the character of the next Assembly can be greatly improved by putting honest men in place of the so-called "commercial" members. There is no reason why the Reform movement, so efficient in this City last Fall, should not extend throughout the State this year, and work as great changes in the personnel of the rural members of the Assembly of 1873 as was experienced in the City delegation of 1872. We earnestly commend the work of "The New-York State Council of Political Reform" to the friends of honest legislation. The Chairman of the Executive Committee is Mr. Maurice E. Viele, of Albany; the Recording Secretary, Mr. William A. McKinney, of Binghamton. Mr. Theodore Bourne, of No. 69 West Broadway, is authorized to receive subscriptions of money in this City for the work.

Desperate Affray in the Seventh Ward.

At 4 o'clock, yesterday morning, Van Dyke's dining-saloon, Nos. 15 and 17 Catharine-street, was the scene of a very sanguinary conflict. Wm. Maitland, the keeper of a sailors' boarding-house at No. 29 Cherry-street, and John H. Miller, residing in Monroe-street, met in the saloon and quarreled. A fight ensued, and Miller drew a large-bladed pocket-knife and lunged at Maitland's head. The latter threw up his left arm to ward off the blow, and received above the elbow a terrible and very dangerous wound. The blood flowed copiously, and Maitland sank fainting to the floor. Dennis Brady, a friend of the wounded man, who keeps a liquor-store at No. 62 Monroe-street, sprang upon Miller, and struck him several times on the head with a billet of wood, knocking him down. While prostrate on the floor, Brady kicked and stamped upon him, injuring him very severely. The noise of the scuffle attracted several Police officers to the spot. Maitland was taken to the Oak-street Police Station, and thence to the Park Hospital, where he still remains in a very critical condition. Miller was taken to the Madison-street Police Station, where it was found that he had received several severe scalp-wounds, and was also severely injured internally. An ambulance was summoned by telegraph, and he was removed to Bellevue Hospital. Brady was arrested and was locked up at the Madison-street Police Station to await the result of the injuries to Miller.

Conference of Congregational Churches of New-York and Vicinity.

A conference of Congregational Churches of New-York, Brooklyn and vicinity will be held at the Second Congregational Church, Greenwich, Conn., on Thursday next, 20th inst. Rev. Dr. R. Storrs will preside. Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, Rev. Edward Beecher, Rev. Mr. Taylor, of the New-York Tabernacle, and several other distinguished divines, are expected to participate in the exercises. The subject of discussion on the occasion will be: "The Sabbath, as related to the best interests of man."

The Alaska Club Indorses the Nomination of Grant and Wilson.

The Alaska Club have unanimously passed resolutions, presented by Mr. Edward De Forrest, thanking the New-York delegation to the Philadelphia Convention for their harmonious action and devotion to the important trust committed to them; indorsing, without equivocation, the names of the candidates, as well as the embodiment of principles given to the country by the Convention, and mutually recording the pledge of the members of the Club to use every honorable means for the continued success of the party which has consecrated to all time, by its unflinching patriotism, the brightest pages of the Republic's history.

The Jersey City Frauds—Sentence of Mr. Garrett Vreeland.

In the Hudson County Court, yesterday, Mr. Garrett Vreeland, jointly convicted with Commissioner Bumsted of conspiracy to defraud the Corporation of Jersey City, appeared and received sentence. At the sentence of Bumsted, on Saturday last, the Court said that it would consider the matter of a fine in the case of Mr. Vreeland if he would make restitution. This was done on Tuesday, and $14,950, the amount of the difference between the prices paid by Vreeland and that paid to him by the City, was placed in the hands of the City Treasurer. This left the character of the sentence a foregone one. Directly Judge Bedle took his seat, a certificate of receipt from the Treasurer was handed to him by Vreeland's counsel, and with some few remarks on the position of the defendant as distinguished from that of Commissioner Bumsted, the Court sentenced him to pay a fine of $500 and to stand committed until it was paid. The money was subsequently furnished and Mr. Vreeland was released.

THE TURF.

Trotting at Fleetwood Park—One Race—The Others Postponed.

Two trots were announced to take place at Fleetwood Park yesterday afternoon, and a large number of turfmen were present to witness the sport. Only one came off in consequence of the heavy storm which began after the first heat of the first race, and rendered the track in a condition totally unfit to trot a valuable horse on. The sweepstake trot of $450 between B. Mace's brown mare Topsy, W. E. Weeks' black gelding Eight Bells, and Col. Dickey's dun gelding, G. L. Fox, was postponed until Tuesday next. The match of $500 to wagons between William Lovell's bay mare Topsy and Fred. Lounds' bay mare Butcher Girl, was gone through with. The following are the particulars:

First Heat.—Lady Lovell was the favorite at $100 to $75. They got away on the first attempt on even terms, but as they rounded the turn, Butcher Girl got away three lengths and passed the quarter-pole, that distance ahead in forty-two seconds. On the backstretch Lady Lovell closed slightly on the Girl, and the latter was but two lengths in front at the half-mile pole in 1:25. On the lower turn Lady Lovell broke two or three times and the Girl kept her lead all the way home, winning by three lengths in 2:56¼.

Second Heat.—After the storm which set in after the first heat, the track was fetlock-deep in mud and water. They received the "go" on the second attempt with the Girl in front, which position she kept to the turn, when she broke, and Lady Lovell assumed the lead, passing the quarter-pole in 48 seconds three lengths in front of the Girl. On the backstretch Lady Lovell broke, and the Girl headed her at the half-mile pole in 1:35. They were together all the way round to the homestretch, when Lady Lovell got away and won the heat by a length in 3:10.

Third Heat.—At the start Lady Lowell assumed the lead and kept it past the quarter-pole, in 47½ seconds. She maintained her lead all the way home, and finally won the heat by a length in 3:10½; the half in 1:33½.

Fourth Heat.—They were off on even terms, but the Girl went to the front and maintained the lead all the way round, and winning the heat by two lengths, in 3:05; the quarter in 47½, and the half-mile in 1:30.

Fifth Heat.—The betting was now even, and there was considerable excitement. They came up together on the first attempt and were sent off, but the Butcher Girl went away from her competitor, and was a dozen lengths in the lead at the half-mile pole. Lady Lovell broke on the lower turn, and Butcher Girl opened the gap to fifteen lengths, and despite the efforts of the Lady on the homestretch, the Girl won the heat and race by six lengths, in 3:06¼.

Turf Notes.

The Prospect Park Fair Ground Association has offered a purse of $600,—with $350 to first, $150 to second, and $100 to third horse,—catch weight, under saddle. The entries are to close at the office of the Association on Monday next, and the race will take place on Thursday, June 20. It is seldom that we are enabled to see a good trot under the saddle, and the Prospect Association has been encouraged in offering the above purse from the success which attended the saddle race on the last day of the late meeting.

The Long Branch races will begin on the 29th inst. Mr. Chamberlin has been working assiduously to place the course and ground in first-class order for the accommodation of the public. The great race for the Monmouth Cup is the talk of the town and Longfellow has gone up in the estimation of the turfmen. The betting now is even between him and Harry Bassett, and many express the opinion that Longfellow will be the favorite at the start. There will be other good ones in the race besides Bassett and Longfellow, and it will no doubt be an exciting affair.

THE BELGIAN MURDER.

Vogt, the Accused, Not to be Extradited—The Decision of Judge Curtis.

It will be remembered that Carl Vogt, held under accusation of murder, arson and robbery committed in Belgium, was recently about to be extradited under a warrant issued by the Governor of this State, under the State law of 1822, which provides that the Governor may, in his discretion, deliver over to justice any person found within the State who shall be charged with having committed without the jurisdiction of the United States, any crime, except treason, which, by the laws of this State, if committed therein, is punishable by death, or by imprisonment in the State Prison. The prisoner was also held under an indictment for grand larceny, having, it is alleged, brought a portion of the stolen bonds of the murdered man into this State. The charge of larceny, however, was about to be abandoned, and the prisoner transferred to Belgium, under the Governor's warrant, when his counsel procured a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Curtis, of the Superior Court. The case was argued at length on the return to the writ, of which a report appeared in the Times, and now Judge Curtis has rendered his decision, holding that no authority rests in the State Court to extradite a party accused with crime in a foreign State; that during half a century the provision of the Federal Constitution that "no State shall enter into any treaty alliance or confederation, or without the consent of Congress enter into any agreement or compact with another State, or with a foreign Power," has been recognized by the State Governments; that the National Government has exclusive jurisdiction over the subject, and that the act of the Legislature was unconstitutional and void; that it was not contemplated by the Constitution of the United States that any party domiciled in a State and charged with crime should be transmitted to any Power, either European or Asiatic, by the act of any one man and without a judicial examination; that the exercise of such power by the Governor of any State is at variance with the authority conceded in the Federal Constitution; that there can be no useful concurrent exercise of these powers; that while the Federal Government has alone authority to enter into treaties with foreign Governments for the extradition of criminals, it is difficult to conceive why such an arrangement does not exist with a Government like Belgium, whose liberal legislation and enlightened administration of justice is reflected in its marked developments of material prosperity.

While holding that the prisoner cannot be sent to Belgium, Judge Curtis decided to remand him to the City prison, to await his trial for grand larceny.

The prisoner was remanded accordingly.

A Sensation Spoiled—A False Report Corrected—No Complaint Made Against Gould.

The Tribune printed in large type, yesterday, a sensational story to the effect that Messrs. Barlow, Larocque and Macfarland, attorneys for the Board of Directors of the Erie Railway, had begun suit against Jay Gould, the President of the road under the corrupt Erie Ring, for the recovery of "at least the sum of $6,000,000, and it is only the precursor of forty other suits to be brought." The alleged complaint upon which this suit was brought was alleged to be that Gould, violating his trust as President of the Company, made many "fat" contracts with Gould the individual, to the great loss of the Company.

Mr. Larocque, of the law firm who represents the interests of the stockholders, was waited upon by a reporter of the Times yesterday, when he stated that no such complaint had been drawn. He had been absent from the City, he said, and upon his return home, seeing the published statement giving the contents of the complaint against Gould, he had looked over their record to see if it had been prepared in his absence. He found, however, that it had not, and that the only foundation for the story was that, on the 10th inst., a formal summons had been drawn. This was merely the usual formal preparation for the commencement of a suit. The investigations as to Gould's management are yet going on, and at the proper time the complaint against him will be made. When the proceedings are commenced the readers of the Times will be promptly informed, but not until such action is taken.

FASHIONS FOR JUNE.

Le Follet says: The fashion of having tunics suitable to be worn over various skirts is much adopted. Indeed, to any lady studying economy and variety in her toilet, it recommends itself most highly. These tunics may be of foulard, figured cretonne, grenadine, &c. Many of the foulards are exquisite, both in color and design, and form most elegant costumes. Some of the newest have a blue or violet ground, with checks of buff or light brown. The different shades of gray and golden maize have small lines or grecque patterns in black.

We must draw the attention of our subscribers to the novel and pretty little white piqué paletôts which are made for at-home wear. During the warm weather they will be found very useful.

Brown or drab guipure is frequently used for trimming white material, and produces a very pleasing effect. Bands of embroidery are also very fashionable as a trimming for Summer costumes when the material is not too thin. Thick, plain or beaded passementerie are much in vogue; some very rich insertions are used at times (instead of guipure or lace) round the bottoms of dresses. There is also a very pretty fringe called the "postillion" fringe, made in several widths.

The muslin dresses prepared for Summer toilets are most charming, but the elegance of the lace trimmings tenders them often very costly. They are, however, extremely distinguées, though perhaps more simple when completed by a fichu and basque of China crape—blue, pink, lilac, &c., according to the dress. These are made either pointed, square, or round, and are open in front.

The "Louis XV." tunics, with a large plait at the back, and the tunic polonaise with habit skirts, of "Pompadour" foulard, with large colorored bouquets of roses or pinks, are very elegantly worn over skirts of plain foulard trimmed with flounces, or a skirt made exactly to resemble a Scotch kilt, being plaited two-thirds of its length.

Tunics of white foulard, with branches of leaves and flowers, have quite a "Watteau" effect worn over skirts of rose color, blue, green, or brown, each color being of a very soft shade. Le foulard "Tussore," Indian and China crape, are all too expensive to be generally worn; but but a foulard with white ground and bouquets or wreaths of flowers, or even leaves, makes an elegant costume, and may be worn over different colored skirts, thus forming a fresh toile.

As the Summer advances, the graceful peignoirs of white muslin reappear. One which we would cite as a model is made with a white flounce, with lozenge-shaped trimmings of Valenciennes lace, the revers on the body and sleeves being trimmed en suite. If this is lined with a colored taffetas, and a sash matching the revers is added, it makes quite an elegant morning-dress, and may be even worn when receiving visits.

Some hints as to the make, quantity of material required, and arrangement of toilets, will, we are sure, prove useful. We will, therefore, supply our readers with a few instructive details.

For a pretty but simple costume, from eighteen to twenty yards of wide material are generally needed. Of course, should a great quantity of trimming of the same be wished for, twenty-five or even thirty yards may be necessary. The tunic alone takes several yards. It is still made in the "Princesse" form, that is to say, the pieces of the body and the breadths of the skirt are each in one piece. The back must be made a good length, so as to admit of its being draped, and yet not being made short.

The skirts which are worn with these polonaises are about a yard and a half in length at the back—about mid length between the short costumes and the trained robes. The breadths are always cut on the bias in front and at the sides, but the back breadths are on the straight.

Tight sleeves are more and more giving place to the "Pagoda" or "Marquise" make, with one or two frills. The bodies are open, and are all made with basques, which vary in their style. With these a sash of ribbon is frequently worn, either of a color matching, or one harmonizing, with the dress, or of black; it is fastened either in a simple bow or a large fancy bow, but always has long fringed ends.

The bonnets of this month are made high in front, many of them having the rim raised all round, resembling those described last month, and trimmed quite on the summit.

We must not forget to mention the large bow "Alsacien" which still continues in favor, particularly over a curled or flat chignon.

Hats are still made high in the crown, and often with the edge turned up.

The straw "Capelines" seem to be gaining favor, and may be made very becoming. Thus, a "Capeline" of white straw drawn into the size of the head under a bow of colored ribbon, the front trimmed with three narrow bias folds of silk to match the bow, and a ruche of black lace.

Private Lamps.

Commissioner Van Nort has addressed the following communication to the Common Council:

Department of Public Works,
New-York, June 15, 1872.

To the Honorable the Common Council of the City of New-York:

Gentlemen: I would respectfully call the attention of your honorable body to the fact that there are now a very large number of public lamps in addition to the regular street lamps, which have been erected in front of private buildings in pursuance of resolutions passed by your honorable body from time to time, and are now maintained and lighted at the expense of the City.

The annual cost of lighting the lamps is now about $70,000, and their number is being continually increased by new resolutions.

By an ordinance of your honorable body, each church edifice is entitled to have two gas-lamps placed in front thereof; but in some cases this number has been increased to four, six, or even eight lamps. In March last a statement was prepared by this Department, in answer to a resolution of your honorable body, showing the number of extra lamps in front of churches, schools, hospitals, &c., to be 1,348.

I would respectfully recommend such action by your honorable body as will relieve the City from the expense of lighting and maintaining lamps for which there is no public necessity, and will prevent demands for the erection of such lamps in future.

Very respectfully, GEO. M. VAN NORT,
Commissioner Public Works.

Military Visitors from Philadelphia.

Company D, First Regiment of Philadelphia, arrives from Albany by the People's line this morning, and will be the guests of the Seventh Regiment. Companies B and F, Capts. Van Norden and Bird, have been detailed as the escort to the Philadelphia Company, and will entertain their guests at breakfast at the New-York Hotel. At 11 o'clock, the visiting company will be escorted from the Seventh Regiment armory down Broadway to the Cortlandt-street Ferry, and will depart for Philadelphia by the 12½ P. M. train.

Right of Administrators to Vote on Stock of the Estate.

In the case of the North Shore Staten Island Company, already noticed in the Times, the Supreme Court, General Term, has decided that, in the appointment of administrators they become at once vested with the legal title to the stock, and are consequently stockholders of the Company, having all rights appertaining to ownership, including the right to vote. The decision of the Court at Chambers, holding the election void, is therefore sustained.

Fatal Fracas in the Fourth Ward.

Coroner Young was requested yesterday to hold an inquest in the case of Geo. Wood, a sailor, who boarded at No. 88 Oliver-street, and who died at the Park Hospital early yesterday morning, from the effects of a stab-wound of the abdomen received at the hands of August Wood, also a sailor, who lived at No. 376 Water-street. Both men had been shipmates, and Thursday night started together on a "spree." About 1 in the morning they brought up in a low groggery in Water-street, both much intoxicated. A quarrel arose about payment for some liquor, when August Wood drew his sheath-knife, and plunged it into the abdomen of his companion. The injured man ran into the street, but soon sank from exhaustion, and was subsequently removed to the Park Hospital, where he died. Wood was arrested. The inquest will be held today.

A Practical Revival of the Slave-Trade

The State of Finance—General Uneasiness—Enslaving the Chinaman—Colonization of the Island—Important Surrenders—Miscellaneous Gossip.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Havana, Saturday, June 8, 1872.

The financial troubles are apparently over for the present, but everybody is expecting new developments and nobody feels secure either in possession of their gold or Spanish bank-notes. The España newspaper, to curry favor with the lower classes and the mob element among the volunteers, has published some very inflammatory but false statements on the currency question, tending to produce a state of ill feeling and animosity against the merchants, especially the large foreign houses who buy sugars and sell exchange. The Diario goes on another tack, and, in view of the strikes which occurred in over a dozen manufacturing establishments last week, announces gravely that the Cuban Junta of New-Orleans had sent Commissioners to Havana, to promote strikes, and thus serve the Cuban cause. The Diario is wrong in believing this report, as the International exists in Cuba since 1868, and its most prominent leaders here are old Spaniards, principally Asturians and Catalonians. The Society proper numbers about 400 members, but can rely on over 3,000 adherents, ready for any emergency. The number of Cubans belonging to it is exceedingly small, perhaps twenty or thirty; they would have joined largely but were afraid to do so, fearing that they might be classified as insurgents. The Diario thinks that the Spaniards will place their patriotism high above any mercenary ideas, but the working classes in Havana do not believe in patriotism without a just recompense for their labor. The laboring Spaniard and artisan formerly occupied a place somewhat between a negro slave and a tolerated, or rather necessary, nuisance; the higher officials, the so-called nobleza, and the stuck-up sugar-planters looked down on him with disdain, fearing to be contaminated by close contact. This has already changed much, and is changing still; the moneyed aristocracy, proud of their wealth and titles, many of them trying but unable to disguise their descent from the African race, have been compelled to descend from their high pedestal, because the laboring man, just now, is the owner of a musket, and later still will be the owner of a vote—both very dangerous menaces to despotism and aristocratic notions.

ENSLAVING THE CHINAMAN.

The Government in Spain has approved the establishment of the Junta de Colonizacion or Colonization Club, also the laws and orders issued by them for the purpose of reducing the Chinaman to a state of slavery. Another royal order, given by the soi-disant liberal Government of Spain, has secured the prolongation of the Chinese slave-trade for three years, all Chinamen coming here now being virtually thrown into slavery for life. Bad as Queen Isabella and her Ministers may have been, they never committed the acts of the present régime, and the way the Ministers are openly bought by the different cliques here, for the accomplishment of any purpose, is outrageous and shameful. The old slave-traders and murderers, who in the latter days of Isabella were compelled to be careful, hold up their heads higher than ever, and I understand from very good authority (an old slave-trader) that the moment the revolution may be considered over the slave-trade is to be revived, and steamers are to be purchased for the purpose of bringing negroes to Cuba. My informant adds: "I form one of a company already, and we can introduce negroes without any trouble." A new trick to prevent Chinese slaves from running away, and to identify them if they should do so has been inaugurated by Mr. Tomas Terry, the wealthy slave-owner and merchant of Cienfuegos. All his Chinamen are photographed, and their pictures are sent to every police officer, as if the unfortunate Chinamen were so many thieves or criminals.

COLONIZATION OF CUBA.

The Spanish agents in Venezuela are very active trying to induce the Canary Islanders settled there to abandon their farms and come to Cuba and settle. The majority of these Canary Islanders would be willing to go if some chances were held out to them, but justly say that they cannot gain much by abandoning a revolutionary, white and Indian country for a revolutionary, white and negro island. The commanders of the Spanish frigates now in Venezuela have received orders to charter the necessary ships to bring such Canary Islanders as desire to the Island of Cuba. If only the proper provisions and steps would be taken here, and the Government or wealthy people would enable the emigrants to acquire land in fee simple and not as colonists, it is very likely that a large number of Spaniards now settled in different parts of South and Central America would come and lay the germ of a bona fide emigration for agricultural purposes.

IMPORTANT SURRENDERS.

The news from the District of Guaimaro is important, if as true as the Spaniards assert it to be. Gonzalez Boet, of painful notoriety, has received the submission of the following-named prominent chiefs and supporters of the revolution: Martin Palacio Fortum, of Santiago de Cuba; Andres Martin y Castro, son of Dr. Martin, of Villa del Cobre, formerly Aid-de-Camp to Gens. Marmot and Aguilera Brigido Sandoval, a Venezuelan and son of Gen. Sandoval, one of the expeditionaries who came over with Quesada. Pedro Govin, of the Upton expedition, and Pedro Barreto, of Havana, have taken refuge in the fastnesses of the mountains, and are said to be imploring the benign clemency of Boet and the Spanish Government.

MISCELLANEOUS GOSSIP.

Several companies are forming here now for the purpose of importing cattle from Mexico to Cuba. A pound of tenderloin meat, of poor quality, now costs seventy-five cents a pound; other qualities, from forty to fifty-five cents a pound....A Maja snake, (the Cuban boa,) with two fully-developed heads, was recently captured and killed near Remedios....Mr. Joseph Bafel, for several years clerk at the Havana Consulate, has lately been examined and received his appointment as Consular Cadet in the United States service, and remains stationed at Havana for the present....Fears of a very unhealthy season are general; the sultry atmosphere and the usual avant-courriers of Yellow Jack seem to indicate a severe term of yellow fever. The cholera has broken out in several places in the upper country; for the present Havana is free from it, and small-pox has greatly diminished.

QUASIMODO.

Meeting of the Board of Police—Street-Cleaning Matters.

The Board of Police met yesterday afternoon, when the progress of the street-cleaning business was discussed. Commissioner Barr was appointed to the superintendence of stables and stock, and was requested to examine and report as soon as possible what additions were necessary to the Twenty-fourth-street stables.

The Executive Committee were directed to investigate and report as to the best style of cart for the gathering and transportation of ashes, garbage, &c.

President Smith was appointed to inquire and report as to the purchase of several new scows.

The Board of Health notified the Board of Police that they had granted permission to deposit ashes and street refuse at the foot of One Hundred and Fourth-street, East River, provided that such deposit be disinfected in such manner as Commissioner Gross may approve of. The communication was referred to the Executive Committee.

A Woman Dangerously Beaten.

On the 27th ultimo, Mrs. Ursula Siska was brutally beaten and kicked, while standing in front of her residence, No. 44 Forsyth-street, by Jacob Levi and Harris Israels. The affair arose out of a quarrel regarding Levi's children. Levi and Israels were arrested at the time, and held to await the result of the injuries. Mrs. Siska had a miscarriage, and is now in a dying condition. Coroner Herrman took her ante-mortem statement yesterday, in which she fully identified Levi and Israels as her assailants.

EMPIRE OF AUSTRIA.

Parliament and the Galician Compromise—Failure of the Measure—Polish Sentiment on the Subject—The Prospects.

From Our Own Correspondent.

VIENNA, Monday, May 27, 1872.

With such subjects as the Bohemian inundations to absorb the public attention, comparatively little is left for the weightier topics of the day, especially since interest has been wearied out by the numerous canards which have of late fluttered prematurely into existence. There is some uncertainty, also, if they are altogether canards, or if some of the swarm do not come from a nobler nest. In the matter of the Galician compromise, the official Press admits as much, viz., by confessing by implication, at least, that the neighboring States have turned up their noses at the measure. As for the frequent rumors of a rupture and misunderstanding in the Cabinet, the composition of the Ministry vouches for the ever-present danger of such a contingency, since the body comprises the most heterogeneous members, joined together not by common convictions, but by a higher will. Prince AUERSPERG thought it worth while to advert to the circumstance, a few days back, and, though he attempted to contradict the apprehension, he has not succeeded in removing it.

THE GALICIAN COMPROMISE.

The Galician compromise, the measure on which so great hopes were staked, and a supposed trump card in the hands of the Cabinet, which took credit somewhat ostentatiously for its own sincerity in the knotty question, has just been shelved, if not, indeed, committed to its final resting-place, by the vote of the Constitution Committee, before which it came, today, for the third reading. Public opinion, at least in the ruling circles, has since some time gone dead against the proposed tribute to justice; so much so that the Cabinet could not hope to command a sufficient majority in the Diet, should it press the bill; and, under the circumstances, it may, possibly, be excused for sacrificing the Poles to its own existence. Still, the solemn assurances and promises of Prince AUERSPERG are not likely to be forgotten, or to fail being brought forward as charges against his political honesty. It is true the failure is in the greatest measure due to the obstinacy of the Poles themselves: but the Germans have seized, somewhat too eagerly, the ostensible excuse offered them by journals known to stand under the inspiration of Government, though lacking the open restrictions of semi-official organs, like the New Free Press, now that the desired result appears secured, do not hesitate to throw off the mask of yielding to necessity, arguing in favor of rejection on independent grounds.

"It required," says the above-quoted paper, "a very robust faith from the beginning to expect, with anything like confidence, a real Galician compromise. The whole discussion was, and still is, in our eyes, no more than a phase of transition, indispensable in order to arrive at a correct judgment, however honestly the German party doubtless regarded the question. The Galician question is like a spectre, which it requires but to touch boldly in order to make it disappear of its own accord."

Great inconveniences, it is true, appeared connected with the measure, and cropped up in rapid succession, under the joint consideration of so many wiseheads as the German Party and the Government put together; but such, it must be admitted, ought to have been taken into account before the measure was brought forward, not after Prince AUERSPERG had pledged himself to it by solemn promises and takes credit for this good faith, "though it were to his own hindrance." One of the chief obstacles in the way of the compromise is the ungracious manner in which, after all, despite numerous disclaimers, the Cabinets of St. Petersburg and Berlin have received the situation. The observation ascribed by good authority to Prince GORTSCHAKOFF, that Russia and Austria might sooner agree upon the Eastern question than upon the Galician, still stands uncontradicted, nay, even tacitly confirmed by the official Austrian Press. There are other objections besides. The further subdivision of the Empire threatens grave inconveniences financially, educationally and not least—though that consideration has only recently been taken into account—from a military point of view. Galician autonomy means the establishment of a third independent landwehr system, which—since educational legislation would be left to the Province, and since the school-master is regarded as the principal trainer of the army—would constitute a perfectly unknown and untrustworthy quantity. Austrian administration, as it is, is too complicated already to be easily manageable, and it is no wonder that statesmen fear to introduce still further separation.

POLISH SENTIMENT.

An additional reason is to be found in the disinclination of the Poles, which has had opportunities for displaying itself during the past month or two in its most ungracious form. The Poles were, from the beginning, averse to the measure, not because it gives them autonomy, but because it does not give them enough, and in the later shape which it took they moreover resented the admission of the Ruthenians, their fellow provincials and fellow Slavonians, to the vote. It must seem absurd to foreigners that the Poles should still hope for the restoration of their ancient kingdom, and should for that unattainable hope reject much attainable good that is offered them. But so it is. When Prince AUERSPERG announced his intention to submit the compromise to the vote of the Galician Diet, previously to its discussion in the Reichsrath, the measure was by many with justice regarded as irretrievably doomed, and it is an open question still if the Prime Minister did not aim at that very result by his adroit strategy. A dispute was raised if it would not be unconstitutional to follow the proposed course, inasmuch as the Reichsrath ought to have precedence before the Provincial Diet, but Prince AUERSPERG evaded this objection by proposing the measure merely for an indication of opinion, not for a formal vote. He thus gained his end of saddling the Poles with the responsibility for the compromise, and shifting the unpleasant load altogether from his own shoulders. The Journal des Débats, being the recognized organ of the Polish emigration, following events in a cooler and less prejudiced atmosphere, rightly estimated the merits of the case when it urged the Poles to swallow their disappointment and accept the installment, for it perceived all hope of future Polish privileges to depend upon this one step. The Poles at home, however, were deaf to such reasoning, and even now the Galician journals encourage their representatives to desperate resistance. Resistance is, however, hopeless, since the Ministry no more require the Poles to secure a majority, which they have now obtained by the addition of the Bohemian vote. That majority is strengthened by the promise which Prince AUERSPERG has given yesterday, that the desired Election Reform bill shall, under all circumstances, be brought forward in the Autumn session. The Election bill is the great desideratum of the Germans, and only by promise of it could the Cabinet purchase their assistance for the passage of the Galician compromise, which it considered needful for strategical reasons, and wisely made to precede the other measure. Now that the Election bill is secured, its introduction before the compromise is ample proof of the little value which Ministers attach to it.

In conclusion, the technical manner in which it is proceeded with shows what fate Government wishes to reserve for the Galician compromise. The report is deferred till after the presentation of that upon the Ruthenian petitions. Supposing that point to have been turned, even the ablest parliamentary penman will take a week in drawing it up, so that the printed report cannot hope to see the light until just before the close of the session. It is shelved, therefore, till Autumn. Now, in October, when Parliament reassembles, the first and most urgent thing it will have to consider will be the Budget for 1873. Nor will it very quickly dispose of that important measure. Then comes, by Ministerial promise, the Election Reform bill, which is too important and comprehensive to be settled off-hand, so that no time can at all be calculated upon for other legislation, except bills of insignificant importance, among which the Galician bill cannot certainly be classed. Therefore, a year must at all events elapse before the compromise can even be touched again, and by that time it will be approached by the majority with confessed disgust and aversion. It will moreover be approached at all only if the Polish Diet accords its provisions a full and unreserved consent, which is an assumption little short of impossibility. As it is known that even now a majority of two-thirds would not be forthcoming on a Ministerial notice, it is not too much to predict that a year hence, when the Germans have obtained what they desire, there will be much less willingness still to support so unpopular a measure. Every indication, therefore, plainly points to the miscarriage of the long-canvassed bill. German hostility must bear the chief fault, but it must be admitted that the Poles have played their hand with extreme clumsiness, and supplied another proof of their political inability.

PARIS JOURNALISM.

How Papers Are Edited in the French Capital.

Although impersonal journalism has been tried in Paris since the fall of the Empire, it does not seem to be gaining ground, or to have produced the results expected by the proprietors who wished to imitate the English system. Some of those journals which adopted it have fallen out of existence entirely; others have ceased to be as prominent as they were before. In no instance has the change brought increased prosperity or greater public influence. For this reason the journals continue the habit of giving their leading articles over the signature of the writer. The chief editorial or premier Paris is usually given over the name, or the well-known pseudonym, of a popular political writer, who more frequently uses the editorial "we," to indicate that he speaks for the journal as well as for himself, than the personal pronoun "I." The merits and demerits of this system have been so often discussed that scarcely any new facts can be brought to bear upon the argument; but it may be safely and pertinently remarked that this is a matter which mainly depends upon the tastes and habits of a people. It is one of those questions about which a great deal can be said upon both sides, and it is certainly one which will be apt to be judged erroneously if judged from an English or American point of view. It is pretty certain that impersonal journalism is the better for England and the United States. In France such is not the case at present. The first thought of French newspaper readers is to look for the name of some popular writer; almost the last is to see what there is in the way of telegraphic news. In fact, news takes rank below the theatrical, or at least below the reports of premières représentations. It may be regarded as extremely doubtful, therefore, whether even the Journal des Débats would gain in importance by suppressing the names of such writers as JOHN LEMOINE and G. DE MOLINARI, who have a large and regular clientèle of readers, who would follow them to any other paper. Most of the Paris journals are read for the articles of certain writers. Le Soir, to give an example, was exceedingly popular so long as the name of EDMOND ABOUT was signed to its premiere-Paris—but it has been scarcely heard of since that clever writer took his pen to the XIXth Siecle. ABOUT'S connection with this new journal guaranteed its success at the start, and FRANCISQUE SARCEY brought to it his own troop of readers to swell the list. This journal is a marked success, therefore, although the clever, brilliant and logical articles of these two writers are placed beside silly, sophomoric appreciations of political events signed Schuei b, or Smith, or Brown, or Robinson. It matters very little what there is in the journal if there are articles from ABOUT and SARCEY, for a vast majority read them and then throw the paper aside, feeling that they have got the worth of their three sous. EDMOND TARBE and JULES RICHARD, in the Gaulois; SAINT GENEST, JOUVIN, ALBERT WOLFF and others in the Figaro; "TIMOTHIE TRIMM," in the Petit National; H. TAINE, in the Temps; LOUIS VEUILLOT, in the Univers, or PAUL DE CASAGNAC in the Pays, are in reality the life and soul of those journals. The Patrie has long ceased to sign its articles, except in a lump by the secrétaire de la rédaction or the directeur-gérant, in order to conform to the law, and it does not appear to have been greatly benefited by the change. Yet this journal and L'Ordre show some of the ablest and most spirited polemic writing of any journals in France. A city of the size of Paris which supports about fifty daily journals (the number is constantly changing) could hardly fail to profit by a reduction to at least one-third, but this could only be done by the concentration of popular writers in a few journals, and none seem to have a sufficient capital to make the attempt. Of course it would be impossible to do so unless some five or six large journals were agreed, for the number of popular writers is so great that some of them must be left to the journals which are started on less than $1,000. The first capital of the Figaro was only $500, and numbers of the minor sheets have had a cash capital of less than $200. The caution money is generally advanced by some banker or leading man who has the journal for his special organ or his private use, and this is the more easily arranged since the recent trials have shown that a jury can scarcely be found to convict a journal for a political discussion. The private suits for libel cannot affect the caution money, and, under these circumstances, the débit de presse which would affect this caution money are very carefully avoided. To start a newspaper in Paris under the present system scarcely any capital is required, provided the co-operation of one or two popular writers is secured. It is certain, also, that the taste of the public is in favor of personal journalism, for as has been already said, very little attention is paid to news, the freshest telegrams being read after the picturesque essays of certain writers. It is confessed by most strangers in Paris that there is more in the system than at first appears, at least as regards the French language, and one feels a growing fondness for the sprightly articles which are daily given to the public. There is a certain charm about them which gains upon one, and, although they all lose something by translation, a better idea of them can be obtained from an example than from description.

THE PENSION OFFICE.

The Payment of Pensioners—The New Law—Frauds on the Government by Soldiers' Widows.

Col. DOTY, and his assistants of the Pension Agency in this City, have paid about 4,000 pensioners for the present quarter thus far, this being an unusually large number in so short a time. About 8,500 are on their rolls, so that nearly half have already been paid. At the next quarterly payment in September, the provisions of the new Pension law will come into force, and a considerable increase in some of the pensions will take place. The new act was passed by the last Congress only a week before the adjournment, and provides that private soldiers shall receive $18 per month instead of $8, when a leg has been lost in the service; and that $31 50 shall be paid to each one who has lost both legs or arms, or been made totally blind, so that where $25 per month was given for total disability under the old law, $31 50 is to be given hereafter. These facts are not yet generally known to the pensioners, and there will doubtless be many a maimed veteran made glad by the news.

Of late, Col. DOTY has become convinced that petty frauds have been practiced upon the Government by women pensioners on his rolls, the widows of soldiers or guardians of soldiers' orphans. Gen. A. B. SPURLING, special agent of the Treasury Department, was accordingly detailed by the Pension Bureau, to investigate, and he is now temporarily stationed in this City. His efforts have already been rewarded with success, several women, the widows of soldiers, having been detected in committing perjury, and drawing pensions after having been married again. The other day the widow of a First Lieutenant was found to be receiving $17 a month, although, for over two years she has been living with a man as his wife. Similar cases are now under investigation.

Charles Marlow Again Sentenced to Death.

CHARLES MARLOW, who murdered WILLIAM BACHMAN, in the town of Ellicott, Chautauqua County, on the 16th day of August, 1871, was again sentenced to be hanged at Buffalo on Wednesday by Judge JOHNSON, the execution being ordered to take place on the 2d of August. MARLOW was tried and convicted in Chautauqua County on the 15th of January last, and sentenced to be hanged on the 29th of May. On the 28th of March Justice BARKER granted a stay of proceedings and the case was brought before the General Term of the Supreme Court on a writ of error. The writ was argued last week and the General Term affirmed the judgment of the Court of Oyer and Terminer and issued the writ of habeas corpus to bring the prisoner into Court for the purpose of setting a time for the execution of the sentence. The prisoner appeared cool and collected and exhibited no emotion whatever.

The murder of WM. BACHMAN by MARLOW was one of the most cold-blooded and brutal on record. The scene of the murder was what is known as the Jamestown Brewery, and the attack made by MARLOW was of the most desperate character. The murderer inflicted a terrible wound on the left breast of his victim with a knife; he discharged a bullet from a revolver into the same part of the body; he applied a hammer to his head, and made free use of a heavy iron poker and an ax, and finally threw the body, either before death or immediately afterward, into the brewery furnace, where it was badly burned before it was discovered.

FRIDAY, June 14—P. M.

The sales of Gold have been ⅛@¼ ₱ cent. weaker than yesterday, and the transactions in Bills on London and in transfer of Gold by Cable are also easier, rendering the further considerable shipments of Gold for the present out of the question. The sales of Gold were at 113⅞@113⅝ ₱ cent., Transfers on London were done at 110⅜ ₱ cent. and demand Bills sold at 110¼ ₱ cent. The 60 days' rate on London is 109⅝ ₱ cent. on actual Cash transactions, although the quotation among the standard Bankers takes the wide range of 109⅝@109⅞ ₱ cent. The Cable news from London represents easy Money, and no disturbance to the English Funds or to American Stocks by the pending question at Geneva which is to take definite shape to-morrow.

Money in our own market is very easy and abundant, and the Brokers report loans on call from 6 ₱ cent. down to 4 ₱ cent. ₱ annum.

The speculation in the Share market at the Stock Exchange, which took the decided downward turn on the large business noticed yesterday, continued very active today, and with a more equal distribution of buyers and sellers. The sudden decline quite reasonably attracted outside attention to the market, especially while Money is cheap and everything ahead favors a liberal and remunerative traffic on the New-York and Western Roads. There was less recovery on the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Stock, although a heavy amount of business was done in it all through the day.

After the Second Board the following quotations were made on the general market, as compared with Thursday Afternoon. The Public Funds again ruled steady, 5-20s of 1867 at 117¼ ₱ cent.

In reference to the long-disputed question of the tax upon Capital, borrowed for employment by the Wall-street Brokers and Bankers, it should be satisfactory to know that Congress, in the new Tax bill, has properly and liberally construed the original act as excluding borrowed balances. This settles the point as to the future, besides affording the Brokers and Bankers fair claim for restitution of taxes heretofore, as they say, arbitrarily exacted. But we take leave to say that such claim, to be successful, must be made without implicating the honor of the Treasury or of Congress in reversing the construction of the law. Some one who is represented as having gone to Washington in the interest of the Brokers, on this subject, is credited with the "use of much money to effect his purpose." This insinuation, we know, on the authority of a member of the House of Representatives, who, as an old Wall-street man, took part in settling the construction of the original act, and on the authority of Mr. SHERMAN, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, is utterly without foundation. It is atrociously false so far as it affects the explanatory clause embraced in the new Tax bill.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western Flour has been in light demand, in most instances, at easier and irregular prices. HOPS—Have been held firmly, on much reduced offerings and a fair demand. Mr. EMMET WELLS remarks, in his circular, that "the stock of 1871s in this market is now reduced to less than 1,000 bales, including all grades. The supply of foreign is also very small, and wholly inadequate to the demand. Importations from Germany have ceased altogether, owing to the exhaustion of stocks and high prices in the Bavarian markets. The few arrivals of English Hops are taken up quick, at full prices. Some very fine samples of Sussex are now on offer, and are much admired for their delicacy of flavor, brightness of color and splendid picking. We believe this country is destined to be a large consumer of English Hops in seasons of short supplies of home growth. The importations thus far received here have given our brewers good satisfaction, as none but the genuine article have been put upon the market, while the same cannot be said of Bavarians. Our advices from the Hop districts continue rather unfavorable. The late rains have caused a rapid growth of vine, but there is much complaint of missing hills." The week's receipts of Domestic have been 327 bales; imports of Foreign, 125 bales. We quote crop of 1871 at 25c.@45c.@65c.@75c., the latter for extra choice; crop of 1870 at 10c.@35c., with fancy lots quoted up to 40c.@50c.; older growths at 8c.@15c.; foreign at 60c.@75c.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES.
New-York City.

☞ Throughout the Presidential canvass, we shall publish fuller reports of meetings and conventions in each State than any other New-York journal. Very full dispatches will be forwarded by telegraph, supplemented by careful letters. Our desire is to place before the public the latest and most trustworthy information, and we have made ample arrangements for that purpose.

We publish this morning a statement of the political condition of the country, based upon a careful sifting by our correspondent at Philadelphia of facts obtained from the thousands of Republicans gathered in that city, from all the States of the Union, during the sessions of the National Convention. The views of the informants of our correspondent as to the strength of Mr. GREELEY with the Democracy having been since verified by the action of several Democratic State Conventions, we are convinced that the letter to be found in our columns this morning presents an entirely fair view of the situation. The organized raid upon the Treasury which Judge MATHEWS dreaded in case of the election of Mr. GREELEY seems to be indefinitely postponed. "Reformer" FENTON and Patriot HUTCHINS have, of course, "ciphered out" a very different showing for the Tammany candidate, and will be at Baltimore prepared to prove to the hungry Democrats that GREELEY has rent the Republican Party assunder, and that with their help the "raid" is a sure thing. From present appearances the Democrats are likely to believe them, and there is to be a season of joyful expectancy, to be followed by bitter disappointment and mutual charges of swindling.

We promised to place before the public some information with reference to the system on which Sheriff BRENNAN conducts his office, and we make a beginning today toward the fulfillment of our pledge. The story is short and simple—it shows that BRENNAN makes the County pay at the rate of $1 or $1 50 (for his terms vary) for each arrest, whereas he is only entitled by law to fifty cents for each commitment. In this way he is enabled to "rake in" a good round sum of money. But this is only one source of his profits. We shall explain others in due season. The swindle in the system we expose today is obvious enough—and let it be remembered that BRENNAN is one of the men whom Mr. GREELEY bids the country to accept as "Reformers." The Tammany gang know that their only chance of full restoration to power depends upon the success of the Greeley faction, and hence they are all supporting it. Among GREELEY'S advocates there are few more earnest than MATT. BRENNAN.

No one thing will do so much to help the Republicans to an overwhelming victory in November as proper nominations for Congress, and we hope our friends in all the districts will speedily awaken to the necessity of putting before the people for these important positions men whose ability and political integrity cannot be questioned. It is the most essential part of the conspiracy to revive the moribund Democracy by the aid of HORACE GREELEY, that the House of Representatives shall be carried in the interest of the coalition, and in no way can it be so certainly baffled as by the Republicans nominating Congressmen who can poll the full party strength, and who are generally known to be trustworthy. We may need in the next House all the Parliamentary tact we can get, and as this is obtained only by experience, it may be well to nominate for reelection such of our members as have proved themselves faithful and able, and postpone to a more propitious season that "rotation in office" which is so dear to the politician hungering for place. We fear our friends have made some mistakes in this matter, and they cannot be often repeated without serious risk. In some cases, new men must, of course, for many reasons, be taken, and in all these instances the candidates should be men generally known as true and capable. We need a strong House of Representatives, and now is the time to secure it.

That other "Reformer," REUBEN E. FENTON, is spending the greater part of his days and nights in franking copies of Mr. SUMNER'S Billingsgate all over the country. We all remember that the Tribune (now almost as much FENTON'S "organ" as it is GREELEY'S) was horrified at the continued existence of the franking privilege—but it will say nothing about FENTON'S present abuse of it. The sort of Reform we should have if FENTON could do as he liked with the civil service, (as he soon would do if GREELEY ever became President,) is the Reform which a gang of thieves would carry out in the criminal laws. That is, he would flood the country with scoundrels, and then laugh at the people for being such fools as to allow him to do it.

No better reply to the indorsement of GRANT and WILSON by the Union League Club can be found by Mr. GREELEY'S organ than that the Republican ticket will be defeated by fifty thousand majority. This trick of giving figures confidently beforehand is one learned from TWEED, but we warn our too-confident friends that TWEED discovered last Fall that there were some majorities which cannot be counted away. Its reliance on Tammany frauds, after that experience, is one of the weakest points yet displayed by the Greeley organ.

Mr. Greeley and the South.

The struggle now going on to turn the Southern Democracy for Mr. GREELEY is a very earnest one. His Democratic allies see plainly that the battle must be won in that section, if at all. The extent of Mr. GREELEY'S strength in the North is scarcely worth calculating at this moment. It is certain that he has not yet attracted any large Republican support. It is equally certain that the Democracy are divided. He may add to or largely lose his strength, according as a united Southern advocacy is or is not obtained. Toward the South, therefore, the Democratic wire-pullers are directing all their energies.

At first they gave very flattering accounts of their success. Most people at the North supposed Southern Democrats to be pretty well agreed in feeling and opinion, and the first signs of public sentiment were, of course, in the affirmative. These were supposed to be conclusive, and the South has been for three weeks paraded as "a unit for GREELEY." Is this quite a correct statement of the situation?

We doubt it, and for these reasons: Many prominent Southern men have openly declared against Mr. GREELEY. Among these are Gen. MOSBY, Prof. EWELL, Hon. T. H. GILMER, Ex-Gov. WICKLIFFE. These names—and we might add to them by the score—are those of men representing widely different classes. MOSBY was a bitter, vindictive rebel. EWELL was an active and efficient officer in the Confederate army, and a man of character and intelligence. GILMER is a national Conservative, a politician, and an associate of the elder and once most influential men of the South. WICKLIFFE was an original Unionist, but a Democrat of the "Old Guard." The records of these men are very various. They have one thing in common in their present attitude. They look toward a peaceful and prosperous future for the South. Whatever may be their views of the policy of reconstruction, whatever objections they have made to the constitutional interpretation on which it is based, they are agreed in one thing: That reconstruction is a fact to be built upon, not to be overturned.

Now men of these views cannot accept the Greeley-Democratic coalition. It has no solid basis for them to stand upon. As partisans it outrages them. "I have all my life been a Democrat," says one of them, "and cannot vote for GREELEY without ignoring all political principles which have governed me in the past." As Southern men they are both insulted and alarmed by the prospect held out to them. They are insulted, because Mr. GREELEY is openly identified with the most offensive measures of the war and of reconstruction. He was extreme to the verge of inhumanity in his advocacy of military measures, and he has found nothing to criticise in the obnoxious reconstruction measures, except that they did not go far enough. They are alarmed, because they see in the combination surrounding him the hare-brained, reckless fire-eaters of the South, heated with vain hopes, kindling their old passions with promises of renewed political power—the plundering carpet-baggers, like WARMOTH, bent on strengthening their weakened hold on the South. From such a combination they know that no good can come. Lawlessness in the direction of violence and social disorder on the one hand, and lawlessness in the direction of corruption on the other, is threatened. From the one source can come only a deep disturbance of the progress of the South toward prosperity—a breaking up of the slowly-ripened harmony between employers and employed, and a direct blow at Southern production. From the other source can come only further robbery of the already tax-ridden Southern people. Is it unreasonable to suppose that these facts appeal to nearly all the Democrats of the South whom an actual property interest in their home has made sober and careful?

On the other hand, what have they to fear in the continuance of the Republican Party in possession of the National Government? The principles of reconstruction are forever settled. Whatever party may rule, equality, civil and political, before the law, can never be overthrown without another civil war. It would be absurd, then, to seek to change the Government because of what the party in power has done, if that can never be undone. The evil effects of reconstruction are now gone, or going. Political disabilities have been removed. The State Governments are passing into the hands of the full local constituencies. Corrupt government is on the wane. With a sense of stability in the community, with a reasonable assurance of four years more of national progress equal to that of the last two, uninterrupted by political changes, the future of the South is as safe as anything human.

Are we to suppose that this side of the argument will not present itself to the best men of the South? We believe that it will, and that the nomination of Mr. GREELEY at Baltimore would divide the Democracy of the South as the storm divides a half-decayed tree-top, carrying the worthless half down to ruin, and leaving the remainder to a new and stronger growth.

Tammany Republican Black-Washing.

We have not been in haste to comment upon what is by courtesy called the Minority Report of the Custom-house Investigating Committee. The report itself brings forward no evidence that is not as stale and as dry as an old ship-biscuit. There are the same moldy, decaying slanders that were so thoroughly, yet so vainly, aired months ago, but nothing else. It is the old dish of "GRANT a la TOM MURPHY," on which the Tammany Republicans fed themselves and tried to feed the public for so long. The so-called report, superfluous and out of order, of two violent partisans, is received by some journals which call themselves Republican, and which once had some claim to that designation, as a kind of political gospel. In their hearts they rejoice over this help which has come to them from implacable enemies of the Republican Party and its principles. For when did it happen before that the arraignment of two Democrats—and Democrats of such a stripe!—was taken as conclusive against the men or the measures of the Republican Party?

We have heard of white-washing reports; but if there was ever a piece of deliberate, predetermined black-washing, it is this performance of Messrs. BAYARD and CASSERLY, who have now worthily completed the dirty work they began with the first sittings of the Committee. They devote themselves chiefly to that about which the most noise was made, the performances of "that young man LEET." The endeavor of the minority of the Committee to connect Gen. GRANT with LEET, and to make the former responsible for the latter, fails entirely. Such a connection, or such a responsibility, is absurd upon its face. For these people would have us believe, for example, that Gen. GRANT was under such obligations to Mr. STEWART that he was ready to make any political sacrifice to give him a place in the Cabinet as Secretary of the Treasury; and yet that this young man LEET, who had not a dollar to give, or a feather's weight of influence to lend, had such a hold on him that he swept Mr. STEWART aside for LEET'S sake, and not only Mr. STEWART, but Mr. GRINNELL and other men of like position and influence. What man, not blinded by prejudice and passion, will believe such folly?

But the unscrupulousness of the authors of this minority report is shown again by the effrontery with which they reproduce the old slander about LEET and the mess, which he was said to have demanded more money to support. If ever any story was utterly discredited, and proved to be the merest idle fiction, this was, and by evidence which was complete and unimpeachable. The whole story about Gens. PORTER and BABCOCK, and LEET'S influence with them, and through them with the President, was blown to pieces; and yet here we have it in this minority report, put together and stuck upon its legs as if it had some life in it, and was not a rotten and dismembered, ghostless corpse.

As to the corruption that was discovered in the Custom-house, there was in the proper sense of the word, none discovered at all. Nothing was revealed, because nothing was told that was not previously known. There was just so much corruption shown as will always be found among large bodies of under-paid men, while human nature remains what it is; just so much as would be found in the public offices of any administration of this country, or of any other country, at any period; except that if we were to go back a generation or two we should find it much greater. The grave assertion in this report that "positions are given to men upon the nomination of politicians," is one of the coolest pieces of political Pecksniffism that was ever heard of. How it must have astonished the minds, and grieved the souls, of two Democratic Senators like Messrs. BAYARD and CASSERLY to discover that, during the three years of Gen. GRANT'S Administration the civil service of the country had fallen so low that positions in the Custom-house were actually given upon the nomination of politicians! How different it would be if GREELEY were elected President! There are no office-seekers waiting around him with open mouths—no Fentons, Mudgetts, and Palmers. But, again, the spirit of BAYARD and CASSERLY'S report is shown by their making a practice half a century old a charge against Gen. GRANT, when he, leading civil service reform, and lending it all the weight of his influence, is doing everything in his power that positions may not be given upon nomination of politicians. Upon such a report it is needless and vain to waste more words. Those who wished to use the investigation as a political engine will welcome this campaign document, and print it with Senator SUMNER'S recent speech—its worthy fellow. Those who care merely for the credit of the country and of the Senate will be ashamed of this, as they were also of the other.

Strikes and Strikers.

The strikers are evidently about to defeat themselves. The use of compulsion to deter men from working the full day's time, and the forcing of others to join the strikes, are tyrannical measures, and will cause a reaction of public opinion against the working men. The question will be asked if we are to have on a new stage here the disgusting and atrocious scenes of the British "unions" and their tyranny, of which READE has given so graphic a picture in his novels.

Our American people are as much averse to oppression and injustice, exercised by a working class, as by an aristocracy. They do not believe in shooting or maiming men who are doing their honest day's work, whether the act be perpetrated by members of unions or members of oligarchies. The voice of common sense and justice is stronger in this country than all the outcries of one class against another. The workman himself expects soon to be a capitalist, and therefore cannot approve of too harsh dealing toward those who disagree with their class, or toward their employers.

We see something of the influence of this intelligent common sense in the fact that the workmen of one of the largest factories here—the Singer Sewing-machine—have apparently come back to the old ten-hour plan. That the Messrs. BREWSTERS' workmen should have revolted is a most unexpected and disappointing phenomenon, as that manufactory is one of the few instances of co-operation in New-York, the laborers receiving ten per cent. of the profits. It would apparently prove that that species of co-operative production does not restrain the workmen from struggles against their employers. It would be interesting to hear, from some of the more intelligent working men, how they justified such a strike as that. To us it appears the most foolish and indefensible strike we ever heard of. In many trades, we are convinced that the laborers are deeply injuring themselves by their strikes. Rents and taxation are already driving numbers of manufacturers into Connecticut, New-Jersey, Long Island and Westchester County. Some trades are even driven as far away as Massachusetts.

Now, a sudden addition of twenty-five per cent. to wages will close many factories in this City, and will cause the business to be carried on in the surrounding country. The factories on the Hudson are doing full days' work, and in all probability the strikes will not reach them. They will either drive the competing houses of New-York out of the field, or they will compel them to transfer their machinery to the country. The piano manufacturers seem about to remove from the City, and no doubt many others will do so. Then it should be remembered that, owing to the tariff, many of our manufactures can hardly keep above water. The taxes on raw materials make it impossible for them to compete with similar foreign products. Now, a sudden addition of wages will evidently almost ruin them. Such dealers will close their shops and factories, as the machine-makers and ship-builders have done before them. It would not be at all a remarkable result of these strikes, if many large branches of manufactures were broken up in this City. Bad legislation and taxation have already driven away some of our commercial business to other cities. Eight-hour days and strikes may do the same with our manufactures.

Certain branches, it is true, will always remain here. We must have buildings, and we must paint, and furnish, and have plumbing-work done in them. These trades may obtain what they seek. But if they do, they merely add to the universal expense of living. Every shop-keeper and landlord will charge some of this twenty-five per cent. advance on rent or prices of commodities. New-York will be a dearer City than ever.

We wonder that our manufacturers and employers of labor do not offer one reasonable compromise to the workmen—and that is, to pay them by the hour. Then, if a laborer chooses to secure more time to himself for leisure or improvement, or any other object, he can have it, but loses so much of his wages. The master does not compel him to labor ten hours. He pays him for his time, whether it be for twelve or for six hours, or for one hour. This is a perfectly reasonable offer. It is the principle guiding the remuneration paid many other branches of work. It ought to determine the payment of a laborer's work. "A fair day's wages for a fair day's work," half wages for a half day's work. The laboring class could not long object to such a proposition. They might ask higher wages for each hour, but that is their own affair. They would be paid according to what they did. We have no doubt that either this mode, or payment by piece-work, will be the solution of this great question. In the mean time, however, there must be much suffering and disorder.

Shall We Have Clean Streets?

Street-cleaning as a department of City business is to cost a good deal of money. The Police Board has submitted for the approval of the Mayor and Controller an official estimate full of ridiculous blunders in detail, but the gross amounts of the various divisions of which, we assume to be correct. From this it appears that under the head of rents, pay-rolls, and maintenance of the department generally, there will be required for the six months and twenty-one days remaining of the year, at date of estimate, the sum of $629,004. A simple calculation will show that this amounts to $1,125,306 per annum. To this must apparently be added about $10,000 a year for stationery and various incidental expenses, and allowing twenty per cent. per annum for depreciation of plant, which is valued at $338,150, (one-fifth being equal to $67,630,) we have a total yearly expenditure on account of street cleaning of $1,202,936. This, as will be perceived, is equal to an outlay of $3,295 74 for every day in the year. There are people who talk hopefully about a remunerative return, of a very handsome nature, being derived from the street-sweepings, garbage, &c., which come into the possession of the Department. It is, perhaps, safe to confine our expectations of revenue from such a source within moderate limits. The Board of Police evidently counts manure as worthless, since no note of it has been made in the estimates. We can only account for the omission on the theory that since the collapse of the Bowling-green Savings Bank, President SMITH has not enjoyed his accustomed frequency of intercourse with Mr. GREELEY, whose agricultural experience would have been extremely valuable in a case like the present.

Under BROWN'S contract, the nominal cost of cleaning the streets was $351,736. But, under the estimates of 1871, as of previous years, there was apportioned for "additional" street-cleaning, $105,000; for removing snow and ice from Broadway, $92,428; for street-cleaning under Board of Health, $9,823, and for removing night-soil, offal, &c., $40,750; making in all, $599,737. If we mistake not, these amounts failed to cover all that BROWN demanded and partly received at the close of 1871. We assume that each of these items as well as a few thousands more for "sprinkling" roads and avenues, will be covered by the new Street-cleaning Bureau. Briefly, the Board of Police asks for about double the amount paid to BROWN. As out of this amount BROWN made money and paid heavy assessments to the politicians who had got him the contract besides, it will be perceived that the Police Commissioners have an enormous margin out of which to effect the urgently-needed improvement in the state of the streets. To the fulfillment of their bargain, the public will hold them very strictly to account. After a reasonable interval has been allowed for perfect organization, the condition of the public highways will be narrowly watched, and for every pestilence-breeding heap of rotting filth the Board of Police must bear the direct responsibility. Any attempt to pervert the Street-Cleaning Department to political purposes will be resented with an emphasis proportioned to the more or less direct tampering with human life which would be involved in such a proceeding. The control of another fifteen hundred voters may seem to the political tricksters of the Police Board too good an opportunity to be thrown away. This danger has been clearly foreseen by the public, who welcomed any change in a business which had been so grossly and fatally mismanaged. The Police Commissioners will therefore have the satisfaction of knowing that any packing of the Bureau with mere political hacks will be a very hazardous experiment for themselves.

We give in another column a tolerably exhaustive account of the condition of the principal down-town streets as visited by our reporters. From this it will be perceived that some of the most potent aids of pestilence still exist in our midst, in alarming profusion. Two conclusions to be gleaned from this report deserve immediate attention. One is, that absolutely perfect street-cleaning is a simple impossibility while the paving of down-town thoroughfares is in such an execrable condition. The other is, that while the inhabitants of down-town wards are permitted to throw into the street, from doors and windows, all varieties of household refuse, six cleanings per diem would be found insufficient to keep down the supply of decaying garbage and sickening stenches.

Where to Go This Summer.

No country in the world enjoys so great a variety of pleasant Summer resorts as ours. And yet our people do not know how to deal with them, nor do the hotel and lodging-house keepers understand, as a general thing, how to make them attractive or comfortable. If our "high and mighty" hotel landlords, and our money-making steam-boat-owners, would condescend to take a lesson from the Germans, we are persuaded they would make much more money, and give the public far more satisfaction. Even a German beer-garden is an immensely more attractive place than some of our first-class hotels. In this climate people want shade, and, if possible, a place to eat and drink in, with the free air around and a view beyond. To be shut up in a heated, close dining-room, filled with flies, and smelling of superannuated boiled cabbage, is not the entertainment the "tired denizens" of a city "hanker after" when they call for a dinner at a country or sea-side hotel. In Germany, at a similar house, the waiter would show you to a cool, open garden, or a large, airy hall, with the best views the region could afford. The windows would be ornamented with flowers, and the doors arched with vines. Dining under such circumstances becomes an aesthetic enjoyment instead of an infliction.

With such a superb river as the Hudson, in Germany, there would be every facility offered the public for enjoying it. Romantic hotels would be built on the Palisades, and near every green forest ravine. The river boats would have saloon-decks, where families could dine under awnings, and enjoy the unequaled scenery, or solitary travelers could call for their cooling drinks, and sip them in view of the changing panorama.

So with some of the sea-side resorts we have within easy reach. They would not be, under skillful management, the dismal and cheerless localities they are now. But, more than this, our people do not select well the places which are offered them for Summer resort. We have a sea-border, which, from Hampton to Mount Desert, has an unequaled variety of gentle and grand scenery, and where every sort of accommodation can be found, from the hotels of Long Branch and the farm-houses of Long Island, to the luxurious cottages of Newport, the beautiful villas of the Massachusetts coast, and the bare taverns of Mount Desert. Yet the mass of the people know of nothing but Long Branch and Newport on this beautiful coast.

The prices, too, vary with the accommodations, and range from $7 a week to the highest expense of a Newport cottage. So with our mountains. The traveling public know of nothing but the Catskills and the White Mountains; and yet there are most interesting towns in the Blue Ridge and the Alleghanies, and our own State offers a mountain region of altogether original and attractive nature—the sanitarium of the Eastern States; we mean the Adirondacks. Nothing in Swiss atmosphere can surpass the purity and the salubrity of the air of these mountains, while the journey by canoe or small boat through their lakes, and the camp-life for a few weeks there, is by far the healthiest excursion which can be offered to men or women, worn out by overwork, society, or care. Even the plain fare and hard accommodations encountered are a means of health to most "victims of civilization." The trip is an expensive one, but much of the advantage can be derived from the air and the rough life there with but trifling expense, if the farm-houses or plain taverns are visited, and guides be dispensed with. Very interesting tours can also be made with rod and gun through the waters of Canada and the Provinces, or steam-boat and rail journeys on and near the St. Lawrence and Saguenay. The cottages of the habitans near these rivers offer very healthful and cheap resorts for a Summer.

One of the most novel, though somewhat difficult, Summer journeys to be made in this country, is to Lake Superior, and by the Northern Pacific into the wilderness, finally reaching that wonderful geyser-region, the Yellow Stone country. Or, if this be thought too difficult, let our traveler take the train to Denver, and then go by carriage by excellent roads to the wonderful plateau of Colorado, its springs and its parks. There he can "camp" and lead a tent-life for a few weeks, and gain a new vigor in the dry and stimulating atmosphere; or, he may choose a country tavern where he can be fairly comfortable.

But the crowning tour of all—one which is not surpassed in Switzerland or Norway—is the journey to the Yosemite Valley. A week or ten days will bring the tourist to San Francisco, and then, making up his party, he can spend a fortnight amid the most wonderful scenery of this continent, breathing an atmosphere which all travelers call unequaled for its life-giving and stimulating properties.

A few weeks spent in this remarkable region would be of more value and pleasure to our worn-out business men than months of ordinary journeying. Beyond this, too, are the California trips to the Geysers, the big trees, and a most attractive journey to the Columbia River. There is no lack of resorts to our Summer pleasure-seekers—the gentle and the wild; the cheap and the expensive; the near and the remote. There is not the slightest necessity for following every Summer the same round of tours. Each year could bring a new journey and fresh scenes and novel experiences.

MINOR TOPICS.

President GRANT has made an eminently proper appointment in selecting Gen. THOMAS B. VAN BUREN, of New-Jersey, to represent the United States at the International Exposition in Vienna next year. No gentleman could have been selected whose observations there would have been of more value to his country.

The Tribune of yesterday remarks: "A prominent citizen of Flushing propounds this pathetic conundrum: 'We have one Grant man in this place. He is a great curiosity. He looks as if he wanted an office. What shall we do with him?'" So confirmed a joker as the Tribune editor, who wrote a satire on the conduct of that paper, under the pretext of discussing the true method of journalism, must be expected to sacrifice truth to humor. Careful investigation has discovered one voter in Flushing who avows his intention of supporting the Cincinnati ticket, while, on the other hand, the news-dealer in that village asserts that the sale of the Tribune among his customers has fallen off nearly 150 copies since Mr. GREELEY'S nomination.

A well-meaning Coroner's Jury have accompanied a verdict on the murder of AUGUSTUS BROWN, with the recommendation that the Police should "prevent all gatherings of corner loafers." Beneficial as such a step might be, the request seems rather indefinite. For, if the Police are simply expected to prevent the rowdies from obstructing the sidewalks, that forms a portion of their duty already, and it is difficult to see what more they could legally do under such a recommendation. On the other hand, the jury might seasonably enough have made the suggestion that ward roughs, who are also politicians, should be treated like other criminals, both by the Police and the committing Magistrates.

The Springfield Republican tries very hard to wriggle out of the hole in which the Cincinnati nomination placed it. It says, in yesterday's issue, that many of the opponents of the Administration will "hesitate to vote for GREELEY," and that "they have not taken their necks out of one party yoke merely to put them into another." It would be very glad to see Mr. ADAMS substituted for Mr. GREELEY. If the Republican does not mind what it is about, it will be classed by the Tribune with the "Grant organs," and then what would become of it?

The farewell speech of Lord LISGAR, at the closing of the session of the Canadian Parliament, presents, as usual with such productions, no points of special interest. The retiring Governor assumes that the adoption by the Canadians of the articles of the Treaty of Washington which affect their interests, has placed in a clear light their "determination to share the fortunes of England." Correctly as this may represent the present feeling of the majority of the people of the Dominion, we should think they would very generally object to have the act of a mere parliamentary majority considered as a binding pledge of the popular decision for all future time.

One of the most absurd of superstitions has been that relative to the bite of the spider called the Tarantute, which takes its name from Taranto, in Italy. For centuries the more ignorant of the Italians have imagined that the wound of this insect is fatal unless cured by music, which aroused the person wounded from the lethargic stupor caused by the venom, and by keeping him constantly moving saved his life—thence the "swift, delirious sort of Italian dance in whirling six-eight measure" known as the Tarantella. Dr. CARVILLO, a distinguished medical professor at Naples, has lately been exposing the fallacy of this vulgar notion by purposely getting bitten, and wholly abstaining from any dervish-like gambols. Time, which unassisted cures so many ailments, cured the professor, to the great disappointment of the musical therapeutists.

AMUSEMENTS.

English Opera.

The series of English opera recitals at Bryant's will close this evening with a benefit performance by which Mr. W. W. SEGUIN, manager of the enterprise, is to profit. "The Doctor of Alcantara" will then be sung. At the matinée, "Martha" will be done. Last evening, "The Doctor of Alcantara" was represented for the first time this season. Mr. EICHBERG'S clever compilation—for "The Doctor of Alcantara" is in no sense an original work—is a tuneful and vivacious operetta, which would bear far more frequent repetition than it has had since it was interpreted at the French Theatre, five or six years ago. Its amusing story and melodious score were dealt with very happily yesterday. Mr. SEGUIN'S company is much better fitted for rendering opera comique than for the exposition of the more trying compositions attempted until Friday. Little fault could be found with this latest representation. Miss EMMA HOWSON sang the music allotted to Isabella with precision and taste; Mrs. ZELDA SEGUIN captivated the audience equally by her singing and acting, and Mr. EDWARD SEGUIN supplied, as when "The Doctor of Alcantara" was produced, a most elaborate and amusing picture of Doctor Parcelsus. The remaining rôles were filled by Miss SCHOFIELD and Messrs. CHATTERSON, HOWSON and BARTLEMAN. The performance was remarkably spirited, and elicited lively tokens of satisfaction from a very large audience.

ILLINOIS.

Democratic and Liberal Conventions—The Tammany Candidate Losing Ground.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CHICAGO, Monday, June 10, 1872.

The near approach of the State Conventions—Democratic and "Liberal," but practically one and the same thing—creates some interest, although it is well understood what their action is to be. The Democratic Convention will appoint GREELEY delegates to Baltimore, and then there will be a fusion on a State ticket, on which Democrat and Liberal will be beautifully dovetailed in together. There is not much said about the candidates, but I suspect that KOERNER, of Belleville, will go on for Governor, and a Northern Democrat, COOLBAUGH or HOYNE, of this city, for Lieutenant. But it is difficult to tell, as everything is at sea yet. Many favor the nomination of PALMER for Governor, but I am of opinion he is not anxious to run the risk, but had rather hold off, looking out for Senatorial chances.

THE LIBERALS WEAKENING.

I do not think the Liberal movement is as strong in this State as it was immediately after the Cincinnati Convention. Republicans who were for the moment led astray, finding that, like poor Tray, they had got into bad company, and were likely to suffer from it, are gradually working their way back. The Chicago Times opposes GREELEY personally with great bitterness, and opposes his nomination by the Baltimore Convention in the most energetic manner. From its present course, it does not seem possible that the Times can be brought into his support, even with a Democratic indorsement. And the Times has a large influence still with the Democratic masses of the State, and, if it continues to oppose GREELEY through the canvass, more Democrats will not vote for him than Republicans will vote for him. In my trip of some hundreds of miles through the country last week I was surprised at the few Greeley men I found. I came across some who would go for him; but on inquiry found them all, with a single exception, to be of the Democratic persuasion; and most of these had a proviso that if no separate Democratic nomination were made. "What I know about farming" don't seem to captivate the farmers of Illinois. They want somebody at Washington who knows about State affairs, and as GREELEY'S farm-book is full of crudities and impracticabilities, they are fearful that so will be his Presidency, should the fates ever inflict him upon the country in that capacity. All thinking men do not consider it an act of wisdom to transfer a New-York Ward politician into the Executive chair of the nation.

College Commencements in New-Jersey.

The annual Commencement exercises of the two colleges in New-Jersey will take place this month—that of Rutgers, at New-Brunswick, next week, and of Nassau Hall, at Princeton, the succeeding one. At New-Brunswick, in addition to the usual Junior exhibition, Baccalaureate sermon, Alumni meetings, reunion of literary societies, exercises by the scientific department, and the formal Commencement proceedings, there will be the opening of the Geological Hall. Gov. PARKER is to preside, and short addresses are expected from the following gentlemen: Rev. John A. Todd, D. D., Class of 1845; Hon. Peter D. Vroom, Hon. T. F. Randolph; Hon. A. B. Hasbrouck, Ex-President of the College; Hon. John A. Lott, Hon. R. H. Pruyn, (1833,) Hon. J. P. Bradley, (1836,) Hon. F. T. Frelinghuysen, (1836,) Hon. Cortlandt Parker, (1836) Hon. R. L. Larremore, (1850, President of the Alumni Association,) Hon. William H. Hendrickson, (President of the Board of Visitors.) Of the Graduating Class at the College, the honors have been awarded as follows: Valedictory, George H. Stevens, Albany; Latin Salutatory, William J. Leggett, Hudson, N. Y.; English Salutatory, Martin N. Wyckoff, Middlebush; Philosophical Oration, Charles A. Dunham, New-Brunswick.

Nassau Hall at Princeton will observe its 125th annual Commencement. The programme just issued announces the Baccalaureate sermon by Dr. MCCOSH on Sunday, 23d; Class Day exercises on Monday; gymnastic exhibition, oration by Senator FRELINGHUYSEN before the Literary Societies. Alumni meeting and Junior orations on Tuesday, and the graduating exercises, conferring of degrees, &c., on Wednesday, closing with the Alumni dinner in the afternoon. Trains are announced to leave New-York at 7 and 8 o'clock A. M., returning at 4:55 and 7:50 P. M. The quarter centennial meeting of the Class of 1847, the decennial meeting of the Class of 1862 and the triennial meeting of the Class of 1869 will also be held at this Commencement. ### The Next Vice-President in the City.

Hon. HENRY WILSON, Republican candidate for Vice-President, was in the City, yesterday, at the Astor House, where he was called upon by a large number of prominent Republicans. Senator WILSON spoke with the utmost confidence to his friends of the prospects of a grand triumph in November for the Republican ticket. He has not yet made any arrangements for taking a personal part in the campaign; but announces that he is ready to make addresses to the people in such States as may be determined upon by the National Committee. Now, as always heretofore, he is entirely at the service of the cause of freedom, and ready to do his full share of whatever work may be required to make more decisive an already assured triumph. He left last evening for his home at Natick, Mass., where a hearty welcome awaits him from those old neighbors who for so many years have delighted to do him honor.

Hon. HENRY WILSON spent the afternoon of yesterday in Brooklyn, and held a protracted interview with Mr. FRANKLIN WOODRUFF, Chairman of the Committee of Seventy-five, and also of the Republican Executive Committee of Kings County. Mr. WILSON will not speak in Brooklyn at present, but will return later in the campaign to deliver an address at the Academy of Music, and to be present at a reception to be given him at Mr. WOODRUFF'S residence. The Senator took the 8 P. M. train for Boston.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Bowling-Green Savings Bank.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

For the last two or three months at intervals, we have been promised a dividend of at least twenty-five per cent. The last promise was to be fulfilled June 3; the reason or excuse for not paying then, was that "HANK SMITH" had not paid in $20,000, that was due April 1. So now it seems the depositors must wait "HANK SMITH'S" pleasure. Mr. SMITH'S indorsers are said to be responsible. Among them is JAY GOULD. Why not, then, enforce collection, so long past due? The Market Savings Bank, that was considered so poor in assets, have now thirty per cent. on hand to pay their depositors, showing they have a live man for their receiver. There is evidently a growing dissatisfaction against Mr. KNAPP as receiver. Some man with energy is needed, and must be had. A DEPOSITOR.

Dana's Statue to Greeley—What has Become of the Money?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

What has become of that project for a statue to our "Later Franklin," which was to add beauty and dignity to Printing-house-square? We recollect that shortly after the Cincinnati Convention the Sun published its semi-occasional "statement," accompanied by an urgent appeal to the public to come down with the balance of funds required for the undertaking, but we have heard nothing further concerning it. Whether we are to have the statue indeed, or whether the enterprise is to remain in statu quo, we are left in doubt. Is not such apathy rather unaccountable, when "enthusiasm" for the "great original" is so "universal and overwhelming?" Where is "the Boss" and the smaller fry of the old Tammany school that they do not respond to this demand for a statue of their friend and admired candidate? Where are "the masses" whom the "great and good HORACE" has labored for these many years, that they do not come forward and contribute their mite to embalm in enduring brass the classic form and features of their benefactor? INQUIRER.

The Crazy Candidate.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

From my childhood until a month ago the Tribune has been my newspaper. Our whole family was brought up on it. We were taught to believe in HORACE GREELEY as a pure patriot and an honest man, who would not falter in principle. We were ready to vote for him solid for any position. But now what? "We are seven," and we stand the perfect number ready to cast a solid vote against him. We are sadly disappointed—I might almost say disgusted—by his recreancy. Cursed ambition has ruined him. He ranks with our fallen Chief-Justice an object of pity.

My father, now well advanced in years, finds it hard to give up his old friend; he avoids talking about it, simply saying, "I shall vote for GRANT." So say we all. L. W.

YONKERS, Thursday, June 13, 1872.

Greeley Republicans—A Party of "Dead Beats."

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

A countryman was at the Astor House, a few days ago, inquiring for the Greeley Committee. He was shown several of them. After looking at them and the political scalawags toadying about them, he remarked that he had never seen so shabby a party of "dead beats;" and if they were City representatives of the Greeley Republicans, they were just like the few Greeley Republicans in the country. He said the Greeley Republicans in the country were played-out politicians, whom the Republican Party was glad to get rid of—that the Republican Party would be stronger without them and the Democratic Party weaker with them. He spoke the exact truth. Look at the played-out Cochranes, Kilpatricks and Barnums at the Astor House, and their "dead-beat" counterparts in the country, and you can see what a shabby, out-at-the-elbows, forlorn set of soreheads Greeley Republicans are! They are blowhards, who would like to borrow a dollar, as certain voters in the country like to borrow a quarter before voting on election day. That GREELEY could think of being elected President by the support of such a ring-streaked speckled, and piebald set of played-out politicians shows the kind of a President he would make if the people were mad enough or insane enough to elect him! It is to be hoped that the Baltimore Convention will indorse GREELEY'S nomination, so that a bad and unwholesome party and the "dead beats" may all be buried together for the common good. A READER.

THE BROWN MURDER.

The Inquest Before Coroner Young—Verdict Against Smith and Tully.

The murder of Mr. AUGUST BROWN, of No. 78 Lewis-street, who, while returning to his residence from the theatre, accompanied by his wife, on last Saturday night, was beaten to death by a gang of rowdies, was investigated by Coroner YOUNG yesterday. JOHN SMITH, who struck down Mr. BROWN, JAMES and RICHARD TULLY, and RICHARD, alias "Dock," and JOHN ALLISON, all members of the assemblage of loafers known as "the Division-street gang," were in custody. The TULLYS and the ALLISONS respectively are brothers. JAMES TULLY, who escaped at the time of the assault, and who was thought to have left the City, was found by Capt. MCDONNELL at work in a coal-yard in Hester-street, on Thursday, and arrested. Three other members of the gang have left the City. The first witness examined was Mrs. BROWN, who swore that while returning from the theatre with her husband, she was insulted at the corner of Attorney and Division streets by a gang of roughs, and one of them threatened to strike her husband, at which the latter began to pull off his coat, when one of the prisoners, JOHN SMITH, struck him and he fell, his head striking the sidewalk She screamed, "My God, you have murdered my husband." Some persons came across the street and helped to carry her husband to a drug-store and then to his residence. A doctor came and said he was dying. He was removed to Bellevue Hospital, where he died, never having regained consciousness or speech from the time he was struck.

EDWARD CROLIUS, of No. 227 Division-street, saw the affair from his three-story window, but could not identify any of the prisoners.

HENRY BAUMAN, a little shoe-black, residing at No. 220 Stanton-street, swore that he was present at the occurrence. JOHN TULLY and FRANK ALLISON were there; saw a hand strike BROWN and the latter fall. After repeated questions the witness reluctantly identified SMITH as the one who struck the blow. The witness then began to cry, and said that while sitting in the Court-room another boy had threatened "if he squealed to break his head into two pieces." This boy, on being pointed out and arrested, proved to be one JOHN ROSENTHAL, of No. 197 East Broadway. Coroner YOUNG ordered him to be locked up.

GEORGE SPELFADER, of No. 19 Sheriff-street, swore that he saw SMITH strike BROWN, and immediately after heard him say to the other members of the gang, "I gave him a good one; that ought to settle him."

MARY ANN BUCKLEY, a little girl residing in Mr. BROWN'S house, swore that JAMES TULLY and WILLIAM ALLISON were among those who carried BROWN home. TULLY said he had a mind to stay all night.

Officer HESS, of the Thirteenth Precinct, swore that he overtook the men carrying BROWN into a drug-store. He suggested that BROWN be brought to the Station-house. Mrs. BROWN preferred he should be removed to her residence, and JAMES TULLY, the only one of the prisoners that the officer saw there, seemed more anxious that BROWN should not be taken to the Station-house than even Mrs. BROWN was.

After Deputy Coroner MARSH had read his post-mortem examination, showing that death resulted from fracture of the skull caused by violence, Coroner YOUNG charged the jury.

After a short absence, the jury found the following verdict: "That AUGUST BROWN came to his death by a blow on the head at the hands of JOHN SMITH, on the night of June 8, 1872; and we further find that JAMES TULLY was accessory thereto, and we urgently recommend that the Police authorities take immediate steps for the entire suppression of all gangs of corner loafers."

SMITH, on being formally examined, said he was born in this City, is twenty-one years old, a shoe-maker, residing at No. 10 Ridge-street. TULLY said he was twenty years old, born in the City, a laborer, residing at No. 239 Henry-street. They were committed to the Tombs to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The prisoners RICHARD TULLY and JOHN and RICHARD ALLISON were committed to the House of Detention as witnesses. Owing to their desperate character, it was deemed necessary by Capt. MCDONNELL to handcuff them, which was done. The boys, HENRY BAUMAN and GEORGE SPELFADER, were also held as witnesses and taken to the House of Detention.

School Receptions.

The boys of Grammar School No. 11, gave their annual reception yesterday, presenting a programme of unusual interest. "An Old-Fashioned Spelling-Match," was conducted by City Superintendent KIDDLE, which was entered into with great zest by the boys. Dr. JOHN HOWE gave a "consolation prize" to the vanquished. Hon. B. SMITH, State Superintendent of Public Schools, presided, and addresses were made by Major-Gen. A. S. WEBB, Dr. J. HOWE, Superintendent KIDDLE, Mr. J. W. GREATON, and others. A number of graduates leave this school for the College of the City of New-York.

The pupils of Grammar School No. 4, (Colored) gave their annual reception yesterday. The programme consisted of exercises in singing, declamation, reading, &c. Superintendent KIDDLE distributed a large number of certificates, and pronounced the appearance of the school very creditable. Addresses were made by Rev. A. CRUMMELL of Africa; Rev. J. JONSON, Rev. W. F. BUTLER, Mr. KINNEY and others.

THE REFORMED SYNOD.

The Amended Constitution Adopted—Report on the Domestic Missions.

After the usual opening devotional exercises yesterday morning, the Synod proceeded to business, Dr. ELMENDORF presiding.

The constitution, as amended, was brought up for discussion. Dr. VERMILYE suggested slight changes in form No. 1 in the appendix, which were made. By unanimous consent, the formulas in the appendix were laid on the table.

Dr. PELTZ moved that the amended constitution be submitted to the Classis for adoption as a whole, with the exception of certain specified sections, which shall be submitted separately, with the recommendation of the Synod. After discussion this was adopted.

Dr. VERMILYE moved that the Committee on Revision have the formulas and rules of order recommitted to them, with instructions to transfer them to the next Synod.

Dr. PELTZ felt that this work was not yet in a proper shape for submission to the Classis; and he, therefore, recommended that the Classis consider the two constitutions together, and should they in any case fail to agree upon the proposed change, then the old sections shall stand. This he held was necessary; because, should the old constitution be annulled, and the new one not adopted, then there would be no General Synod.

Mr. DOLITTLE did not think there was anything to fear in this direction. The Classis, he said, could act only upon the recommendations of the General Synod.

Rev. Mr. GANSE offered a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of five ministers and three laymen to consider a union with the Presbyterian Church South, and report upon the same to the next Synod. This was unanimously adopted, as was also a report from the Committee appointed to consider the proposed consolidation of the Church Boards, recommending that they be allowed to remain as they are at present.

The report of the Committee on Domestic Missions was submitted. It says:

"In 1832 there were about 400 churches, and the amount contributed for extension was about $5,000, most of which was expended in itinerating agencies. During the first decade the number of churches reached 237, and the amount contributed had risen to $9,000, and about thirty-five missions were aided. In 1852 there were 328 churches, and the contributions rose to $17,000; and during the decade now closed there are probably 475 churches, and the amount contributed to the cause of domestic missions is $35,478 01. During the year just closed your Board has had under its care eighty-eight missions, and has sustained, in whole or in part, eighty-five missionaries. These missionary pastors have had charge of 4,893 families, and of 6,688 members of their churches. They have received on confession of their faith 619, and added by certificate 368. Thus making a total addition of discipleship to the Master's cause of 987 souls. And beside this, the missionaries have had the supervision of 108 Sabbath-schools, in which there is an average attendance of 8,727 children reported—thus unquestionably bringing 10,000 children under the blessed influence of Sabbath-school instruction, beside a large number who receive catechetical instruction from the missionaries. It has been a year of sharp trials, and yet a year of great mercies. In the midst of wrath God has remembered mercy.

The receipts and expenditures were as follows: Two hundred and eighty-six churches have contributed $22,918 53, an increase of $641 37 over last year; Sunday-schools gave $4,106 29, an increase of $1,384 71 over last year; individuals have contributed $6,805 84, being an increase of $1,942 59 over last year; the income from legacies has been only $1,647 35, as against $7,987 19 last year, a difference against the Board of $6,339 84. The vexatious delays and disappointments from this source of income have been a great embarrassment to the Board.

Attached to this statement was a strong appeal to the church members to consider this debt as in some measure a personal obligation, as the citizens of the United States look upon the national debt.

Elder SHEFFLIN objected to the Committee's contracting debts indiscriminately and then pushing them off on the Synod. He moved to strike out the section of the report objected to. The report was recommitted to have the wording changed.

The Chair then announced the following as the committee on the subject of the union with the Presbyterian Church South, after which the Synod adjourned:

Revs. Ganse, Van Zandt, Van Cleff, Porter and Corwin, Elders Pruyn, Frelinghusen and Hewson. On motion, the Chairman, Mr. ELMENDORF was added to the number.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Some of the letters indorsing GREELEY, which the Tribune says "will have weight," are among the heavy things that will sink him.

The Owego Times publishes a list of 379 Republicans and War Democrats who have already joined a Grant and Wilson Club in that village.

The Pittsburg Republicans held an enthusiastic GRANT & WILSON ratification meeting Wednesday night. The speakers were Senator MORTON and Hon. EMORY A. STORRS.

The San Francisco Republican gives a list of California journals, which shows that thirty-nine support GRANT, three are for GREELEY, and three (all in San Francisco) are on the fence.

The Augusta (Ga.) Constitutionalist is now strong for GREELEY, but says: "If we were to select for the head of our columns the name that would come nearest being the exponent of our opinions, we would place there JEFFERSON DAVIS."

President BLANCHARD, of Wheaton College, Ill., says he has a letter from Mr. CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, Jr., of Boston, in which he denies that his father is a Royal Arch Mason, and says that he never had anything to do with Masonry.

The Wilmington Commercial expresses the firm conviction that GREELEY'S nomination as the Democratic candidate at Baltimore will give Delaware to GRANT, provided the Republican canvass is conducted with a moderate share of prudence, firmness and common sense.

So far as we have seen, not a single Republican newspaper in Massachusetts has spoken in approval of Senator SUMNER'S bitter and unjust attack on President GRANT. The New Bedford Mercury believes that he will find it to be the most egregious blunder of his life.

A Boston reporter, favorable to GREELEY and BROWN, has been to Natick to interview Senator WILSON'S neighbors, and finds that one class (not large) regard him as unreliable as a politician, though noble as a citizen, while others declare that he is a safe friend, a good citizen, and true to his principles.

L. B. MCCRACKEN, a prominent Democrat in Detroit, Mich., made a speech there on Wednesday night, in which he came out for GRANT, believing that the Cincinnati platform dodged all the vital questions of reform, and that the Democratic Party is not sincere in its acquiescence in the constitutional amendments.

The Concord correspondent of the Springfield Republican says that Hon. BAINBRIDGE WADLEIGH, who has been nominated for United States Senator in New-Hampshire, will not make PATTERSON'S place good, but is abler than any other Senator from New-Hampshire since JOHN P. HALE." He is Chairman of the Judiciary Committee of the House of the State Legislature.

Congressman ABRAM COMINGO, of Missouri, has written another letter, telling why the passive policy is distasteful to him, and asking if any reasonable man can expect a Democrat to do more than labor gently and faithfully for Mr. GREELEY under the circumstances. He also says that, should the Baltimore Convention, after carefully reviewing the situation, nominate a straight Democratic ticket, it will be the duty of every Democrat to support it.

The Holden Enterprise, one of the oldest newspapers in Johnson County, Missouri, made its appearance Wednesday with the names of GRANT and WILSON flying at the mast-head. It has heretofore been an independent newspaper, but leaning toward conservatism. In making the announcement the editor says that men of foresight in the Democratic Party, whose candor will permit the avowal, honestly confess the disruption of the grand old party, and that the Republican platform contains every vital principle necessary to the complete work of regeneration, auspiciously begun and happily conducted by this Administration.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HOW TO CURE CONSUMPTION.

BY SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP,
SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC
AND SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS.

Dr. Schenck's medicines effect their great cures in the following manner: The first thing essential is to cleanse the stomach and bowels of all diseased mucus and slime which is clogging these organs, and then rouse up the liver and restore it to a healthy condition. The only remedy free from mercury or any poisonous ingredient is Schenck's Mandrake Pills. They will cleanse the stomach and bowels of all the morbid slime that is causing decay in the whole system. They will cleanse the liver of all the diseased bile that is there, and rouse it up to a healthy action, so that natural and healthy bile will be secreted.

(These Pills, besides there action as described above, will be found efficacious in curing all bilious disorders, typhoid, fever and ague, diarrhœa, dysentry, and all diseases resulting from a torpid or inactive state of the liver.)

The stomach, bowels and liver are thus cleansed by the use of SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS, and now there is in the stomach an excess of acid, the appetite is poor and the stomach weak. In the bowels the lacteals are feeble and require to be strengthened; the person feels debilitated. In a condition like this SCHENCK'S SEA-WEED TONIC is the best remedy ever discovered. It is alkaline, and its use will neutralize the excess of acid, making the stomach sweet and fresh. It will give permanent tone to this organ, create a good, hearty appetite, prepare the system for a good digestion, and make good, healthy and nutritious blood. After this treatment, all that remains to cure consumption is the free and persevering use of SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP.

The Pulmonic Syrup nourishes the system, purifies the blood, and is readily absorbed into the circulation and thence carried to the diseased Lungs. There it ripens all diseased matters, whether in the form of tubercles or abscesses, and then assists nature, when this matter ripens, to expel it by free expectoration. It is thus, by the great healing and purifying properties of SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP that all ulcers and cavities are healed up soundly and the person restored to health, and this treatment is the only one that will cure consumption.

The usual irritating cough experienced by consumptives at night will be relieved by the use of SCHENCK'S PULMONIC CANDY. A box of these candies kept at the bedside, and partaken of freely, will enable the patient to obtain a good night's rest, undisturbed by coughing.

These medicines are prepared only by J. H. SCHENCK & SON, at their new building, north-east corner 6th and Arch sts., Philadelphia, and are kept for sale by all druggists in the United States and Europe.

On Saturday of each week, Dr. SCHENCK, or his son. Dr. J. H. SCHENCK, JR., can be consulted at their office, north-east corner 6th and Arch sts., and can have their lungs examined by the RESPIROMETER invented by Dr. SCHENCK.

Full directions accompany all these medicines, so that a person in any part of the world can readily be cured by an observance of the same.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK & SON.

Price of the PULMONIC SYRUP and SEA-WEED TONIC, $1 25 per bottle, or $7 per half dozen. MANDRAKE PILLS, 25 cents per box.

BY THE AUTHOR OF THE "PEEP OF DAY."

THE KINGS OF ISRAEL AND JUDAH.

Their History Explained to Children. By the author of the "Peep of Day." With twenty-seven full-page Illustrations. $1 50.

From the Sunday-school Times.

We commend every parent and every Sunday-school teacher in the land to get a copy. It is needless to speak of the delightful way in which the author treats the subject. The somewhat complicated histories of the Kings of Judah and Israel, owing to the contemporaneous double lines in which they are recorded, are made plain by the separate lines which the author traces. A chart aids in removing the difficulties to a clear understanding of the whole. Of the "Peep of Day," more than 300,000 copies have been sold in England, and as many more, doubtless, in this country. For the larger children, this history will prove as interesting and useful as did the other to the smaller ones. Besides, the incidents and lessons are comparatively fresh. No talker to children, no mother, need want for apt and striking facts to meet the unwearied demands of her child for "more stories," if she has this repository of stories at hand. They are, to be sure, all in the Bible; but how many have had the patience to dig in the rich mine, and how many the skill that our author has displayed? We claim for the book, at once, a universal reading in the homes and Sunday-schools of America.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES.

A Political, Literary and Miscellaneous Newspaper.

CAMPAIGN EDITION.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES—CAMPAIGN EDITION.

CAMPAIGN EDITION.

During the ensuing Presidential Canvass, we shall publish a SPECIAL WEEKLY EDITION for the convenience of those who desire the latest and most trustworthy political intelligence.

Having made ample arrangements for securing the earliest reports of meetings, conventions, and other occurrences of political interest, we shall, throughout the Presidential canvass, publish fuller information relating to the progress of the campaign than any other New-York paper. We aim only at supplying the public with the most complete information on all current affairs.

Subscribers to our Campaign Edition will therefore secure an exhaustive summary of the political news of the day, besides receiving the general news from all parts of the World, obtained from the best sources, and rearranged and prepared specially for this edition.

The NEW-YORK TIMES is a Republican newspaper, and will, during the canvass, now fairly commenced, steadfastly maintain the established principles of that Party. It will support the regular nominees of the Philadelphia Convention, and do its share in securing their triumphant election in November. It regards the success of the Republican Party as an object of the very first importance, and will give no support to irregular or "bolting" nominations, which can only result in the return of the Democrats to power. There are projects of all kinds on foot for dissolving the Republican Party, and the TIMES will oppose them all. Its course in reference to the Tammany Ring, at a time when all the other daily papers in New-York obstructed and discouraged its efforts, attests its sincerity in the cause of Reform. The TIMES stood alone in demanding Reform from 1869 to the close of 1871—now other journals are attempting to make political capital out of the mere repetition of the cry. There is no sincere and honest proposal for reform, in any branch of the Government, which will not be heartily supported by the TIMES. But it will not conspire in assisting ambitious politicians or demagogues to reach power under false pretenses. It will not encourage defection from the party. It regards the Philadelphia Convention as the only body authorized to speak and act for the Republican Party.

TERMS:

The CAMPAIGN EDITION of the NEW-YORK TIMES will be furnished to mail subscribers for the six months next ensuing, for the sum of FIFTY CENTS. All copies sent to the same Post-office to be mailed to one address.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES,

As a Republican journal, will be devoted, as in the past, to an intelligent and firm support of the Republican Party.

It will sustain, with all the force and influence at its command, the principles and policy which have rendered that Party so justly famous in our history. It will advocate those measures by which the honor, the peace, and the prosperity of the nation can be best conserved and promoted.

Started in September, 1851, The TIMES has for many years been recognized as among the most successful, popular, and influential newspapers in the country. Two of its original proprietors still direct its policy, and, with greatly-increased resources and experience, will spare no pains to extend and strengthen its claims upon the confidence and support of the public.

Its EDITORIAL DEPARTMENT will be conducted in a spirit of fairness and impartiality, free alike from self-interested aims, political jobbery, or undue favoritism. It will represent the great body of the public rather than any clique of professional "politicians." It has no one connected with it who seeks office, or who will become a candidate for office. Its CORRESPONDENCE will be full and timely, and its REPORTS will be prepared with the utmost care. The LITERARY DEPARTMENT will be in thoroughly capable hands, and will present a full review of the literature, the fine arts, the music, and the drama of the day.

As a family paper, free from all appeals to vulgar and impure tastes, the TIMES will continue unexceptionable, and may be safely admitted to every domestic circle.

The Sunday edition of the TIMES includes, in addition to all the news, selected and original literary matter of the most varied and agreeable character. Special arrangements have been made to impart new attractions to this feature of the paper.

The WEEKLY and SEMI-WEEKLY editions of the TIMES are compiled with the greatest care, and will contain selections from the most important contents of the Daily issue, besides matters of interest to the agricultural sections of the country. All who prefer a newspaper but once or twice a week will find these editions admirably suited to their requirements.

A special edition of the TIMES for EUROPEAN circulation is published every Wednesday and Saturday, in time for the European mails, and will be valuable and welcome to our friends abroad, whether Americans or of any other nationality than our own.

All these editions of the TIMES are of the very largest size, on large quarto sheets, each containing fifty-six columns, printed in clear and legible type, at the following rates:

KINGDOM OF ITALY.

The Health of the Pope—An Approaching Papal Election—The Question of Ecclesiastical Property—Financial Position of the Nation—The Marriage Law—Germano-Italian Relations.

From Our Own Correspondent.

FLORENCE, Monday, May 27, 1872.

The precarious condition of the Pope's health is an old theme upon which a short article may be written when every other subject of public interest fails. During the past dozen or fifteen years, the undertakers of the political journals have several times got everything ready to lay the old man quietly away; but in spite of all, PIUS IX. has struggled bravely on, and on the 13th of the present month he saw his eightieth birthday. He may live five or ten years longer, as have done several of his family, or the telegraph at any moment may bring us notice of his death. To Italy, the event, when it happens, will have great political importance, and beyond the limits of this country the interests of the whole of Catholic society will be effected by it, or by what may follow in the election of a successor to the Pontifical office. The fact is to be taken notice of, that the Holy Father has had lately several fainting-fits, and there is reason to suppose that when the final stroke comes it will be sudden. All is kept as quiet as possible in the Vatican, and the Prelates do not express their fears or look for counselors outside the limits of their own circle. But certain facts, which have come to public knowledge at Rome, indicate that preparations are making in the Sacred College for an approaching election. PIUS IX. has done his work, such as it is, and there is no longer opportunity for one party or another to make of him a convenience.

ECCLESIASTICAL PROPERTY.

As it has been so often already intimated, the scheme for the application to Rome of the general law of Italy confiscating for the uses of the State of ecclesiastical property, is the most important of the unsettled questions connected with the occupation of the new capital. And this question seems to be in a way to be forced upon the attention of Parliament at the present session, however unwilling the Ministry may be to present the modified plan, which, it is understood, has been for a long time under consideration in the councils of the Cabinet. A demand is now made by the opposition that the Prime Minister LANZA and his associates shall make known to Parliament and the country what measure of legislation has been digested applicable to the convent property of Rome during the long-brooding period of eighteen months. It is a question which the Ministers have wished to indefinately postpone. There is no harmony of opinion among them as to the opportuneness or policy of the measure, and there is not courage enough in the present Cabinet to face the storm of violent condemnation which the breaking up of the Roman convents will raise in the Catholic world. Signor SELLA, the Minister of Finance, seems to be the only one in the corps of counselors ready to push the question to an immediate solution. The chronic exigency of the financial situation makes it necessary for the Government to raise money by the use of such means as are found at its command; and the church property of Rome is a deposit of wealth greater than that of any bank. While the Minister of Finance is bold, Signor VISCONTI-VENOSTA, the able and prudent director of the Department of Foreign Affairs, afraid of shocking the Catholic conscience of the world, only asks that the question be put off. But the party of the opposition are clamerous, and demand an immediate declaration of policy on the part of the Ministry, or the occasion will be used for bringing on a Cabinet crisis. Signor DE FALCO, the Minister of Public Worship, has promised to inform Parliament today what is to be done.

THE LAW OF MARRIAGE.

One of the most interesting, and it may be added, one of the most important questions growing out of the new system of legislation in Italy, is that of the law regulating the ceremony of marrige. Formerly the faculty of joining man and woman in the holy bond was wholly in the hands of the Church. The Civil Marriage law of a dozen years ago gave to the highest magistrate of the municipality the power to conduct the ceremony and issue a valid certificate binding the loving couples for life. After marriage in the town hall perfect liberty was left to go to the church, if the religious conscience of the parties demanded sacerdotal confirmation of their connubial vows, and there, before the altar, join in the prayers and receive the blessing of the priest. Formerly the Church ceremony was all in all, but the civil marriage is that which at present gives legal force to this alliance, and the religious ceremony is only supplementary, and may be added or not to the other, as it may suit the fancy of those interested. But when we come to inquire how the law works, we are confronted with a fact of the most serious consequence to the future welfare of many married couples. Matrimony is one of the seven Sacraments of the Roman Catholic Church, and control of it is one of the last things which the priests are willing to give up. The clerical party would, if it could, make the Civil Marriage law of no effect, and the great error is committed of neglecting to urge upon many who have gone through the religious process the indispensable necessity of conforming to the civil as well as to the canonical law. It is believed that some priests have even gone so far as to advise that no regard be paid to it. At Rome there are hundreds of cases of marriage in which the law has been disregarded, and in other parts of Italy, following bad counselors, a similar course of conduct has been taken. The matter has become serious, and the Prefect of the Province of Rome has lately issued a circular to the Mayors in his jurisdiction, calling attention once more to the condition of things, and in the most serious manner warning all interested of the terrible consequence which may follow a reckless disregard of a legal enactment. In his circular the Prefect says:

> "The leading relations and the most vital interests of the family are founded on the civil marriage, and on that alone. Without it there exists before the law neither family, nor husband and wife, nor legitimate children, nor recognized ties of consanguinity. One of those thus united may at any time abandon the other, and no civil action can be instituted to obtain maintenance, protection, or means for the education of offspring. Neither father, mother nor children can hope for the benefit of the law in contested cases for a legitimate portion, when there is death without will. In short, the family legally constituted does not exist."

As there is no divorce in the Catholic Church, it seems strange that any of its ministers should favor a course of conduct which leaves a wide door open for the entrance of all possible evils.

GERMAN-ITALIAN RELATIONS.

The Prince HUMBERT and the Princess MARGARETTE have set off for Berlin to repay the visit made by members of that Court and royal family to Italy the past Winter. The relations between Germany and Italy are drawn closer and closer as the persuasion becomes stronger that the interests of both countries can be promoted by a political, commercial and moral union. Everything conspires to help the influence of Germany here, and the salvation of Italy, as at present constituted, depends upon clinging close to that country in case of an attack by France, the only nation now in which can be found a powerful party capable, if circumstances should favor, of conducting the Government into the fatal path of a new invasion of Italy. The Prince HUMBERT will be well received in Germany.

THE VIENNA EXPOSITION.

Activity of preparation for the Vienna Exposition increases in all parts of Italy, as the day of opening is less and less further off. The Italian Minister of Agriculture and Commerce has issued a circular to the Prefects of the Kingdom and to the chiefs of the industrial and commercial associations, stirring them up to make effort and neglect the use of no means by which the Italian Department may be made as extensive and complete as possible at the great show. The strong argument is used that now, that Italian independence is achieved, unity perfected, and political agitations ended, the country will be able to make a much larger, more varied and excellent display than ever before, whether at the London or Paris show.

THE SEASON.

May in Italy is the month of religious festas, of roses, and of the Madonna. In all the principal churches the image of the Virgin, wearing crown and mantle of the most brilliant tinsel, and ornamented with flowers, is set up for the devout admiration of the multitude, and the half obscurity of the vesper hour is made cheerful with a graceful gayety of many wax candles burning before this shrine. Our sacerdotal friends do not know it, or will not acknowledge it, but the reverence for the Virgin is really carried to the point of worship. "Mother of God" and "Queen of Heaven" are the phrases that we constantly hear, and lately the Pope has given, in a formal manner, the authorization asked for by the recent Council, for Joseph to be raised to an almost equal place as an object of worship to that held by the mother of the Savior. We had, day before yesterday, the celebration in the cathedral of the fete of ST. ZANOBI, born in Florence fifteen hundred years ago, and whose memory has been honored ever since—a proof of the severest conservatism of the religious sentiment in human society. Next Sunday comes round the annual Festival of the Constitution, or the Fourth of July of the Italians. Three days from this occurs the church festa of Corpus Domini, formerly made much account of, now fallen into neglect. Thus, with political and sacred festas, life here has in it a little poetry left.

KANSAS.

Reception of the Philadelphia Nominations—Position of the State Press—The Vice-Presidency—The Weather and Crops.

From Our Own Correspondent.

SOLOMON, Kansas, Monday, June 10, 1872.

The regular Republican nomination has had the effect in Kansas of encouraging the "Regulars" here and of disheartening the "Liberals" more than ever. It was noticeable when the Cincinnati nominations were first made that all the office-seekers who wanted to make their mark, and had neither name nor credit with either the Democratic or Republican Parties from their wavering course heretofore, at once jumped up on the top rail of their political fence, and hurrahed for the nominees with all their might, and predicted all sorts of outrageous things to happen to the Republican Party. Indeed, it was said confidently in many places, that the only hope of the party would be its support of Mr. GREELEY at Philadelphia.

POSITION OF THE PRESS.

The White Cloud Chief recognizes in the supporters of Cincinnati in Kansas the bushwhackers who have been hidden since 1865, and now creep out of the brush to show they are not scared and never were very badly frightened, only the war injured them so much pecuniarily that all their time has been spent on the farm, &c. Now, however, they'll come out and vote for the true patriot and friend of the South, HORACE GREELEY. The Junction City Union, one of the most responsible and highly-respected organs of the State, claims that nearly all the papers of Kansas, which first declared for GREELEY, have retracted, and now stand on the Republican line of battle.

PUBLIC OPINION.

The frontier speaks in favor of GRANT, who is a protector of their rights against the Indians. "only" they say, "I wish he would put more powder and balls in his guns, and shoot oftener." But GRANT a thousand times rather than an inexperienced farmer-chief, philanthropist though he be.

Public sentiment in the State is far more settled than it was a month ago, and now that the Republican Party has expressed itself openly, the people feel that they are pledged and are determined to maintain their faith.

THE VICE-PRESIDENCY.

The nomination of Mr. WILSON has secured great confidence to the Republican ticket; Mr. COLFAX has a place in the hearts of the people, which would secure him a majority vote were he a candidate, but since he is not, and Mr. WILSON is, the vote will gladly be given to him, and in fact, Mr. WILSON'S name is first in Kansas. The outlook is very favorable indeed for a unanimous and hearty vote in support of the Philadelphia nominations.

THE CROPS.

I am happy to be able to report the crops in excellent condition. After the heavy failures and disasters of last year in cattle and Winter wheat we are thankful for the prospect before us. A large planting of corn was made in the Spring and considerable wheat sown, enough to supply the bread market of the State, I think. We have, of course, the usual visitors, the potato-bug, chinch-bug, squash-bug, &c., but not in large enough numbers to seriously affect other than garden crops.

THE WEATHER.

Rain has been plenty thus far and hurricanes moderate. One at Minneapolis, twenty-eight miles north-west of here, unroofed a number of houses a few days ago, and turned some gable-ends around completely, and one at Salina did like damage, but no serious winds have visited us this Spring.

Opening of the Public Baths—Rules to be Enforced.

The two public baths having been repaired and put in order, the Commissioner of Public Works informs the public that the baths will be open daily from Monday, the 17th inst., until Sept. 30, one being moored at the foot of Charles-street, North River, and the other at the foot of Fifth-street, East River. 2. Women and girls will be required to furnish suitable bathing dresses.
3. Bathers of either sex desiring towels may obtain them of the keeper by depositing twenty-five cents. Upon the return of the towel twenty-two cents will be returned.

10. No persons as spectators will be allowed to stand upon the platforms or about the house.
11. No person will be allowed to remain in the water more than twenty minutes, and the keeper shall, in cases of great demand for baths, shorten the time of boys to accommodate other persons.
12. Bathers shall not stand about the platforms, nor occupy dressing-rooms after dressing.
13. No dogs will be allowed in the houses.
14. Money, clothes and property left in the house or room will be at the risk of the owner.
15. All questions of priority of bathing, use of rooms, or obedience to rules, shall be finally decided by the keeper.
16. A policeman will be in attendance to aid to enforce order, subject to the wish of the keeper.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

Contrary to expectation, no business was transacted at the Exchange yesterday, Friday, June 14, the sales proposed being either adjourned or settled. In regard to the Supreme Court sale of the premises No. 164 Attorney-street, in charge of MULLER, WILKINS & Co., the auctioneer, after reading the legal notice partially through, announced that the suit involving the title to the realty had been settled, and the property was withdrawn. The legal sale in charge of JAMES M. MILLER, of three houses and lots on the north side of West Twenty-eighth-street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, known respectively as Nos. 333, 333½ and 335, was adjourned until the 28th inst. An account of the legal auction held at Croton Point by Messrs. MULLER & Co., in the afternoon of yesterday, at which the estate of the late Dr. R. T. UNDERHILL was offered for sale, will appear on Monday. A full list of all the sales projected for the week will also be published on the same day, which, for reference, will be found of value. The class of suburban real estate to be brought forward during the week is excellent, and the sales to occur are both numerous and worthy attention. Today, at Rahway, N. J., on the ground, at 1 o'clock, JERE. JOHNSON, JR., will offer at auction 300 valuable building lots, all well situated on leading streets and avenues. The sale has merit, and should prove attractive to investors. For the convenience of buyers and others desiring to attend the auction, a special train will be run, leaving this City, via Cortlandt and Desbrosses street Ferries, at 11:20 o'clock this morning.

The suburban auctions held on Thursday, June 13, viz.: At Dunellen, N. J., by A. D. MELLICK, JR., & BRO., and at Rutherfurd Park, by LUCKEY & SHUTE, were both well attended, and satisfactory results achieved, although the prices realized for lots were not as high, in some instances, as was anticipated. At Dunellen, eighty-seven city lots, together with cottage, were disposed of for $21,489.75 in the aggregate, while at Rutherfurd, ninety-six plots, containing from two to five city lots each, were sold for $63,933 83 in the total. At this last auction, R. J. GARRETSON, of the firm of WINANS, SANDS & GARRETSON, officiated as auctioneer, and discharged his duty ably and well, the sale being a protracted one, lasting over six hours, and requiring considerable effort to keep the crowd present interested. Detailed reports of the transactions, with names of purchasers, will be found below.

At private sale WM. H. RAYNOR, No. 5½ Pine-street, reports having recently sold six lots on the south-west corner of the Grand Boulevard and One Hundred and Forty-sixth-street, four of the same fronting on the avenue and two on the street, in the rear, for $28,500. Also, four lots on the south-west corner of the Sixth-avenue Boulevard and One Hundred and Twenty-sixth-street, together forming plot 99.11 by 85, for $32,500. E. DUNCAN SNIFFIN, No. 8 Pine-street, also reports having recently effected the following sales of suburban property: Newark, N. J., east side of Broad-street, known as No. 1,112, commencing 28 feet south of Thomas-street, house and lot, size 28.6 by 132; sold to E. A. CONDIT, of Newark, for $17,000. Bloomfield, N. J.: Franklin-street, adjoining residence of WRIGHT F. CONGER, house and 78-100 acre of land; sold by CATHERINE G. BOYD to C. G. MARTIN, of New-York, for $18,400.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

PUBLISHED THIS DAY:

I.—FIFINE AT THE FAIR, AND OTHER POEMS.

By ROBERT BROWNING. Author's edition. 1 vol. 16mo. Uniform with "Browning's Works." $2.

"Fifine at the Fair" discusses, with the vigor of thought and expression characteristic of Mr. Browning, the vexed "social" question, which agitates modern society and claims the best wisdom of the most earnest minds. The volume includes, besides, "Herve Riel," and "Prince Hohenstiel—Schwangau, Savior of Society," of which the London Examiner says: "The immediate interest of its theme, combining some important contributions to great and perplexing political questions of the day with a very subtle dissection of the character of the hero of the poem, supposed to be the late Emperor of the French, makes it of especial value."

II.—CHOISY.

By JAMES P. STORY. Twentieth volume in "Osgood's Library of Novels." 8vo, paper. 7 cents; cloth, $1 25.

"Its pictures of Paris life—at least of its 'fast' phases—are the most spirited we have ever seen, and the entire story possesses a vigor and élan that are rarely found in an American novel. We have no hesitation in saying that in no American book with which we are acquainted has Paris life had such a faithful portraiture as in this story. The opening scene, in a 'gambling-hell' of New-York, sketched with effective simplicity, instantly excites the reader's interest, which does not falter to the end."—The Literary World

III.—THE NEWCOMES.

H. the Princess of Wales.* "This food resembles Mother's Milk as closely as possible." —Dr. H. Barker on Eight Foods for Infants. "Highly nourishing and easily digested."—Dr. Hassall. It combines the most valuable FLESH and BONE-FORMING SUBSTANCES, and differs essentially from other farinaceous foods, which being quite unable to afford proper nourishment to a growing infant, frequently lead to a rickety and idiotic condition. Savory & Moore's preparation has also the advantage of being freed from the ground husk of the corn, which produces irritation of the bowels and intractable diarrhea. No boiling or straining required. Sold in tins. Prepared by SAVORY & MOORE, No. 143 New Bond-st., London. Procurable of all chemists, druggists and store-keepers throughout the States.

THE MECHANICS.

Angry Demonstrations by the Impatient Strikers.

The Machinists' Troubles and Mass-Meeting—They Strike Today—Condition of the Furniture Trade—Strikes Elsewhere.

In the eight-hour movement of yesterday the noticeable change was the increasing desperation of many of the men, owing to their protracted strike, which is in many cases bringing them to actual want. The men who seemed to be most strongly inclined to violence yesterday were the piano-makers. Many of those in the employ of Messrs. STEINWAY returned to work upon the old system, with an advance of ten per cent. in their wages, and only one-eighth of the whole number remained on strike. Those still out were the ring-leaders of the movement, and they, with a large number on strike formerly employed in other manufactories, met yesterday morning in the Germania Assembly Rooms. Reporters were excluded from the meeting, but it was alleged by incautious members that motions were made and carried to make another demonstration on a grand scale, this morning, at the piano manufactory of the Messrs. STEINWAY. The co-operation of the Eight-hour League and other trades was promised, and it was determined to assemble at 5½ o'clock, at the corner of Lexington-avenue and Forty-second-street, and make a demonstration on the factory, and take the workmen out by force, if necessary. The Police were informed of the plot, and the men will probably not attempt such a proceeding, although they are rendered desperate by the desertions from their ranks, and may not be easily deterred. It was resolved to send a delegate to Boston and other cities, in connection with a delegation from the polishers and varnishers, to incite the piano-forte-makers in those places to strike, as a general movement of the kind throughout the country would be of great assistance to the men here.

The cabinet-makers did not meet with the success yesterday that they anticipated, no new firms giving in, while the firm of POTTIER & STYMUS, the report of whose concession to the strike occasioned so much satisfaction among the working men, deny that they gave in to the eight-hour system, and say that their men are at work upon the old system of ten hours, with twenty per cent. advance of wages. A Broadway firm also make the same statement in regard to the men in their employ. A delegation of Philadelphia cabinet-makers arrived at head-quarters, yesterday, reporting that a strike was in successful progress in Philadelphia.

Capt. GUNNER, of the Nineteenth Precinct, yesterday morning reported to Superintendent KELSO that he understood, from reliable sources, that the strikers from the machine-shops of the Harlem and New-Haven Railroad and those of the Hudson River and Harlem Railroad were collecting on the east side, expressing their intention to mob the workmen in the machine-shops of the different railroads in the Nineteenth Precinct, and then tear down the shops. The Captain was instructed to protect the shops at all hazards, and started with a sufficient force of Police to do so. No attack was made, however, the strikers being awed by the numbers of the Police.

The following communications were sent to the Press of the City yesterday by the employers:

NEW-YORK, June 14, 1872.

It has been erroneously published that the employes of the Pottier & Stymus Manufacturing Company resumed work Thursday on the adoption by the Company of the "eight-hour system." The facts are: On the 18th day of May, on the occasion of the first conference of the employes with the officers of the Company, the employes were informed that their pay would continue to be by the hour at an advance of twenty per cent.; that the manufactory would open at 7 o'clock in the morning, and close at 6 o'clock in the afternoon, and that each employe would be privileged to work in the future as in the past, ten hours, which proposition was rejected by them. From this position the Company never receded, and with this understanding work was resumed.

In the absence of the President,

(Signed,) A. CRATAIN, Vice-President.

NEW-YORK, June 14, 1872.

DEAR SIRS: You would confer a favor upon us by inserting in your columns our denial of the report published in some of Thursday's papers, to the effect that we had agreed to the eight-hour system.

We hold the same position as we did on the first day of the strike.

Your obedient servants,

(Signed,) ROUX & CO.

*Work eleven hours.

HOWE's sewing-machine men met yesterday and received news that the men in the works at Bridgeport, Conn., will strike today. The Manhattan Machine employers have also promised to give an answer as to whether they would concede to the demands of the workmen.

The shops reported as having yielded to the demands of the iron-workers, yesterday, were Messrs. COMMER & MAY, Fulton Ferry, Brooklyn; Pinier Iron-works, Brooklyn, and MIDDLETON & RICHIE, New Bowery.

JOHN SCHAFFER, PHILIP FAIR, WM. KEPS and JOHN BERTRAM were arraigned before Justice SHANDLEY yesterday morning on a complaint of WELLINGTON SMART, of No. 744 Sixth-street, who charged that SCHAFFER and FAIR attempted to choke him while KEPS held him by the arms, and BERTRAM struck him several blows on the face. The prisoners are cabinet-makers on strike. SMART is a cabinet-maker, and, refusing to join the strikers, was assaulted by them. The accused were held to answer at Special Sessions.

The tin and slate roofers met at No. 295 Third-avenue, last evening, and perfected their organization of a secret league, under the superintendence of THOMAS MCCUE. No other business of importance was transacted beyond the initiation of members.

A mass-meeting of the machinists and blacksmiths, under the auspices of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union, was held last evening, in Germania Assembly Rooms, Bowery, for the purpose of advocating the eight-hour system, and discussing the general interests of the trades. There were about 700 men present.

Mr. C. B. MULLIGAN was called upon to preside, and, in taking the chair, delivered a brief address on the objects of the meeting, and advantages to working men of working only eight hours. He then introduced Mr. JOHN FEHRENBATCH, President of the International Union of Machinists and Blacksmiths of North America, who spoke of the great uprising of working men against the tyranny of capital, and advocated union among the working classes as the only means by which they could fight the battle against moneyed monopolies and win and preserve their rights.

Mr. HESS addressed the meeting in German in a similar strain.

It was announced that the machinists and blacksmiths employed here and in Albany in the shops of the New-York Central and Hudson River Railroad, would go on strike today for eight hours the day's work. This information was received with tumultuous applause. Resolutions adopted last night by the machinists and blacksmiths of Albany to that effect were read and indorsed.

Two additional unions were organized, and the meeting adjourned.

The Strike on Long Island.

And now the boiler-makers, machinists and iron-molders of Brooklyn have joined the ranks of the eight-hour strikers. Among the strikers are men from the Atlantic Steam Engine-works, Hubbard and Whittaker's, Pioneer Iron-works, Bliss & Williams', Allen Works, Wm. Reeds', Smith Brothers', Chas. Hardick's Wm. Taylor & Sons', Allen Agricultural Works, Columbia Works, Robert Kent's, Benton's Pipe Manufactory, and, in fact, from every machine-shop in the Second and Fifth Wards. In many instances the strikers in a body visited various places of business, and forced the workmen to quit. It is estimated that about 2,000 men are out of employment this morning. Mr. WHITTAKER, a manufacturer, stated that nine of the principal firms had mutually agreed to stand out against the demands of the men. It was understood that other firms would take similar action. In one or two cases establishments which had imperative contracts to fill gave the eight hours demanded, but it is said that as soon as the contracts are filled the men will be asked to work the same number of hours that the men in other shops work. The strikers, however, proclaim themselves to be confident of success.

The mechanics at work in the shops of the Long Island Railroad Company, at Hunter's Point, stopped work yesterday, demanding the adoption of the eight-hour system.

In Jersey City.

Last evening the men employed at MATTHERSON & WEICHER's sugar refinery, in Jersey City, struck for an advance of wages. The entire force, numbering over 500 men, joined in the strike, and until terms can be arranged between them and their employers they will probably be suspended. Immediately after the strike the men met at Cooper Hall, where they resolved not to commence work until their pay is increased from the former rate, $1 60 per day, to $2.

The Gallagher Murder at Jersey City—Trial of James Cooney.

The trial of JAMES COONEY for the murder of ROBERT GALLAGHER, on Morgan-street, Jersey City, on the 4th of May, was yesterday commenced in the Hudson County Court of Oyer and Terminer. Judge BEDLE presided.

Mrs. GALLAGHER was the first witness called. She lived at No. 127 Morgan-street, and had known COONEY for a year or more, during six weeks of which time he had boarded with her; on May 4 he came to her house, and went from there to a wake; he returned in the morning, took dinner with her and her husband, went to the funeral and returned again in the evening; she went to bed about three o'clock, leaving the men drinking together; about midnight her daughter awakened her, and said COONEY and her father were having some trouble; witness went to the kitchen and saw her husband with his hand on COONEY's shoulder, endeavoring to get him to go home; COONEY told him to take his hand off him or he would be sorry; he then drew a knife and stabbed him twice before witness could interfere; she then sent for a physician and a policeman; COONEY said he had not hurt him much; the officer came and removed him to the hospital; she accompanied him, and remained until he died, three days afterward.

The trial is still on, and will probably occupy two or three days.

Eighteenth Assembly District Republican Association.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of the members of the Eighteenth Assembly District Republican Association was held, last evening, at their Club-room, No. 457 Fourth-avenue, Mr. ALBON P. MAN presided. After enrolling a large number of new members, Mr. JOHN PULLMAN proposed the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted, amid tremendous cheering:

Resolved, That we hail with the utmost satisfaction the nomination of ULYSSES S. GRANT for President and HENRY WILSON for Vice-President, and pledge our heartiest efforts for their election.

Resolved, That the name of the veteran warrior, tried patriot, and President, whose first term has been eminently successful; and the name of the distinguished Senator and statesman who has always been found equal to the duties of his position, are sure guarantees of victory in the coming contest.

Resolved, That we regard the man who has proved recreant to his own party, and has associated himself with political hirelings and agitators, who are unworthy of any party, in order to obtain a Presidential nomination, as utterly unfit to hold any office of honor or responsibility, and least of all the office to which he now aspires.

Stirring addresses were afterward delivered by Messrs. P. STARR, SAMUEL W. COX and others. The intervals between the speeches were enlivened by campaign songs by Cook's Glee Club.

The Mercer-Street Shooting Case—Lowe Committed for Trial.

The final examination in the case of PAUL E. LOWE, charged with shooting ANDERSON, GARDNER and DEVINE, in Mercer-street, on the night of the 25th ult., came up before Judge LEDWITH yesterday. All the parties concerned in the affray were present, the wounded men having nearly recovered. GARDNER had no complaint to make, he being LOWE's friend. ANDERSON stated that he had never authorized DEVINE to act for him in making a complaint, and refused to enter one. DEVINE desired to withdraw his complaint, but this the Judge refused to allow. He has been in the House of Detention ever since the affray. HARRY THOMAS admitted that he was the first one who struck a blow, having struck LOWE, and he thought LOWE acted in self-defense. Judge LEDWITH admitted DEVINE to bail in the sum of $300, THOMAS becoming his surety. LOWE was committed, in default of $1,500 bail, for trial. The papers will be sent to the District-Attorney this morning.

PAVING AND SEWERING.

Commissioners VAN VORT and JAQUES resumed the investigation into the contracts for paving and grading streets and avenues in several parts of the City, last evening, at St. James Hotel. The first case taken up was that of F. C. CROWLEY, for paving Forty-second-street, between Tenth-avenue and the Hudson River; also for paving and regulating Fifty-fourth-street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues; also for paving Twenty-fourth-street, between Sixth and Tenth avenues, and Thirty-fourth-street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues. Witnesses were examined in each case, who testified that the whole of the work had been carried out according to the specifications. A letter was read from Commissioner VAN NORT, corroborating the evidence produced.

The Meers contract for paving Eighty-first-street, from Ninth-avenue to "the Drive;" also for paving Sixty-ninth-street, from "the Drive" to Hudson River, with several other contracts, were then taken up and passed after evidence setting forth that the work had been thoroughly done, had been taken. The Commission then adjourned. The Meers contracts are as follows:

The Green contracts for paving Fifty-sixth-street, between Ninth and Tenth avenues, and Sixth-street, from Tenth-avenue to the Hudson River. The Everark contracts for paving Twenty-second-street, from Fourth-avenue to Broadway; and Thirty-eighth-street, from Lexington-avenue to the East River; and flagging Fifty-fifth-street, from Broadway to Eighth-avenue. The Farley contracts for sewering Sixty-fifth-street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues, and Eighty-first-street, between Third and Fourth avenues. The Smith & Noonan contracts for sewering Fifth-avenue, between Forty-sixth and Fifty-ninth streets. The Gearty contracts for paving Fifty-fifth-street, from Eighth-avenue to the Hudson River; paving Eldridge-street, from Houston to Division-street; Fifty-ninth-street, from First-avenue to the East River. The Hicks contract for paving Avenue C, between Houston and Eighteenth streets; and the Farley contract for sewering Fifty-sixth-street, between Second and Third avenues.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

SHAKESPEARE: HIS LIFE, ART AND CHARACTERS. With an Historical Sketch of the Origin and Growth of the Drama in England. By Rev. H. N. HUDSON. 2 vols., 16mo., pages 474, 495. Boston: GINN BROTHERS.

The author of these volumes has won, and he richly deserves, a high reputation as a critic and commentator upon the works of SHAKESPEARE. Some twenty years ago his lectures upon the structure and the character of those plays commanded the attention and the approval of critics, and of the more intelligent and thoughtful part of the general public. Since then he has produced an edition of SHAKESPEARE which is marked throughout with good taste, fine appreciation, and sound critical judgment. the introductory essays and notes to which are full of lively suggestion, clear analysis and penetrating insight, set forth in an impressive style and which constituted the most valuable part of that well-labored work. Meantime much has been done for the illustration of SHAKESPEARE's text and thought, both in America and Europe. Mr. HUDSON himself has reviewed his own work, pondered it, cogitated and recogitated it, and the volumes now before us, present what we suppose is to be accepted as the ripe and final fruitage of his labor in the whole field of Shakespearian literature, the poet's life, his relation to his immediate predecessors and his contemporaries, his own dramatic art, his character, his poetry, his effect upon the English stage and the English language.

Mr. HUDSON's Life of Shakespeare fills but fifty pages of his two volumes, the bulk of which is occupied with his disquisitions on the poet's art and characters. No new facts are recorded in the memoir, and, indeed, it was quite impossible that there should be any; for the painful and minute investigations of late years have failed to bring to light a single fact of even the slightest consequence in regard to the personal history and surroundings of the man who is the greatest glory of the English race. We know less of him than we do of hundreds of other men whose names might be blotted from the page of history and not be missed, and this incongruity seems to be fixed forever. Mr. HUDSON, however, presents the known facts and the reasonable probabilities as to SHAKESPEARE's life in a vivid and interesting form, and leaves upon the reader's mind something like a living impression of the man. He does not attempt to glorify SHAKESPEARE, although he does always lean toward the most favorable construction of all that has been revealed as to the conduct of this wonderful actor and playwright, particularly that very sharp lookout for his own interests which seems to have been a marked trait in his character, and that strong desire for social advancement which was without doubt the controlling motive of his life. But our author does make a fight for Mrs. WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE, whose very reprehensible conduct before her marriage he palliates, and in whose hold upon her husband's love and respect he seems fully to believe. That a woman of twenty-six should be led astray by a boy of eighteen, seems to him not so strange or so unfeminine that it should be set down as much against her womanliness or her delicacy; that she should win the lad to marry her seems to him not very deplorable, or even good evidence that she was a designing creature; and that the lad, when he developed afterward into the man who wrote "Macbeth," "King Lear" and "Hamlet," should not comprehend his strange position and resent it, Mr. HUDSON accepts as according to nature. Of SHAKESPEARE's neglect of his wife in his will, giving her only his second-best bed, he accepts Mr. KNIGHT's explanation, that Mrs. SHAKESPEARE was provided for by her dower right, and that the second-best bed was probably the one that they had occupied together. But of the fact that the bequest of this bed was an interlineation, he offers no explanation. The chief trouble here is not with the second-best bed, but with the fact that while SHAKESPEARE thought of every one else in his will, he forgot his wife. In the words of Mr. GRANT WHITE, whom Mr. HUDSON singles out as his chief antagonist, "a second-best bed might be passed over, but what can be done with second-best thoughts?" This question Mr. HUDSON has not attempted to answer, and he is likewise discreetly silent as to a similar slight on the part of her father, who, remembering his other children with particularity in his will, does not even mention her name. He is less reticent and much happier in his treatment of the facts of SHAKESPEARE's own parentage. After recounting JOHN SHAKESPEARE's rapid rise through all the little dignities of Stratford official life, and the tokens of his prosperity and ability, he mentions the evidence that the poet's father could not even write his own name, and adds: "Such was undoubtedly the fact, and I take pleasure in noting it, as showing, what is too apt to be forgotten in these bookish days, that men may know several things, and may have witty children, without being initiated in the mysteries of pen and ink." It is not every man, particularly every man of letters, who thus recognizes and will boldly avow his opinion, in these reading and writing days, of the comparative unimportance of mere book-learning.

Mr. HUDSON's appreciation of SHAKESPEARE's dramatic art is very closely analytical and is preceded by a brief but pithy dissertation upon the common principles of art, with a special view to a consideration of their embodiment in the Shakespearian Drama. Our critic's principles, without being exactly new in essence are new in form, and their strangeness, with the unaffected simplicity and good faith with which they are set forth, make the few pages devoted to them the most interesting part of these volumes. These principles, according to Mr HUDSON are only four in number, and he styles them solidarity, originality, completeness and disinterestedness. By the first of these names the author tells us, is meant "that the several parts of a given work must all stand in mutual sympathy and intelligence, or that the details must not only have each a force and meaning of their own, but must also be helpful, directly or remotely, to the force and meaning of the others." So this strange-seeming solidarity is but the expression in another form of the recognized rule of high art, that the details should conform to the general design, and no character or action be introduced which does not help on the general action. Mr. HUDSON's solidarity is but harmony in its widest sense—no new principle of art, but one of oldest and widest recognition. But he insists with clearness and force that the harmonious composition of a grand drama is the most difficult achievement in literature. The combination and consentaneous working of distinct lines of thought, each complete in itself, yet all being but parts of one organic whole, like the melodies, the themes, the counter-themes, the harmonies and the instrumentation of a grand symphony—this is a work that is given to few men, even among the rarely gifted, to achieve. "For," as Mr. HUDSON well says, "the difficulty of the work increases in a sort of geometrical ratio with the number and greatness of the parts, and when we come to such a work as "Hamlet," or "Cymbeline," or King Lear," few of us have heads long enough or strong enough to measure, the difficulty of it." By originality Mr. HUDSON means, not novelty of form or of matter, but something that has reference to the method and process of the work. This, he insists, should be from the heart outward, and be the revelation of an inward life—a development of a germ, and not the aggregation of selected parts or elements. In other words, he insists upon all art being the creation of original genius. By his third principle—completeness—he requires that "a work of art must have within itself all that is needful for the understanding of it, as art;" so that it will not be necessary to go outside or beyond the work itself to learn what it means, and that a capacity of understanding the language or other vehicle of the artist's thoughts being granted, it will be intelligible without a commentary. This seems to be a reasonable requirement; and in regard to SHAKESPEARE, it has been strongly insisted by another American critic that his works, even in their grandest and most elevated, as well as in their most delicate and subtlest passages, are thus self-revealing, and in need of no extraneous explanation. By disinterestedness our author means more a moral than an intellectual reality—a willingness to leave self out of the picture of human nature. For, as he well says, "one great reason why men fail so much in their mental work is because they are not willing to see and to show things as they are, but must still be making them as they would have them to be." The artist must be absorbed in nature—in Nature as he sees her; that is, in what we call his conceptions; and it is these, and not his own notions of what the nature and the lives of men should be, that the great creative artist presents to us. Thus it has already been said of SHAKESPEARE, in this regard, that he had no conscience—that he did not hesitate to make men who are morally reprehensible, and whose moral unsoundness he did not seek to hide, but rather to set forth and bring to light, entertaining and even interesting, just as they are in real life. Mr. HUDSON, however, goes beyond this, and excludes all egoism from art. The Ruskin-like tone of the following passage will attract attention:

> "If, therefore, a man goes to admiring his own skill, or airing his own powers, or imitating the choice touches of others, or heeding the breath of conventional applause; if he yields to any strain of self-complacency, or turns to practicing smiles or to taking pleasure in his self-begotten graces, and beauties, and fancies; in this giddy and vertiginous state he will be sure to fall into intellectual and artistic sin. The man in such a case is no more smitten with a genuine love of art than Malvolio was with a genuine love of virtue; like that hero of conceit, he is merely sick of self-love, and tastes with a distempered appetite?"

Mr. HUDSON's general principles of art, by which he tests SHAKESPEARE—say rather which he has learned from him—will be accepted (although regarded probably as insufficient) by all genuine lovers of art and of SHAKESPEARE; and his application of those principles (not formally made, however) in his particular application of SHAKESPEARE's dramatic art, and of his characters, will surely meet with like approbation. This latter part of his work, that is the bulk of it, may indeed be found superfluous by many of them, who, insisting that SHAKESPEARE's art complied so perfectly with Mr. HUDSON's third requirement—completeness—that it is all-sufficient to itself, will thereupon maintain that such telling of us what SHAKESPEARE did and what SHAKESPEARE meant, is according to Mr. HUDSON's own rule and showing, needless. But few will make this objection, and even they must confess that if such critical chorus-work is to be done at all, it would hardly be done more instructively or more acceptably than it has been done by himself.

Against one doctrine that Mr. HUDSON and some other writers hold and press earnestly upon their readers we cannot withhold our earnest protest. On the threshold of his discussion of SHAKESPEARE's art, he asserts that "artistic virtue," that is, genuine artistic merit, "runs down into one and the same root with moral righteousness." That his meaning may not be misapprehended, he goes on to say that "both," that is, artistic virtue and moral righteousness, "must first of all be genuine and sincere, richer and better at the heart than on the surface; as always having it for their leading aim to recommend themselves to the perfect Judge; that is, they must seek the praise of God rather than of men." This, all will see, is but another expression of the doctrine that the beautiful is only a manifestation of the good, one of the flimsiest fallacies that ever misled men capable of consecutive thinking. Art has no relations whatever to morals, either in its spirit or in its material forms. It lends itself as freely, and with as much fitness, to vice as to virtue. Poetry, painting, sculpture, music, have served the devil just as readily as they have served God, and just as effectually. The whole history of art, from the dawn of civilization to the present day, shows this unmistakably. Men whose perception of the beautiful and whose power of embodying it were of the highest grade, whose artistic sense was of the most delicate and exquisite and truthful nature, have been base, mean, selfish, gross, beastly, fiendish. No man was ever made one whit better or worse by hearing the most beautiful music that ever was composed, or by contemplating the most beautiful picture or statue that ever was produced. MOZART's "Don Giovanni," is as powerless for evil as his Twelfth Mass is for good; and the beauty of RAPHAEL's Madonna di San Sisti and that of the Venus of Milo, each the highest in its kind, never made one man's heart white or black. Beauty is admired for its own sake, and art is a law unto itself and its own all-sufficient end. The notion that there is a profound natural sympathy or affinity between the forces of religion and the forms of art, a sympathy or affinity which produced, for instance, the great cathedrals of Europe, is the merest fancy: we should call it a sickly fancy, were it not that we would not speak disrespectfully of some, Mr. HUDSON among them, whom it has deluded. What can a man of his good sense and thoughtfulness mean by saying that "it is in such works as the ancient marvels of ecclesiastical building that the Christian mind has found its most fitting and most operative eloquence?" Does he really believe that the bigoted, pitiless, persecuting, self-seeking, greedy, sensual Popes, Bishops and abbots who caused the erection of those buildings, and not infrequently designed them, cared to express in them the spirit of true Christianity? Can he believe that the mute eloquence of the wondrous forms into which their stones were wrought ever softened one hard heart, or turned one life from good to evil? Doubtless their sombre and awful beauty has impressed itself deeply upon many a sensitive soul, and has hushed for the moment the clamors of many a coarse and frivolous nature. The superstitious it has made more superstitious: but did it ever teach one sordid soul the beauty of holiness, or turn one sinner from the error of his ways, or make one selfish, cruel heart see the beauty of the essence of Christianity. Do to others as you would have them do to you? Did it ever warm one hard, cold nature to the enthusiasm of humanity? Not one. The most it has ever effected in this way is the awakening of evanescent sentiment, religious only by association. And the good that is in SHAKESPEARE's works is not in their beauty, but in their wisdom; and these chiefly not in their teaching, (of which, by the way, they have not much,) but in their revelation to man of the workings of his own nature. They are to us, if we would have them so, a constant means of that self examination, which, if the purpose of our self-study be good, but not otherwise, is one of the most effective methods of moral improvement. The notion that "artistic virtue," to use Mr. HUDSON's Ruskin-like phrase, has any relations with moral righteousness is akin to and just as absurd as WORDSWORTH's that,

> "One impulse from a vernal wood
> May teach you more of man,
> Of moral evil and of good,
> Than all the sages can;"

which embodies as much nonsense as was ever put into four verses.

This error is the only serious one that we have remarked in Mr. HUDSON's treatment of his subject. But it is traceable more or less throughout his book. Otherwise his criticism is fine, just, sympathetic with his author, and must be very instructive and delightful to all those who feel the need of such comment upon SHAKESPEARE. We cannot follow him in detail through his examination of SHAKESPEARE's individual dramas and personages. He understands them well, and tells us his appreciation in a very interesting and impressive way. His style is strong, but generally sober, and he is rarely led into extravagance or vague eulogy. None of SHAKESPEARE's commentators have surpassed him in this kind of writing; few have equaled him. GERONIUS, whom he quotes often, and always with too much deference, is much below him, and seeming more profound is really not so deep, and far oftener falls into solemn commonplace. Mr. HUDSON's aptness at saying smart things rarely leads him, as we have said before, into extravagance; but it does sometimes. As for instance when, in brushing aside the ridiculous theory that BACON wrote the plays called SHAKESPEARE's, he gives as one reason for disregarding it that "BACON's mind could be taken out of SHAKESPEARE's and not be missed." This is smartly said; but like most fine things of the kind, it is not true. SHAKESPEARE needs no such glorifying by detractive comparison. He is great enough to do without belittling other's fame to build up his. His mind did not contain BACON's. It was entirely unlike BACON's, and had hardly a point of contact with it. Of Mr. HUDSON's happiest and most interesting vein, the following passage upon Benedick and Beatrice, is, although not one of the profoundest, one of the most truthful, delicate and pleasing:

> "The wit of these two persons, though seeming at first very much the same, is very nicely discriminated. Beatrice, intelligent as she is, has little of reflection in her wit, but throws it off in rapid flashes whenever any object ministers a spark to her fancy. Though of the most piercing keenness and the most exquisite aptness, there is no ill-nature about it; it stings indeed, but does not poison. The offspring merely of the moment and the occasion, it catches the apprehension, but quickly slides from the memory. Its agility is infinite; wherever it may be, the instant one goes to put his hand upon it, he is sure to find it or feel it somewhere else. The wit of Benedick, on the other hand, springs more from reflection, and grows with the growth of thought. With all the pungency and nearly all the pleasantry of hers, it has less of spontaneous volubility. Hence, in their skirmishes, she always gets the better of him, hitting him so swiftly and in so many spots as to bewilder his aim. But he makes ample amends when out of her presence, trundling off jests in whole paragraphs. In short, if his wit be slower, it is also stronger than hers, not so agile of movement, more weighty in matter, it shines less, but burns more; and as it springs much less out of the occasion, so it bears repeating much better. The effect of the serious events in bringing these persons to an armistice of wit is a happy stroke of art; and perhaps some such thing was necessary to prevent the impression of their being jesters by trade. It proves at least that BEATRICE is a witty woman, and not a mere female wit. To be sure, she is rather spicy than sweet, but then there is a kind of sweetness in spice—especially such spice as hers."

In the wordy conflicts of these two personages SHAKESPEARE has shown, and Mr. HUDSON felicitously tells us how, the way in which a witty woman will generally get the better in an altercation with a man, even when reason, and fact, and a stronger wit are on his side of the question.

Mr. HUDSON uses language in a free and fearless way, and in this is one of the chief attractions of his book; but he is sometimes guilty of positive slang. This is to be the more deplored because of the manly strength of his general style. He surely need not have written "utterly down on," "several things if not more," "decidedly a great institution," "pitches right in," "considerable might be urged," "in a tight place," "directly he gets out of sight," and the like. And we regret to see him adopting the theory that SHAKESPEARE rewrote "Hamlet" after 1603. It can be more surely proved that the quarto of 1603 was an attempt to present the perfected play than that SHAKESPEARE was its author. He insists, too, that Hamlet was really mad; although, as if to prevent such a misconception of the character of the Prince, SHAKESPEARE made Hamlet himself assure us that his madness was assumed. But blemishes of style or errors of judgment are very rare in these spirited and full-thoughted volumes, which we heartily commend to all who are interested in their kind of literature.

BOTANY FOR YOUNG PEOPLE; HOW PLANTS BEHAVE. By Prof. ASA GRAY. Pp. 46. New-York: IVISON, BLAKEMAN & CO.

The author of this ingenious and most interesting little work for children is known throughout the world of science as not only the leading American botanist, but one of the most distinguished investigators in the field of botany, whether in Europe or America.

To many students of philosophy, Prof. GRAY is also known as a "Darwinian," and as having written the ablest essays on the theory of development, which have appeared on this side of the Atlantic. Unlike, however, many compeers of Mr. DARWIN, Dr. GRAY sees in the wonderful contrivances of the vegetable world, promoting the diffusion of life and strengthening the vigor of species, not merely the accidental results of innumerable tentative efforts, but the fruit of an intelligent purpose, working by slow degrees through countless ages.

In dwelling on the facts and phenomena of vegetable life, he has come gradually to the conclusion that classification rests in large degree on temporary and superficial observations; that "varieties" are not fixed, and may shade into one another; and that "species" themselves may be but more stable varieties, and may converge together in the past. This little book, with its simple style and exquisite illustrations, though it never mentions the theory, might almost be entitled "Darwinism Made Easy."

It is devoted to the ingenious and beautiful observations in regard to the movements, mechanical contrivances and means of fertilization of plants, which have furnished Mr. DARWIN with one of his broadest generalizations.

Under the old philosophy, the flowers covered the earth with their carpet of many colors, or decked the gardens and forests with rich hues, as a pleasure merely to man's sense of beauty. Around these lovely and brilliant forms and colors of vegetable life flitted the insects and birds, also adding by their life and motion and beauty to man's enjoyment. But the two worlds of life—the insect and plant kingdoms, were looked upon as two separate existences, in no essential manner connected.

Under the new philosophy, each kingdom of life is and has been for innumerable ages interwoven with every other, and countless threads reaching back to almost infinite time form the simplest woof of life. The plants depend on the insects and the insects on the plants, for existence. The great office of insects is to fertilize plants; and the beauty and color of flowers are designed especially to attract insects. So broad is the generalization now on this subject that it can almost be said that all flowers with bright corollas and attractive in color, or with fragrance and honey are fertilized by insects or birds, while all plants or trees with dull flowers, without beauty or fragrance, or destitute of honey, are fertilized by the winds. A great and new division or classification can thus be made of vegetable life—the insect-fertilized and the wind-fertilized plants. The gorgeous robe, then, of the flowers of the field, the exquisite hues of our gardens, the brilliant colors of tropical plants, according to the pure Darwinian, are simply the accidental means which nature has hit upon, after millions of experiments, of attracting bees, flies, humming-birds and moths, to convey the pollen of one plant to the stigmas of another. The beauty attracts or the nectar entices, and the insect, while following his own appetite, is scattering new seeds of life and beauty over new fields.

Dr. GRAY, however, while recognizing and unfolding the fact, does not at all hold it as an "accident," and no doubt acknowledges the wonderful and unexplained phenomenon that the same combination of color, shading, hue and light give the birds and insects pleasure, as they give ourselves, so that beauty still remains in its essentials, something besides utility, whether to man or beast.

In laying the foundation for this remarkable generalization in regard to the connection of plants and insects, and the object of color and nectar in flowers, Mr. DARWIN, Dr. GRAY, and especially some Italian observers, have come upon some of the most curious and ingenious mechanism in flowers, which has ever been observed before in nature; contrivances of which, we believe, Mr. DARWIN himself has said, "they transcend in an incomparable degree the contrivances and adaptations which the most fertile imagination of the most imaginative man could suggest, with unlimited time at his disposal."

We have not space in this brief article to describe these ingenious pieces of mechanism, but we can note some of the very remote and unexpected objects they aim to produce. At first sight, it would seem that "perfect flowers," or those furnished with both stamens and pistils, would not need the action of insects to convey the pollen; or, again, those flowers, like the iris, where the anthers and stigma are placed close together, but have some obstacle interposed, would seem designed by nature not to fertilize one another; and yet, insects are called in to do what the plant did not appear to wish to do. These mysteries, however, are explained by the fact that insects are used to assist "cross-fertilization," as a species would soon die out if its seeds were fertilized by pollen from the same flower. Nature uses insects with "perfect flowers" to cross the breeds.

The contrivances for fertilizing the beautiful family of the orchids are the most ingenious in the whole world of nature. Some are so constructed that only peculiar species of moths could possibly fertilize them. If the moths perished, they would perish. Others look like swarms of orange butterflies fluttering on a branch, and no doubt thus attract insects. Others resemble one single gorgeous orange and spotted butterfly; others again, are like large white moths, and thus, perhaps, attract the only insects capable of making them bear seed. Another of the orchids, (the lady's slipper,) fertilizes its variety by catching flies in an ingenious fly-trap and letting them escape by another outlet, with a little pollen on their heads.

In the barberry blossoms there is a contrivance by which, on the touch of the proboscis of a bee, the stamens spring forward suddenly and shower the insect plentifully with pollen. The wild laurel has an equally remarkable kind of spring for discharging pollen. And a tropical orchid (catasetum) contains a most elaborate machine, which can only be touched off by an insect, whereby a pollen-mass is discharged as by a small catapult, and hits the head of the insect or moth and sticks fast to it, and is then conveyed to another flower.

We have not space to follow the attractive account of these ingenious mechanisms. The book itself should be in the hands of every child or teacher, who desires to study nature intelligently.

The last chapter is devoted to an equally interesting description of the "Plants Which Capture Insects," the "Flower Fly-traps," and the like. There seems reason to conclude from Dr. GRAY's observations (as well as those of others) that some plants—strange as it may seem—are carnivorous, and do, in a certain degree, absorb and digest insects.

In reading such a simple and yet thoroughly scientific account of the mechanism of nature, one is ready to say with this distinguished student of nature, "If these structures and their operations * * * do not argue intention, what stronger evidence of intention in nature can there possibly be? If they do, such evidences are countless, and almost every blossom brings distinct testimony to the existence and providence of a Designer and Ordainer, without whom, we may well believe, not even a grain of pollen may fall."

The Slanders on Mr. Cramer, the United States Minister to Copenhagen.

From the Copenhagen Dagbladet, May 17.

To our utmost astonishment we find in the American papers charges of misconduct and indiscretion against his Excellency Mr. CRAMER, the Ambassador of the United States to this Kingdom. Mr. CRAMER is charged in the American papers with gross misconduct in office, with having participated in discreditable scenes at the Tivoli, and with having been ostracized in society in consequence of his shortcomings. After a thorough investigation of the charges preferred in the above-named papers against Mr. CRAMER, we herewith pronounce them fictitious from first to last. There is no member of the diplomatic corps in this city who enjoys a higher share of general esteem than the American Ambassador, and we simply give expression to the sentiments of those who have been brought into contact with him in saying that there is in this capital of Denmark no gentleman but esteems it an honor to hold intercourse with Mr. CRAMER.

From the Official Tidende.

A scurrilous paper of this town, the Punch, has thought it was a smart thing to attack Hon. Mr. CRAMER, the United States Minister in this city, and has also reproduced extracts from American papers, in which the honorable Ambassador is roundly abused. There is no foundation whatever to the slanders against Mr. CRAMER, and as regards what the American papers have published against him, it is false from beginning to end. It would have been needless to take any notice of these American slanders against the Ambassador but for the fact that we have been assured that respectable people in the United States have been misled by them. They are absolutely groundless. Mr. CRAMER is on the best terms with our Government, and, from what we hear, fills his position most creditably.

From the Copenhagen Flyveposten.

The world is full of liars. Gen. GRANT, the President of the United States, is a prey to the professional liars of that country. The United States Minister here is his relative; consequently he must be slandered. For this reason, some American papers opposed to Gen. GRANT have had the effrontery to fill their columns with venomous inventions about Mr. CRAMER here, whom they paint in the blackest colors as destitute of culture, delicate feeling, and the most ordinary tact. We suppose that Mr. CRAMER will not take any notice of such ridiculous accusations; but we deem it our duty to bear witness to the high esteem in which he is held, and to the contempt with which those who are well acquainted with him cannot but look upon the slanderers who persecute him because he is related to the President of the American Republic.

From the Copenhagen Deutsch Zeitung.

What has been published against our American Minister in American papers is false from beginning to end.

GREELEY VERSUS GRANT.

How the Current of Public Opinion Runs Upon the Merits of the Two Principal Candidates for the Presidency—What the Tribune Stockholders are Losing by Mr. Greeley's Ambition.

As we have time and again remarked, it would be impossible, in the overcrowded condition of our columns, to find space for the thousands of letters—in prose and verse—upon Mr. GREELEY's candidature, which are sent to the TIMES office from one week's end to another. Since the renomination of Gen. GRANT, the number has been so largely increased as to be now quite overwhelming. Most of the letters come from persons who have withdrawn their subscriptions from the Tribune, owing to the nomination of its late editor for the Presidency. If the writers are sincere in their statements—and we have no reason to think otherwise—the stockholders of the Tribune are not likely to benefit much from the dividend to be declared at the end of the year. Below we publish a careful selection from the communications which particularly bear upon this subject:

W. F. H., of Mount Hope, N. J., sends a subscription to the WEEKLY TIMES. He takes exception to a report which lately appeared in the Tribune about the "Grant Junta," at New-Brunswick, on the ground that the statements are not true. In relation to Mr. GREELEY and the Republican Party proper, the writer says:

"I have made it a point to compare notes with gentlemen from different sections whenever opportunity has offered, and thus far have found but one Republican who declared himself 'anti-Grant;' and even he was bitterly disappointed by the Cincinnati nominations."

J. M. B., of Oregon City, Oregon, sends a subscription for two copies of the WEEKLY TIMES, and says:

"We don't want any GREELEY in ours, in this country. The Tribune has had a large circulation here, but many of those who have paid for it, refuse to take it out of the office."

C. A. C., in a letter inclosing a subscription to the TIMES refers to Mr. GREELEY's chances to obtain the electoral vote of Florida as follows:

"Notwithstanding HARDEE's dispatch congratulating GREELEY upon his nomination, and his promise that Florida would give him her electoral vote, I have yet to see the first Republican that will vote for him. The Democrats are waiting to see if he is nominated at Baltimore. If so, they will vote for him as they would vote for FREDERICK DOUGLAS or even 'Boss' TWEED if either were the nominee of the party. Florida will give GRANT her electoral vote."

C. S., of Martinsville, Morgan County, Ind., makes the following allusions to the TIMES and Tribune, and to the candidature of Mr. GREELEY:

"I have been a reader of the New-York Tribune for a number of years, but have discarded it and its editor, Mr. GREELEY. We have gone to work to raise a club for the TIMES. Every one in this section who sees it says it is conducted with signal ability. Philosopher GREELEY was once very popular with us, but since he went back on his principles, his friends and his party, and shows such a desire to become the branded property of the Democracy, no one has faith in him or respect for him. He has no strength in this section of the country, either with Democrats or Republicans. Indiana will be true to the party and its leaders that saved the country in the hour of peril."

C. F. D., of Sing Sing, under date of June 5, writes:

"I have been a constant reader of the New-York Tribune for the last thirty years, and a daily subscriber to that journal for half that period. Believing in the party that saved the Union, I am now forced to drop my subscription to Mr. GREELEY's paper, and to take a paper that is a true exponent of the principles of that party. I inclose $5 for my subscription for six months to the DAILY TIMES."

C. O. B., of Milton, Vt., sends two subscriptions to the SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES. In a postscript to his letter he says:

"The above are old subscribers to the late 'Vermont Bible'—GREELEY the proprietor. Make it hot for the poor old ——."

W. C. P., writing under date of June 5, from Curllsville, Clarion County, Penn., speaks thus irreverently of the "Liberal" candidate:

"There are no disciples of that venerable * *, the Chappaqua farmer, in this part of the political vale of tears. We are all well up in farming, and propose to help elect the Tanner of Appomattox to a second term against any combination of soft-shell Republicans, Democrats, Kuklux, female suffrage, reformers, WOODHULL, or any other man."

I. M., of Nyack, N. Y., writes as follows:

"Enclosed please find one dollar for the WEEKLY TIMES for ensuing year. I have taken and read the Tribune for a number of years, and have been pleased with it until a few months past. Want a paper that is not trying to divide and destroy the Republican Party, and is not finding so much fault with the present Administration. Will try the TIMES."

E. D. writes from Boonton, N. J., in the following vigorous vein:

"Inclosed please find $2 50, (postage stamps,) for which please send me that sound Republican paper the SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES, for one year from the next issue. I have taken the Tribune regularly for the last five years, but am now completely disgusted with it, and now want a paper that is not conspiring to overthrow the best Administration we have had for forty years."

J. S. McH., of Davenport, Iowa, writes to say that Mr. GREELEY's popularity in that State has faded away almost completely since his nomination at Cincinnati. The Germans are particularly disgusted that a man of such uncertain principles should be selected in preference to more eminent soreheads. He concludes his letter thus:

"Iowa will give 60,000 majority next November for GRANT and WILSON and pure Republicanism."

Mr. GREELEY has evidently not improved his chances of election to the Presidency by his appearance as a lecturer in the rural districts of Iowa, if we may judge from the following communication, which comes from Lyons, in that State:

"Of the sixteen subscribers which were sent you some time since, many of them were old Tribune subscribers. A Greeley man in the rural districts of Iowa is a curiosity—I might say a 'monstrosity.' Mr. GREELEY lectured once in Lyons. Our people have seen the elephant; their curiosity is satisfied; they are willing to let the 'Philosopher' rest in his sanctum."

H. A. M., of Bryan, Texas, incloses a subscription to the TIMES, and says:

"The old Union men who were compelled to flee the Confederacy in 1861 to save their lives, always had faith in GREELEY until he leagued himself with the men who then thirsted for their blood, and whom he would now raise again into power and position, to gratify his own selfish aims. They now feel that it is no longer safe to trust him, and do not want to support the paper that sustains him. They are grateful to the TIMES for so well representing the true welfare of the people, and discard the Tribune as being no longer a true Republican paper."

E. M. K. G., of Macedon, Wayne County, N. Y., has evidently been unable to prevent the publisher of the New-York Tribune from sending him the weekly issue of that paper. It must certainly be a very unprofitable business that requires to be forced in such a way. Here is what our correspondent says on the subject:

"I have taken the Tribune (it is paid to about Aug. 18) for a time prior to the Cincinnati Convention. I was sadly sick of it after the nomination of GREELEY, and I wrote the publisher 'that as the Tribune had broken faith with its patrons, and had become the organ of a new party, I would wish to have my paper at once stopped.' I waited a few days. It did not stop. I wrote again 'that I had no use for so vile a sheet, and that it was no longer taken from the Post-office.' Still the thing comes. All the old readers of the Tribune are disgusted with GREELEY. None of them, I am sure, will vote for him. I know of but one Republican in this vicinity that talks GREELEY now. My son sends me the DAILY TIMES, so I have an antidote for treason."

J. B. J., of Milledgeville, Carroll County, Ill., refers the Chicago and New-York Tribunes to Mr. GREELEY's prospects as follows:

"Inclosed please find $1, for which please send WEEKLY TIMES to H. T., of this place. I happened to meet him yesterday with a late Chicago Tribune in his hands. Said I, 'how do you like the Tribune?' Says he, 'the Tribune, I signed for it because of its Republican sentiments. Now I wish I could get rid of it.' I then told him I was a subscriber of the TIMES and recommended it as being a sound Republican paper, and he told me to send for it.

There are hundreds of just such cases in this county, and I think there will be many new subscribers to the TIMES who now read the Tribune, (Chicago,) for there has not been a copy of GREELEY's Tribune taken here for years. He will not get a corporal's guard in this county. In fact, I only know of but one in the county, and he is getting sick, I think."

M. J. K., of Oregon, under date of May 21, writes:

"I have taken the Tribune for a long time, but since GREELEY has gone over to the rebels I shall take no stock in his company. As I want a live paper during this campaign, please send me the WEEKLY TIMES."

In this part of the country we believe that the old printer-farmer has wooed the Democracy in the following vein:

"Come, let me in, and for past sin
I pray you don't upbraid me,
And you shall find that I am kind,
If you will come and aid me.
When forces foul had raised a howl
From June to last November,
And sang their song, both loud and long,
My course you must remember.
For when the TIMES, throughout all climes,
Proclaimed your malversation,
And you, forlorn, were made the scorn
Of all this mighty nation;
Your misdeeds came in lines of flame,
You know I acted meekly;
For in my way, I think you'll say
I did not act so blindly;
My words were few, and, then, of you
I often spoke most kindly."

G. A. S., of Cazenovia, N. Y., under date of June 7, writes:

"Inclosed find Post-office money order for $5. Please send me the DAILY TIMES as soon as possible. I have been a constant reader of the Tribune for twenty years. I want a good honest Republican paper; that is why I make this change. HORACE GREELEY is nowhere in this locality. He has lost his popularity with Republicans in Cazenovia. We are all feeling glorious over the result at Philadelphia. GRANT and WILSON is on every honest tongue here. We shall increase our large majority next Fall for GRANT and WILSON. We have a few honest Democrats here who say GRANT in preference to GREELEY—not any GREELEY for them. The enthusiasm here for GRANT and WILSON is increasing rapidly. Send me your paper, and much oblige."

S., writing from Erie, Penn., under date of June 7, gives the following view of the situation in that enterprising city:

"The exports of Erie are immense and varied; but we think the greatest prodigy she ever sent forth was Hon. HORACE GREELEY. He worked in the office of the Gazette here, and appeared to have more sense then than now—but this was before he herded with Tammany thieves. As an editor Mr. G. has many friends here, but as a politician he is considered a fraud. His support here, so far as Republicans are concerned, white and black, could be counted on the fingers of one hand and still have two to spare. There are just three of these mongrel creatures, and the extent of their influence is centred in their respective vote. The bailer of JEFF. DAVIS and visionary politician has no show out this way. We have a way of liking such 'miserable scoundrels and outlaws' as SUMNER has depicted GRANT, because he has made our country respected, at home and abroad, reduced our national indebtedness, lightened our burden of taxation, and given us a stable government. This is all we ask of any man, and we mean to let him swindle us four years more in the same way. With GREELEY as President, surrounded by his rebel allies, all we would lack would be a GIBBON to record the 'Decline and Fall of the American Republic.' One word more as to the TIMES. It is increasing its circulation and influence every day, having, as the newsmen tell me, almost supplanted the Tribune. The latter will soon find itself like a General without an army—a politician without constituency."

N. B. B., under date of May 24, writes from Bellefontaine, Miss., quite an interesting letter upon the Presidential candidates, from which we make the following extract:

"I am in possession of the third number of your valuable paper since I became a subscriber for it. It breathes the spirit of true Republicanism. The manner in which you handle the Cincinnati soreheads or bolters is fully indorsed by all true Republicans. We of the South, who accepted the situation at the close of the revolution and drifted into the Republican Party, have a supreme contempt for H. GREELEY & Co., and all other political hucksters, who are out of business and seek to employ themselves by trying to divide and distract the best party that ever had a name in this nation. We want peace in the South, and to secure that end we, the Republicans of the South, desire a continuation of the present Administration of our National Government. We know the want of law and order in rebeldom—something we never had until after the inauguration of the present Administration of our Government. When the revolution closed every vestige of civil government had been swept away in the South; no law, no order, or security for life or property existed. The entire country was filled with thieves, robber and assassins, who were ever ready to sally forth and perpetrate their fiendish deeds. When the administration of our Government fell into the hands of Gen. GRANT, reconstruction in the South was no longer an experiment, but a reality, and, under the wisdmo of his Administration, and the manner in which he has enforced every law of Congress in relation to punishing the perpetrators of heinous crimes which have been so prevalent in the South, has had a salutary effect. And we want no change in the Administration."

The Republicans and Democrats of St. Lawrence County, in this State, seem to have about an equal contempt for Mr. GREELEY's pretensions as a candidate for the Presidency, and if the wholesale discontinuance of the Tribune by its former subscribers in that section of country be any evidence of waning popularity, then the stock of the Cincinnati nominee may be said to be very low indeed. G. L. E., writing from Potsdam, under date of June 6, says:

"We believe that St. Lawrence, heretofore the 'banner county,' is not the hot-bed of Greeleyism that it has been reported to be. Next Fall she will most assuredly give her usual 8,000 Republican majority for GRANT and WILSON; and in case of an indorsement of GREELEY at Baltimore, a majority of the Democrats of St. Lawrence will vote for GRANT or stay at home. St. Lawrence is made up of enlightened, reading, thinking people, who know Mr. GREELEY and his record, and hence their unanimous contempt for the man who, through his desire to be President, attempts to destroy the party which he has so long labored to create. Rensselaer Falls Post-office last year distributed fifty copies of the Weekly Tribune; this year, not one. Massena last year took sixty copies; this, just one. West Potsdam last year had sixty copies; this year only ten, and there is only one "Greeley man" in that district, and were the clubs to be made up now, we believe that 150 copies of the New-York Tribune would allow every voter a copy who desires to favor Mr. GREELEY, and from Potsdam I have already sent you for 118 copies, and please find inclosed check for forty-eight copies more, making us 166. These things speak for themselves, and in November, St. Lawrence will speak with her accustomed voice."

In the following letter G. F. G. gives an honest idea of Gen. GRANT's popularity and Mr. GREELEY's unpopularity in Michigan:

"Inclosed you will please find $2 50 for the SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES for the ensuing year. I consider it to be the duty of all true Republicans to sustain every measure and agency which may serve to support the Republican Party and to give it success again in the campaign which is now approaching. It will be my pleasure to stand firm for the nominee of the Philadelphia Convention, and in no way support, aid or countenance defection from the party, or assist those, however much they may heretofore have been honored and revered, to tear down the fair fabric reared in this country by the Republican Party, to gratify their vindictiveness, or appease their wrath, or to support their restless and overweening ambitions. The country is waking up to the importance of the issues at stake. Mr. GREELEY will get but few votes in Michigan from Republicans, and the Democrats here do not favor the idea of the Baltimore Convention indorsing him, and should they do so, their support will be feeble, while many would not vote for him at all. GRANT is good for thirty thousand majority in this State, and more I think."

PRESS OPINIONS.

From the McConnelsville (Ohio) Herald.

Some of our old Morgan Republicans who have sworn by the Tribune for years, want to sell out the balance of the present year's subscription and subscribe for the leading Republican organ of the present day—the NEW-YORK TIMES.

From the North Vernon (Ind.,) Plain Dealer.

The best newspaper in the United States is the NEW-YORK TIMES. Its news is the freshest and most reliable, and its editorials are the most able. We would be glad if at this time the WEEKLY TIMES could be in the hands of every voter in the country.

From the Daily Saratogian.

The NEW-YORK TIMES has excelled, by long odds, every other newspaper in the great promptness, fullness and accuracy of its reports of the Philadelphia Convention. The TIMES is leading the Metropolitan Press not only in enterprise, but in the character of its editorial department. Besides, the TIMES is the only paper that maintains the war against Tammany. It is making it as hot now for HOFFMAN as it has for the rest of the Tweed gang. The TIMES is rapidly superseding the Tribune in the ranks of the Republican Party, the latter seeming to find room for little else beside peevish and bilious grumblings, or flatulent praises of HORACE GREELEY.

From the Monmouth (N. J.) Inquirer.

As the New-York Tribune has deserted the Republican Party, and is doing all in its power to prevent its future success, that paper should not receive the support of Republicans, especially while the party has a much better paper in the NEW-YORK TIMES. The TIMES contains all the news throughout the world, and is the best of the New-York dailies. Its weekly and semi-weekly editions are made up of the most important contents of the daily issue. Special regard is had for agricultural matters. We advise our Republican friends to make up clubs for the TIMES and send them in. They will be sowing good seed by so doing.

From the Portland (Me.) Press.

At the rolling-mills there has usually been a club of from twenty to thirty Tribunes taken by the employes. But since Mr. GREELEY has left the Republican Party, and that great journal has become independent, there has been a great change, for, instead of a Tribune club, there is now one of sixty for the NEW-YORK TIMES. This is a straw which may indicate where some of the real working men are.

While picking up straws, we will just add another. In another large manufacturing company in this city, where there has been a Tribune club of sometimes nearly a hundred, the gentleman who had interested himself previously in getting it up, on the late expiration of the time, could find but one man who would take it, and he was very indifferent about it. When will great men and influential journals learn that they have taught men to think for themselves?

From the New-York Correspondent of the Boston Transcript.

If any reliance is to be placed upon the statements of newsmen, the Tribune must be incurring a fearful pecuniary loss about these times. It would not surprise me at all to learn that fully one-half of the transient purchasers of the Daily Tribune had dropped off during the past four weeks. Had the events which have transpired during that period occurred last Autumn, before subscribers had made their renewals, the Tribune must have lost fully one-half of its weekly subscribers. [It is sickening to see how the paper truckles and bows to the Democracy in order to secure their votes.] Per contra, the TIMES since the first of January has nearly doubled its daily edition, and more than quadrupled its weekly. This accession of subscribers of course comes from the Tribune. The stockholders of that paper must experience a lively pecuniary satisfaction at Mr. GREELEY's antics.

From the Watkins, (Schuyler County, N. Y.,) Express.

We urge any of our readers who may not now be taking a New-York paper, or whose subscription may be about expiring, to subscribe for the NEW-YORK WEEKLY TIMES. Its summary of news is equal to the best, and it is independent and fearless in the discussion of all live issues. Its able corps of editors and correspondents fill all its pages with interesting reading. It is devoted to the principles of the Republican Party, but is not blindly subservient to the Administration, as is assumed by the Tribune, for it freely criticises whatever it does not approve. The Tribune's complaint of it is that its criticisms are those of a friend rather than those of an enemy. As a journal of reform, its exposures of the Tammany Ring placed it in the front ranks, and entitled it to the gratitude of all lovers of good government; and it still is foremost in unmasking abuses.

From the Orange (N. J.) Journal.

We have watched the Tribune's issues of late to see what its withdrawal from party politics amounted to, and our conclusion is that it amounts to a system of moral Bedouinism. And that system, as practiced in Arabia, means two things—concealed duplicity and reckless robbery. When the Tribune claims to be no longer a party organ, it either deceives itself or tries to deceive its readers. If ever there was a party organ, this paper is it; and the party whose cause it advocates is Mr. GREELEY and all who can be induced to support his nomination. All of his class, whatever their past history may have been, the Tribune exalts as patriots and sages, all others it traduces and, in a moral sense, plunders. It can see no good in the present Administration, and with more than partisan blindness it misrepresents and condemns every measure that is adopted. Its old friends have become hateful to it; and its old enemies of the South and of the Democratic Party have, all at once, grown to be the noblest of political reformers. Even its own principles, a protective tariff for example, it is ready to conceal or abandon if necessary, in order to elect Mr. GREELEY. And this is a non-partisan paper—a paper that advocates political reform. How art thou fallen, O star of the morning! If this is freedom from political partisanship, it were better that there should be no more of it. If the Tribune, in professing to be free, becomes more illiberal and more partisan than ever, let other journals beware of its example and influence.

A Brother and Two Sisters Become Insane.

From the Troy Times, June 11.

Three weeks ago an Irishman named CRAVEN and two sisters left London for America to seek their fortune. They arrived in New-York about a week ago, and seemed to be then, as they had been during the voyage, in good bodily and mental health. The day succeeding their arrival symptoms of insanity were detected in all of them. As they had intended to come to this city, where they have friends, they were placed on the cars and sent on here. Upon their arrival they were raving maniacs. Successful intervention on their behalf resulted in their admission into the hospital, where they were kept until yesterday, when the man became so violent that it was determined to send him to the Poughkeepsie State Lunatic Asylum, and he was taken down today by a Deputy Sheriff. The women continue in a condition which does not justify any hopes of the restoration of their mental faculties.

The Riverside Park.

The Commissioners of Awards and Assessments in the matter of the Riverside Park improvements, consisting of Ex-Judge SUTHERLAND, WM. C. TRAPHAGEN and Gen. C. K. GRAHAM, met yesterday morning, at No. 82 Nassau-street, and continued to hear objections of property owners in reference to the proposed improvements. From seventy-five to eighty objections were received, three-fourths of which were against the assessments, and the remaining portion against the awards. The Commissioners will sit again this morning.

LOUIS CITY WATER BONDS. Issued by authority of an act "to authorize the City of St. Louis to issue and dispose of additional Bonds to enable it to extend and protect its Water-works," approved Feb. 2, 1872.

These Bonds are for $1,000 each, dated April 1, 1872, having twenty years to run, with interest at the rate of six per cent., payable semi-annually on the 1st day of April and October, respectively, in Gold Coin of the United States, in the City of New-York, where the principal is also made payable in Gold Coin—and are the last authorized by the Legislature to be issued for the extension of the Water-works. The net revenue derived from the Water-works is pledged by law for the redemption of the Bonds now offered, both principal and interest, in the same manner as the Bonds heretofore issued under the acts approved March 13, 1867, and March 25, 1870.

Bids will be received for any number of the Bonds in sums of $5,000 and upward, and the proposals will be publicly opened in the office of the Mayor on the day and time named.

The Mayor reserves the right to reject any and all bids, if in his opinion the bids received be not satisfactory.

Bids may be made payable in the issue of the national banks, or the currency of the United States.

The bonds will be delivered in the City of St. Louis to the purchasers whose bids are accepted, upon the 15th day of July, 1872, to be paid for when delivered, with accrued interest from April 1, 1872, the bonds being antedated.

Five per cent. of the amount in money or certified bank check, will be required to accompany each bid, to insure compliance with the same.

FIRST MORTGAGE

7 Per Cent. Gold Bonds.

These bonds are issued at the rate of $18,333 per mile upon COMPLETED ROAD from NEBRASKA CITY, on the Missouri River, to LINCOLN, the CAPITAL of NEBRASKA. The distance between these points is about sixty miles, and this division of the Road is in successful operation and earning net more than all the interest on its Bonds. It penetrates an EXCEEDINGLY RICH AGRICULTURAL region, with UNLIMITED CAPABILITIES for production, and is much needed for removal of abundant crops to market. This need has been so much felt that LOCAL SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE AMOUNT OF $8,000 PER MILE HAVE BEEN MADE to facilitate the extension of the road from Lincoln westward to the Platte River, which is in process of construction. The MIDLAND PACIFIC forms part of a direct EAST AND WEST TRUNK ROUTE, now being rapidly built from Urbana, on the INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON AND WESTERN RAILWAY, in Illinois, through A VERY RICH AGRICULTURAL DISTRICT DENSELY POPULATED for the greater part of the way, to Grand Island, on the Platte River, where junction is made with the Union Pacific Railroad. This new line, 610 miles long, is formed of three links, of which more than 200 MILES ARE COMPLETED, a force of over 2,000 men is engaged in vigorous prosecution of the work, and THE ENTIRE LINE IS TO BE FULLY COMPLETED IN 1873.

The roads composing this trunk line are JUDICIOUSLY LOCATED AND ARE UNDER THE DIRECTION OF SOME OF THE ABLEST AND MOST SUCCESSFUL RAILWAY MANAGERS of the country. Being in the same interest, consolidation must follow, and thus form a strong combination of railway. Directness of route is greatly in its favor, as it saves 147 miles in distance between New-York and San Francisco over any existing line. The MIDLAND PACIFIC, with the broad area of fertile and most productive land tributary to it, with its close alliance with the Missouri, Iowa and Nebraska Railroad and the Indianapolis, Bloomington and WESTERN EXTENSION, must soon be taxed to its fullest limit to accommodate local and through business. Shipments of products by this road will lead to the WEST as well as to the EAST. We recommend these Bonds, which are a FIRST LIEN on COMPLETED road, as a prime security, PERFECTLY SAFE, and IN RETURNS much more desirable for investors than Government Bonds.

Present price, 90 and accrued interest, in currency. Coupons payable Feb. 1 and Aug. 1, in Gold, free of tax, in the City of New-York. All marketable securities received in exchange at full rates. Bonds may be registered without charge. Pamphlets, maps, circulars, &c., giving full information, can be obtained from the undersigned, Financial Agents of the Company.

PACIFIC RAILROAD OF MISSOURI, SEVEN PER CENT., FREE OF TAX, SECOND MORTGAGE BONDS.

Road is over twenty-two years old, is well equipped and well managed. Its stock sells at 93 to 95. Allowing sixty per cent. for ordinary running expenses, the road earned in 1867 fifty-two per cent more than interest on First and Second Mortgage Bonds, and has increased its earnings each year, so that in 1871 it earned more than double the interest on First and Second Mortgage Bonds. A sinking fund of $50,000 per annum is one condition of the trust. We offer these bonds so that they return 8½ per cent income, without taking account of profit from the inevitable rise in the price of the bonds from the action of the sinking fund. We have selected these bonds as relatively the best investment offering in the market, and would invite the closest scrutiny to them. For price or further particulars, apply to

PROPOSALS FOR MAIL STEAM-SHIP SERVICE BETWEEN SAN FRANCISCO, JAPAN AND CHINA.

POST-OFFICE DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON, June 5, 1872.

In accordance with the provisions of sections 3 and 6 of the act of Congress approved June 1, 1872, entitled "An act making appropriations for the service of the Post-office Department for the year ending June 30, 1873," which sections are in the words and figures following, viz.:

SECTION 3. * * * And the Postmaster-General is hereby authorized to contract with the lowest bidder, within three months after the passage of this act, after sixty days' public notice, for a term of ten years from and after the 1st day of October, 1873, for the conveyance of an additional monthly mail on the said route, at a compensation not to exceed the rate per voyage now paid under the existing contracts, and upon the same conditions and limitations as prescribed by existing acts of Congress in reference thereto, and the respective contracts made in pursuance thereof; and the contractors under the provisions of this section shall be required to carry the United States mails during the existence of their contracts, without additional charge, on all the steamers they may run upon said line, or any part of it, or any branch or extension thereof: Provided, That all steam-ships hereafter accepted for said service shall be of not less than 4,000 tons register each, and shall be built of iron, and with their engines and machinery shall be wholly of American construction, and shall be so constructed as to be readily adapted to the armed naval service of the United States in case of war, and before acceptance the officers by whom they are inspected shall report to the Secretary of the Navy and the Postmaster-General whether this condition has been complied with: Provided, That in all cases the officers of the ships employed in the service herein provided for shall be citizens of the United States, and that persons of foreign birth, who have according to law declared their intentions to become citizens of the United States, may be employed as though they were citizens within the meaning of this section, or of any act or acts specified in the act of June 28, 1864; and the Government of the United States shall have the right, in case of "war, to take for the use of the United States any of the steamers of said line, and in such case pay a reasonable compensation therefor: Provided, The price paid shall in no case exceed the original cost of the vessel so taken, and this provision shall extend to and be applicable to the steamers of the Brazilian line hereinafter provided for."

SEC. 6. That if the contract for the increase of the mail service between San Francisco and China and Japan to a semi-monthly service shall be made with the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company, or shall be performed in the said Company's ships, or the ships of its successors in interest, the moneys payable under such contract shall be paid while the said Company or its successors in interest shall maintain and run the line of steam-ships for the transportation of freight and passengers at present run between New-York and San Francisco, via the Isthmus of Panama, by the said Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company, and no longer: Provided, That said requirement shall in all respects apply to any party contracting for the mail service between San Francisco and China and Japan, as well as to the Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company.

PROPOSALS

will be received at the Post-office Department, in the City of Washington, until 3 o'clock P. M., on MONDAY, the 12th day of August, 1872, for conveying the mails of the United States, by means of an additional monthly line of first-class American seagoing steam-ships of not less than 4,000 tons register each, and of sufficient number to perform twelve round trips per annum, between the port of San Francisco and the port of Hong Kong, (China,) touching at Yokohama, (Japan,) with a regular branch line running in connection with the main line between Yokohama and Shanghai, (China,) for a contract term of ten years from and after the 1st day of October, 1873.

Each bid should name the time proposed to be occupied in performing the passages each way, including stoppages at intermediate ports; and also the length of the stoppages at each of the intermediate ports. Schedules of sailing days, stating the proposed days and hours of departure from each port, as well as the proposed days and hours of arrival, should also accompany each bid. The departures must be so arranged as to alternate at equal and regular intervals with those of the present monthly line during its continuance, forming a regular semi-monthly service in connection therewith; such schedules, however, to be subject to the approval of the Postmaster-General, and to adjustment or alteration by his order, from time to time, as the interests of the postal service may require.

The steam-ships offered for the service must be American-built steam-ships of the first-class, in all respects conforming to the requirements of the laws authorizing the service, and before acceptance they will be subject to inspection and survey by an experienced naval constructor to be detailed for that purpose by the Secretary of the Navy.

Proposals must conform in all particulars to the provisions and requirements of the acts of Congress approved Feb. 17, 1865, and Feb 18, 1867, and of sections 3 and 6 of the above-cited act of June 1, 1872, and must be properly guaranteed with satisfactory testimonials that the bidder or bidders, and their guarantors, are men of property and abundantly able to make good their tender and guarantee.

The bidder or bidders must be an American citizen or citizens.

The bidder's name and residence, and the name of each member of the firm, when a partnership offers, should be distinctly stated. If made by a corporation the bid must be accompanied by a duly-authenticated copy of the charter or articles of incorporation and a list of officers and directors.

All bids exceeding the sum of five thousand dollars must be accompanied by a certified check or draft, payable to the order of the Postmaster-General, upon some solvent national bank, of not less than five per centum of the amount of one year's pay proposed in such bid or bids; such check or draft to be subject to all the conditions and provisions of existing laws in respect to forfeiture.

Any assignment or transfer of an ocean mail contract is expressly forbidden by law. Such assignments or transfers are null and void, and the Postmaster-General is required to determine any contract in case of its being under-let or assigned.

Proposals shall be sent under seal to "The Superintendent of Foreign Mails," with the words "Mail Proposals," "Japan and China route," written on the face of the address, and they should be dispatched in time to be received at this Department on or before 3 o'clock P. M. of Monday, the 12th day of August next, which will be the last day for receiving proposals under this advertisement.

Postmaster-General.
